MEAD'S "SNOW ANGEL."

A letter from Rome says: In the studio of Larkin G. Mead I saw recently his first embodiment in marble for America of his "Snow Angel," or the figure which he made in snow one New Year's eve at Brattleboro, Vt., when a lad, inspired by his earliest emotions of art, and stimulated by seeing some marble effigies in the shop of an Italian artisan who worked in his native town. The colossal figure which he then made lasted three weeks and astonished the neighborhood, both by its conception and execution. In the marble it is of statuette size, and gracefully conceived, exhibiting a tall, youthful angel, with folded wings enveloping his person, head uplifted, with a lovely expression of new life and all its hopes and dreams. In general treatment and conception it reminds one of the best feeling for pure art of the Tuscan school of the time of Donatello, but with more poetical sentiment than he indulged in. Snow has fallen on its wings and person and half drapes both with a pendant fringe of purest white. Little birds are nestling under the feathers and in the hands, chirping gratefully for the protection given them. As a symbol of the new-born season in its youthful beauty and strength, its provident care for those needing protection, and the promise of a fruitful manhood, Mr. Mead's conception in these hard, realistic days of art is particularly grateful to the æsthetic sense, and deserves to be perpetuated in a colossal, permanent form, as was the ephemeral, original creation of snow.

The latest anecdote about the old lady who thinks that she "knows everything," is about how she went to a church sociable, and as she entered the room the young ladies said: "Good evening, Auntie, we are glad you came; we are going to have tableaux this evening." "Yes; I know, I know," was the reply, "I smelt 'em when I first came in."

Mix HUB PUNCH with Ice Water, Cold Tea, Lemonade, or Soda. It is unanimously pronounced unrivalled.
