MILWAUKEE PEOPLE

Could Hardly Believe It. A Prominent Woman Saved From Death by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suppose a large number of people who read of my remarkable cure will hardly believe it; had I not experienced it myself, I know that I should not.

MRS. RAINE E. KOCH.

"I suffered for months with troubles peculiar to women which gradually broke down my health and my very life. I was nearly insane with pain at times, and no human skill I consulted in Milwaukee could bring me relief.

"My attention was called to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; the first bottle brought relief, and the second bottle an absolute cure. I could not believe it myself, and felt sure it was only temporary, but blessed fact, I have now been well for a year, enjoy the best of health, and cannot in words express my gratitude. Sincerely yours, SADIE E. KOCH, 124 10th St., Milwaukee, Wis."—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

A TEN DOLLAR BILL.

BY EDWARD B. CLARK.

Mrs. Phyllis Brown reached her little North side apartment after a round of calls to find her mother there looking somewhat faint and more than somewhat worried. The mother lived in a southern suburb and the daughter was not expecting a visit from her that day.

"What's the matter, mamma?" said Mrs. Brown, anxiously. "You are looking all used up."

"Oh, there's matter enough, Phyllis. I'm always unfortunate; never seem to be able to do anything right, and I suppose because I'm near sighted everybody imposes upon me. I came in to do some shopping at Meadow's. Clara wanted me to buy some lace for her and gave me a ten dollar bill. You know George has been out of work for a month and we've had to economize dreadfully. I didn't bring another cent with me, just a bill. I had my commutation ticket. A ten dollar bill in my purse. She told me it was silver and said that she'd rather give me something smaller, but that she didn't have it. Well, I reached Meadow's and went straight to the lace counter, where I bought a dollar's worth. It was Saturday. I gave the clerk my ten dollar bill, but in a few minutes he came to me the lace dollar and 50 cents in change. I just took it for granted that I had given him a two dollar bill and not noticing the change I put it in my purse. I was in a hurry and I was tired, and it was impossible there was any mistake about it. He was almost rude and looked at me as though he suspected I'd tried to cheat him. People begin to get tired and I feel so nervous, and I came away. I think I'll have Clara to see, if she will tell me what I ought to do. I feel as though I could die over the matter."

Mrs. Brown's face was the face of the head of the advertising department of one of Chicago's great dailies. Her husband knows the entertaining report of every department in every big store in the city. Mrs. Brown knew that, if she intimated a desire to the man behind the counter at Meadow's, he would take her word for the ten dollar mistake.

"Never mind, mother. I'll fix the thing up for you in a jiffy. You go home and get rested. You look all tired out. Where's the lace? Oh, I see you have it in your purse. Give it to me. Now, you go home and get rested. Don't worry about the ten dollars. I'll make it all right."

Mrs. Brown put on her bonnet and went downtown again. She walked around Meadow's store three times before she had courage enough to go in. She went to Mr. Highbridge. He saw her coming and a smile of amusement spread over his face.

"I know what you want, Mrs. Brown," he said, as she came up to him. "You want to tell me that there was just twenty dollars in your purse when you gave Mary Ann a ten dollar bill to pay the butcher's bill with, and that she made a mistake in giving you a two dollar bill in change, which she put back into the drawer. You did not look at the bill when she gave it to you, but put it in your purse, and, of course, thought it was the dollars. Isn't it awful? How careless we are, Mrs. Highbridge? But, of course, it must be done. Take the eight dollars back right away, and I will report you the next time I come in. Your loving and mistaken son, MOTHER."
