FERGUSON WELL RECEIVED IN STRONG PRO COUNTIES

FARMER CANDIDATE ADDRESSED BIG CROWDS OF VOTERS IN ROCKWALL COUNTY.

(Caller-Herald Special.

DALLAS, Tex., July 6.—James E. Ferguson the candidate representing the farmers and business men of Texas is campaigning in Dallas county and good crowds and without doubt his campaign received a decided impetus as a result of his visit. Many actual prohibitionists are saying that Colonel Tom Hall is a born politician, stands for nothing in the way of prohibition except submission and that they are going to vote for Ferguson who meets every question squarely.

Rockwall county is a seat of prohibition strength and Rockwall is the local center of that section. Dead to the wood prohibition there have just been popular and "Prince Hal" celebrated his Fourth in more the same manner as did our forefathers record hundred years ago and that the battle was waged with words. About 1500 people were gathered around the open air pavilion in a County of fully picnic when introduced by H. B. Earthman of Nevada, Mr. Ferguson took the rostrum. Except with the fan for fear of the speaker there were many. Still men in the crowd and the enthusiasm was increasing, but as Ferguson forthed the substitute, began to cool a little. He soon realized that James E. Ferguson was a fighter and gave him successful situation.

Audience Largely Farmers.

The audience was composed for the greater portion of forty men of the soil. Farmers were the major portion of the men in these two planks of his platform that appeal directly to the farm farmer and some extent. The people of the school farmer plank and the matter of school taxes.

A [illegible] he addressed the audience [illegible] Kaufman. With the exception "I want you time to come, my friends, when the people of this state will not have to purchase our school books every year, the more [illegible]

[illegible] the audience who had [illegible] and [illegible] ward demonstration at the remarks of the speaker, nudged their neighbors. He had struck the common chord.

After a few more sentiments, in which he laid bare his plans for the upbuilding of the educational institutions of the State, he delved into the tenant farmer plank.

"This 'back to the country' talk we hear so much about from agitators and town farmers will never be possible until we can make the town schools and the country schools equal. I favor the equalization of our educational advantages, and just as the great earning capacity of our State depends upon the men who till the soil, so should their educational advantages at least be commensurate.

Told of Religious Donations.

He had just started into the tenant farmer discussion when there came from the crowds "Tell us about the Catholic stuff." He did. He explained in such a manner that there seemed to be no further doubt left as to his intentions and attitude on the question. "These political preachers, in addition to taking occasion to inject this issue into the campaign, are also purposely omitting facts that make the statements again to falsehood." he continued. "While they are charging my affiliation with the Catholic church because I had happened to contribute to the maintenance of a night school conducted by a good Catholic father, these same preachers neglect to state that where I had volunteered and paid but $1.50 a month to that worthy cause, that I had contributed to their own church more than $300 and am now paying a portion of their pastor's salary.

"These same men are the ones I am paying to educate at the Southern Methodist college in Dallas, to which I contributed. Now if I am to be your School Ma'ammy and enter the room and tell Pinky in his north school at Tennie, I don't want any votes from men that feel I should not do it.

"I am not ashamed of my actions and would not change my views to be the president of the United States.

His discussion of the tenant farmer plank was detailed. It seemed to more fully the support of the tenant farmers.

Talked on Prohibition.

Late in his speech he took on the question of prohibition and did not mince any words in claiming that the stand of Thomas H. Hall on the question is hypocritical. He sneered and sneered that this issue was being brought up

MRS. JOHN F. SHAFROTH

Mrs. John F. Shafroth, wife of the Colorado senator and former governor of that state, is one of the devoted wives of congressmen who braved the hot summer days to remain in Washington by their husbands' sides until congress finally adjourns. Every year during the extra session, which seems to have become a regular thing, the majority of congressional women leave the capital for cooler places, but there are always a few who believe that if their husbands have to endure it they must too, and Mrs. Shafroth is one of these.
