

Saint Mary's Beacon,

LEONARDTOWN, MD.

THURSDAY MORNING, Dec. 13th, 1883.

MONUMENT TO THE MARYLAND PILGRIMS.

As the 25th of March, 1884, will be the 250th anniversary of the landing of the Maryland Pilgrims at St. Mary's, it is proposed in Baltimore circles to prospect for funds to erect a monument in that city to commemorate the act. It was contemplated originally, it seems, to locate the monument at or near the spot in this county where the Pilgrims actually landed, but Baltimore, we learn, has now been substituted, and it is in that city that the proposed monument is to be erected. It impresses us as quite an original idea to erect a monument to perpetuate the memory of an act an hundred or more miles distant from the place where it occurred and in preference to the place itself. St. Mary's river is indeed remote from the centres of population, but that it is difficult of access, we deny, and cite the Chesapeake, the Potomac and St. Mary's river as evidence of the fact. Our local feeling may somewhat warp our judgment, but we certainly think that a monument to commemorate the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers would develop deeper feelings, and be more appropriate and impressive, if located on the banks of the St. Mary's than at any other point in the State.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The message of President Arthur was sent to Congress on Tuesday of last week. It is unpartisan, of readable length, plain spoken, sufficiently comprehensive, and to the point. Among its recommendations is one that prompts steps should be taken to construct an interior coast line of defence by water ways across the peninsula of Florida, along the coast of Florida to Hampton Roads, between the Chesapeake Bay and Delaware river and through Cape Cod. The President opposes any reduction in the revenues of the government. He recommends that the rejected trade dollar be taken by the mints and depositories as bullion at slight discount upon silver. The Secretary of the Treasury proposes that the trade dollar, be exchanged for the legal tender dollar, dollar for dollar, and be thus driven from circulation. The President wants $60,000,000 taken from the surplus in the treasury to rehabilitate the navy. He does not look with favor upon the proposed postal telegraph. He invites Congress to extend educational facilities in portions of the country where great illiteracy exists. He wants Congress to repeal the act making Utah a territory and to assume control over the Mormons by means of a Commission to blot out polygamy. He recommends that Congress should pass laws to protect people from the injustice practiced by railway corporations in freight charges and closes his message by suggesting to Congress the passage of a new Civil rights bill guaranteeing colored people the rights which were intended to be secured them by the 14th Amendment. Though wide differences of opinion undoubtedly exist as to the merits of some of the President's suggestions, none of them have yet been assailed by the democratic press either in a hostile or captious spirit.

THE ALEWIFE.

In the Eastern Ledger, of a late date, appears an entertaining article on "The Fish called Alewife." As our people are interested in anything that pertains to this fish, we reproduce parts of it, promising, that a few years ago, a newspaper article on this alewife would have occasioned the remark, that the writer was hard pushed for a subject. Then, although the good qualities of the alewife as a manure was well known to tide-water farmers, it had not begun to be worked up as a commercial fertilizer, and a large "school" of these fish was not, as now, a rare sight in our waters. The common alewife has now become a fish of literature, and "grave writers are searching his habits, investigating his habits, following with the pen his pursues, and writing him up generally from his cradle in the great deep to his grave as a fertilizer in the farmer's fields."

The Ledger goes on to say: "Alewife our second fish is called in the Delaware and Chesapeake bays, (corrected to old-wife by the fishermen,) but his scientific name is Brevoortia tyrannus. In Virginia he becomes 'green-tail' and 'bug-fish,' and further south 'fat-back' while in Maine his name is 'pogy,' in Massachusetts and Connecticut 'menhaden,' and in New York and New Jersey, 'moss-back'."

"The devil goes took the shape of an alewife or mossback when he seized Antony Van Corlear, the transformer, as related in Knickerbocker's history of New York."

"It was a dark and stormy night when the good Antony arrived at the creek, sagely denominated Harlem River, which separates Manhattan from the mainland. The wind was high, the elements in an uproar and no Charon could be found to ferry the adventurous souther of brass across the water. For a short time he responded like an impatient ghost upon the brink of the abyss, his errand, took a hearty and unceremonious look at the elements in an uproar and no Charon could be found to ferry the adventurous souther of brass across the water. For a short time he responded like an impatient ghost upon the brink of the abyss, his errand, took a hearty and unceremonious look at the elements in an uproar and no Charon could be found to ferry the adventurous souther of brass across the water.

THE ALEWIFE.

The range of this fish extends from the Bay of Fundy to the St. John's river, Florida, and all down this coast line there are fish factories where the menhaden are worked up into oil and commercial fertilizers, and from the first of April to the first of November thousands of men are at work catching the fish by the millions. The trade report for 1881, for instance, places the alewife catch at 454,192,000 fish. A vast amount of capital is invested in this industry. There have been fears that the menhaden schools would be destroyed by the progress of this industry, and with their disappearance from our coast, bays and rivers, would disappear also these fish, notably the tailor or blue fish, which feed upon the alewife; but this is not likely to happen, at least for years to come, as the fecundity of the alewife is wonderful. Some authorities say that two millions of eggs have been taken from a single fish. The number used, or that can be used, by the factories, is a very small fraction of the immense number that swarm on the Atlantic coast, within the limits above named every season; and a not much larger fraction of the number destroyed by other fish every year. Professor Baird, a recognized authority on all fish subjects, estimates that ten thousand millions of alewife are destroyed daily by bluefish alone during the season of four months on the New England coast; and Professor Goode, reasoning upon Professor Baird's data, concludes that in the whole range of the alewife and in the season of six months three thousand billions of alewife are annually destroyed."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8, '83.

Messrs. Editors:—In perusing the interesting columns of the BEACON of the 6th inst., we see that our odorous friend, "H. B." (which is "Hot Box") has again fallen into error—this time by accusing us of having suggested "the removal of the present P. M." (which is postmaster) at St. Clement's Bay. We simply called attention to a communication published in the Enterprise, in which the writer (not we) suggested a change in that office because of alleged irregularities and pious mismanagement of the present incumbent. But seeing the flattering requirements named for a more suitable "P. M." (which is postmaster) we did think we would take time by the fore-lock, as "they" say, in behalf of that suffering community, and especially in the interest of the "gentleman" who, above all others of our limited acquaintance in that "delivered" seemed so admirably qualified to fill the bill, thinking, of course, that the influence of our "more fortunate perternity," as his old and familiar friend, would be acceptable and sufficient in accomplishing the change suggested by that aggrieved correspondent. We had, and have, no prejudice against the present "H. B., competent and trustworthy" P. M., that office (the complaint referred to seemed to be based upon the fact that there was a superabundance of these good qualities exercised there, especially on Sundays) and while we have not the pleasure of his personal acquaintance, we are persuaded that he nor the many other postmasters possessed of the same commendable virtues and resident of the county will not feel over-flattered at the easy and pleasing (to H. B.) "requisites for a first-class postmaster" which he deems so essential, viz.: "no conscience, plenty of brass and little sense," in the first of which, at least, H. B. seems to abound. Indeed, neither may we feel much complimented by his modest disclaimer of having "fallen so low" as to apply for or accept an office—even a postoffice—at the hands of the present regime; and it is to be hoped that these gentlemen in your county who have so long and faithfully occupied offices under "the present regime" will not be so regardless of the public good, under a sense of self-respect, as to resign because, forthwith, through the kind information of H. B., they may suddenly discover their sad and fallen estate. Oh! H. B., H. B., thou odoriferous "Hot Box," don't be so sensitive in your noble feelings, nor so very fastidious with your official associations. And for the public weal, do not be so reckless in your pleasing and back-handed compliments to your "honest and trustworthy" neighbors. And should you ever fall so low as to apply for an office at the "sticky hands" of the present regime, (and you may yet in this particular case, it was the office rather than the man,) don't you know, H. B., that the recommendation of "a gentleman," while being much more difficult for you to obtain, would not be as potent and appropriate, in your case, as the power and influence of our "more fortunate perternity," who is so much better qualified to rightly appreciate and more clearly represent your charming qualities and fitness for office under the present or any other regime? The Weak and the Impure.

The merry little mountain brook, as it lightly dances over the rocks and sparkles in the sunshine on its way down to the river, is pure and clean. It is active; therefore, it is healthy. It is vigorous; therefore, it resists impurity.

But the sluggish pool, where the current is not strong enough to keep the water in motion, is stagnant and foul. Dirt and rubbish are thrown into it, and stay there. Impurities and vile odors make it a breeder of disease and an object to be avoided.

When the blood is strong and rich and red, and vigorously courses its accustomed rounds through arteries and veins, the system is hearty and healthy.

When the blood is thin and poor and weak, impurities and defilements creep into it, and it has no strength to cast them out. Then the system runs down.

Brown's Iron Bitters contains the only preparation of iron which can enrich the blood, and make it pure, vigorous, and healthy. A dollar bottle, at the nearest druggist.

IN MEMORY OF RICHARD H. REEDER.

During the present year death has taken from our midst several of the most worthy and respected citizens of our county. The reflection of their surviving fellow-citizens put a just tribute to their character for industry and exemplary conduct, but who can fully describe the lasting sorrow and affliction which the melancholy separation caused in the family circle in which they were so beloved and honored.

The death of Richard H. Reeder causes reflection (not upon the brevity of life, for he was well advanced in years, but upon the loss which a community suffers when men such as he are taken from them. I have frequently been present when Mr. Reeder has been the subject of conversation, and all joined in the declaration that he was a man of most estimable character. I know of no man more worthy of such expression, for he had many noble attributes of a perfect gentleman. He was well educated, intelligent, well informed, friendly, hospitable and with all modesty, engaging and pleasant in his manners. Those who were intimate with him, became his friends, and no one properly acquainted with the gentleman, could be without regretting the great loss which the community has sustained by his death. He was a devoted husband and father. In this brief testimonial of the worth of my departed friend, I have said nothing but what he believed to be true, and when he was present, and those who knew Mr. Reeder will confirm my estimate of his character.
