CREW OF MEN BUSY WITH THE GREEN RIVER ROUTE.

Little Doing Along the Line of the Proposed Sugar Factory and Promised Railroad to the South of Price —Castle Dale People Are Hurriedly Called to Black Hawk.

CASTLE DALE, June 17.—Miss Gladys Johansen entertained Tuesday evening at a surprise party for Linden Ungerman at her home on the bench. The rooms were beautifully decorated with a profusion of garden flowers. Shasta daisies were used in the halls, white and pink peonies in the parlor and in the dining room a color scheme of pink was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. A crystal basket of pink peonies, tied with a butterfly bow of pink tulle, made an effective centerpiece for the dining table. The evening was spent in music and a number of interesting games, after which luncheon was served to Linden Ungerman, Misses Vada Ferris, Jennie Lake, Hannah Cash, Wanda Olsen, Etta Seely and Eugenia Dennison, and Messrs. Leander Livingston, Harold Jensen, Melvin Williams, Perry Snow and Rex Peterson.

Mrs. J. C. Baker entertained Friday afternoon at a bundle shower for Miss Pauline Wood, a June bride. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers and hearts. Those present were Mrs. L. C. Jefferson Adams, who came here a refugee from Mexico some two years ago, left last Sunday for Tobar, Nev., where he will make his home temporarily. He has followed the business of freighting while he has been here, but lost his wife this spring and has not felt contented since. A friend of the family in Salt Lake City has been taking care of the children since Mrs. Adams' death.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Asay were hurriedly called to Black Hawk the first of the week on receipt of word that their son, Neal, had been nearly trodden to death by a horse. The physician found it necessary to take twenty-seven stitches to close up the wounds. The young man would have been killed had it not been for the timely assistance of another man who rescued him while unconscious. Miss Naomi accompanied them to the coal camp.

The new road will take off down Lost Spring Canyon and thence on to a connection with the Price to Green River road at Desert instead of following Cottonwood Wash the Green River.

The case of the state against Henry Jones, the Mohland negro accused of robbery at that place, took up the whole of the time of the district court Tuesday. Attorneys A. M. Truman and H. W. Dalton, appointed by the court to defend Jones, certainly put up a good case for the colored gentleman, but to no avail. The jury returned a verdict of guilty within half an hour after retiring to the jury room and the defendant was given an indeterminate sentence of not less than five years and from that up to life imprisonment as provided for in such cases.

Among those to graduate from the Utah Agricultural college this year with the degree of bachelor of science are Lowry Nelson of Ferron, agriculture; Andrew O. Larsen of Castle Dale, entomology, and Archer A. Willey of Castle Dale, general science.

The members of the sugar beet acreage committee have little to report in the way of news of the promised railroad and factory. Receipt of the signed contracts and the data on resources of the county was acknowledged by the officials of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, but it may be as to the construction of the railroad to Emery.

PREACHER IS OPTIMISTIC

Rev. P. A. Simpkin Talks of Mineral Wealth of State.

Despite the fact that Utah's mines produce annually $62,000,000 worth of copper, lead and other mineral ores, these mines could be made to double that output with proper development and management, according to Rev. P. A. Simpkin, who addressed the members of the commercial club and a number of the representatives of the Salt Lake City stock exchange at luncheon last Saturday.

"There is no question but that the output of mineral wealth in Utah could be doubled within a very short time," said he. "The minerals are here. They have only to be uncovered. It is a fact that mining properties in this state are not being developed as fast as they should be. Concerted action, I believe should be made on the part of business men of the state to promote judicious investment in mining properties in Utah. I don't mean wildcat speculation in mining stocks. I mean the legitimate investment in, and the development of bonafide mining claims which are known to contain rich deposits of copper, lead and other valuable ores.

"The welfare of this city depends largely on the mining industry and minerals enough lie right at our doors to make thousands wealthy. It is the mining interests which have saved Salt Lake City from being a cow town today. Mines are the backbone of the commerce of the state and a shutdown of the big producers would mean that grass would soon be growing in some of our streets."

The speaker said that there were great opportunities for development in the Uintah Basin—one of the richest undeveloped sections of the United States.

FOR THE OLD FOLKS

Free Transportation and Entertainment—Dedication of Capitol.

All old folks in the state of Utah over 70 years old will be brought to Salt Lake City to attend the ceremonies in connection with the formal opening of the new state house free of charge and arrangements are under way to entertain the pioneers during their stay in the city as guests of various civic clubs and the old folks committees of the different stakes in Salt Lake City, says the Deseret News.

The Oregon Short Line, the Salt Lake Route and the Denver and Rio Grande, together with the interurban roads, have agreed to furnish special trains from all parts of the state to carry those over 70 years of age free. D. S. Spencer, general passenger agent of the Oregon Short Line, is the chairman of the arrangements committee.

It is estimated by the traffic departments of the various railroads that at least five special trains will be required to haul the old folks. Census figures show more persons over 70 years of age in Utah than in any other state in the union.

The dedicatory exercises for the capitol are set for June 28th. Some of the special trains will be started from the distant points on June 27th.

Aristocratic Hares Raised at Green River.

B. F. Miller, publisher of the Green River Dispatch, is a Belgian hare fancier and is making a fine success of breeding fancy pedigreed Red Rufus. The Miller rabbitries are models of cleanliness and system, the hutch card and filing system being perfect. Each hare occupies separate hutch that is kept scrupulously clean and disinfected often. Hares are carefully and regularly fed, watered and dicted.

The Miller rabbitries keep accurate records of each animal sold, and of each customer, so it is always easy to match an order to suit the customer, or furnish new pedigrees for anything sold in the past.

The stud bucks and breeding does are registered in American Pet Stock association and eligible to any show bench. "Nothing But the Best" is Miller's motto and if you want really good animals write him. Fancy young, three to five months old, four dollars each; mature bucks and does, $7.50 dollars each. Pedigree with every animal.

Address the Miller Rabbitries, P. O. Box 48, Green River, Utah.—Advt.

The June issue of the Railroad Red Book, the official publication of the passenger department of the Denver and Rio Grande, is devoted almost exclusively to Utah subjects. In the advance copies of the June number are found seven stories about Utah.

The leading article in the magazine is entitled "America's Last Frontier" and pertains to Southeastern Utah. It was written by W. E. Zuppan of Ogden. Another Ogden writer, James P. Casey, secretary of the Ogden Publicity bureau, contributed an article on "Ogden As a Summer Resort."

Other articles about Utah are "Salt Lake For Tourists," "The Hot Mineral Springs of Monroe, Utah," "Fish Lake, the Angler's Paradise," "Utah Coal Production," "Potash In Lake Muds of Western Utah," and "Mineral Riches of Henry Mountains."

The last named article was contributed by Dr. D. H. Lyon of the United States bureau of mines.
