According to the Philadelphia Inquirer, a French company seems to have succeeded in getting ahead of the American projectors of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Panama, in having received an ample land grant and right of way concession from the Government of Columbia. The company will begin work immediately, and the canal will be completed in about five years, when the great Atlantic and Pacific oceans will be united, and vessels will no longer be obliged to take the perilous routes "around the Horn" or "through the Magellan Straits" in order to get from Philadelphia to San Francisco. The ports at the termini of the canal are to be free, and the tolls for vessels passing through will be made as low as possible.

Buffalo Express: When a man goes to an evening party and another man sits down on his plug hat, and sits there till the hat resembles an attenuated pan-cake, and when a mutual friend takes that hat and jams it into shape, and brushes it the wrong way with his elbow, and hands it to the party of the first part, and when the party of the first part places it upon his head and goes home without knowing that anything has happened, the indications are that beer was one of the principle features of the entertainment.

A Western member of Congress lounged into a bar-room of a Washington hotel one morning recently, to get his matutinal invigorator. When the necessary utensils were placed before him, the Hoosier statesman deliberately filled the glass to the brim with whisky. "Goodness gracious," exclaimed the bar-keeper, "that isn't a drink; that's a temperance lecture." The members face lights up with an expression of pride whenever he relates the incident.

A ten-year-old school-boy in Holyoke, Mass., lately refused to do his writing lesson, because he couldn't lift his arm to his desk, and on examination proved that his collar-bone was broken. Further examination showed that the accident happened two days before; meanwhile, he performed all his duties and attended school without complaint, fearing his parents. They must be nice parents.

In a breach of promise action in Scotland, about forty letters from the defendent to the fair plaintiff were read. Each letter contained from thirty to one hundred crosses, which represented kisses. One letter, embellished with a string of thirty seven crosses, contained this explanatory remark: "The kisses is not so good upon paper as they are naked."

In New York City, during May ninety-five business failures occurred, the liabilities being more than $5,000,000 and the assets less than $1,000,000.

You needn't feel mortified if your napkin has holes in it, so long as it is clean. The holes in this article of table lined are often the cleanest part.
