Local Dottings.

Sheep. Monday last does not into a flock of sheep belonging to Mr. John C. Harry, of the 7th district, and killed four. Up to the present writing Mr. Harry has only succeeded in killing one dog.

Festival. We direct attention of lovers of pleasure to the advertisement of a Festival for the benefit of St. Andrew's Parish. The entertainment is in charge of ladies who understand how to manage it and will be well worth attending.

Wheat Prospect. A farmer friend informs us that the wheat crop of a tenant of Mr. King Clarke, of the 6th district, has been ruined by a small white worm which has attacked and secured a lodgment in the stalk of the wheat. Damage by the fly is complained of in several neighborhoods.

Lightning. During the recent storm, lightning struck a house near Sacred Heart Church, occupied by a colored man named Chesley. The building was ignited in four or five places, several of the inmates were stunned and a cat, sitting beside one of the women, was killed. The occurrence was witnessed by neighbors and assistance rendered in time to extinguish the flames.

Appointments. The Board of Public Works at its last Thursday's meeting appointed to the command of the Oyster Boat Steamer Gov. Thomas, Capt. Jeff. D. Loker, of the 2nd district; and to the command of the Police Steamer Louisa Whyte, Capt. Jno. H. Buckler, of the 6th district. Mr. Loker is a well-known politician. Mr. Buckler is a young man, the son of the late Jno. H. Buckler whose ardent democratic principles he inherits.

A Bastardy Act. Recently an unknown party shot and killed a fine valuable colt belonging to Mr. Z. Taylor Mattingly, of this district. The shooting was done with a pistol. As it is considered the truth of the old adage that "indistinctness never comes singly," the same gentleman has recently lost a good cow and a fine and highly prized hog. We hope that the efforts to discover the miscreants who shot the colt may prove successful. Catch the man and we believe that such an example will be made of him as will effectively put a stop to similar deeds hereafter.

True Blue. Among the visitors to our town last Tuesday was Lieut. Demetrius Cooze, one of the recent applicants for the command of the Police Steamer Gov. Thomas. When asked how he took his defeat, he said: "I made the best fight I know how; am whipped and am satisfied. Have no complaints to make. The man who beat me is a clever gentleman." These sentiments may not be truly democratic, but we think they are. "Mett" is human, has his faults like other men but his words and acts have the ring of true metal and show that he deserves rewards even though he obtains none and is a true man.

Those Resolutions. At present we have neither time nor space to spare for a coproxy and do not propose to enter into one. We deem, however, that after the unwarranted attack made upon us in the last Beacon that some explanation is due. After their reception, the resolutions of the Teachers' Association were held over for one paper. The Secretary called in our office and we explained to him satisfactorily, we think, why such was the case. We also promised him that in our next issue we would say that there was no mention in the previous edition was due to no negligence on his part. We have no quarrel with the Teachers for thinking as they please, and do not believe that they attach blame to us in the matter. The responsible party for the delay in the insertion of the resolutions is our senior Editor, and if the writer of the attack above referred to feels aggrieved by his action, by calling upon him at this office any satisfaction can be obtained.

St. Augustine's Items. From our Regular Correspondent: Frequent showers are beneficial to vegetation. Corn that is up is looking well and growing rapidly. The first planting of sweet potatoes is completed. Mr. Freeman, of Hick Neck, has set out 25,000 hills and offers beautiful plants at $1.00 per 1,000. A goodly number of colored folks have gone to the Eastern Shore of Va. to pick strawberries. So far as we know, the pickers are giving from 15 to 25 cents per dozen. The last of the visitors from the Tropical world have made their appearance, and the strokes of the red-headed woodpecker as he beats decaying limbs, &c., for insects, and the beautiful lay of the speckled-headed thrush is heard at intervals during the day.

There was Mass at St. Michael's, 16th, and Sunday school at Friendship, M. E. church on the same day. It keeps cool, and we presume this is the reason why insects are so annoying to melon vines and cabbage plants. Some of our neighbors have replanted their cabbage "squares" several times.

Thanks. Our thanks are respectfully returned Hon. A. P. Gorman for a package of garden seed and for the Compendium of the Tenth Census.

Personal. Dr. A. Jack Spalding, of this village, is on a brief visit to Washington. It is rumored that he will not return alone, but that youth and beauty will attend his voyage. We have our present ready, but acknowledge that it is not commensurate with the Doctor's deserts. If it were ourselves and all our friends would be bankrupt.

Monday last Mr. E. D. R. Mayne, of the Washington bar, paid our office a brief visit and left as a memento a good advertisement. He is a clever gentleman and we hope that he may often call upon us.

Death of Col. Taveau. The Baltimore American, of the 5th inst., says: Col. A. L. Taveau, who died at No. 80 North Calvert street on Sunday, was born in the city of Charleston, S. C., on the 19th of January, 1828, and was the son of Augustin Thomas Taveau, the first of the name in America. His father emigrated to this country in 1810, and was a descendant of the ancient and noble family of Taveau de Mortimer, in Poitou, France, who married Martha Caroline Swinton, of Swinton, a family from Berwick-upon-Tweed, Scotland, a family from whom even Sir Walter Scott was proud to trace his lineage. The high distinguished scholar and statesman Hugh Swinton Legare and Colonel Taveau were first cousins, their mothers being sisters, and Mr. Legare took his name from his maternal grandfather Hugh Swinton.

Col. Taveau received a classical education, and under the tuition of the Hon. Jas. Louis Pettigrew, was admitted to the Charleston bar on his twenty-first birthday. After an association at the bar of several years with Gen. James Simons, a sick friend caused him to make a tour of Europe, where he remained for three years. During a visit to Gibraltar he became acquainted with Consul Sprague's family, and eventually married Delphine Sprague, third daughter of Horatio Sprague, of Boston, Mass. On his return to South Carolina he abandoned the profession of law and followed the occupation of his father as rice planter. Upon the breaking out of the war he immediately took a prominent position in the Southern cause and raised the first troop of cavalry of the Confederate service, at Adams Run, S. C., which was fully commissioned and armed by Gov. Pickens.

After the battle of Leesburg, General N. G. Evans was ordered to Adams Run, S. C. With a soldier's eye, he immediately saw the availability of the young cavalry officer's talents, and detailed him as an aide on his staff. He served with him the greater part of the war. Colonel Taveau having devoted his entire large fortune to the Southern cause, in the shape of Confederate securities, found himself, like thousands of others at the end of the war, penniless. Being discouraged by the state of things at the South after the war, he established himself in Maryland as a farmer in St. Mary's county. Latterly he removed to Baltimore and renewed his pursuit of literature, to which he had been inclined in the beginning of his career. The first fruit was a volume of poems published by Putnam Sons in 1854, the principal subject being "Montezuma; or the fall of the Aztec Empire," which was favorably received by the press. It is well known that he has been engaged on further literary work, which, it is hoped will, eventually be put to press for the benefit of American literature. He resides with his family, at 809 North Calvert street, during the past few years. His circle of friends was limited and select, and his home the scene of hospitality and love. He lived in an atmosphere of peace and refined affection. He attended St. Peter's Church, where he was much esteemed. He was suddenly called away by a brief sickness. His remains were taken to Charleston, S. C., to be interred in the family lot there. His funeral took place at 9 A. M. yesterday at his residence. A noble soldier, a cultivated gentleman and a genial and gifted man, his memory is cherished in the hearts of all who knew him.

Briefs. Strawberries have put in an appearance. Fenwick & Morgan sell the best straw hat in the county for the least money. Squire Camalier has taken charge of the new adjutant's and fitted it up as an office. We invite the attention of our readers to the new advertisements in our present issue. A few tobacco plants have been "stuck" in the land was ready some of our farmers could plant their entire crop. The young people of the village are busy getting up a party. It is to be at Fenwick's Hotel next Friday night. The publication of the General Laws has prevented us from giving, in this issue, our usual amount of reading matter. Our Senior very much enjoyed his recent trip west. He reports the damage by late storms to have been very great. The young men of this section expect to have a first-class baseball nine this Summer and are preparing a fine ground. Last Saturday, Mr. Wm. M. Freeman caught in his fish trap, near Blackstone's Island, a sturgeon nearly nine feet long. We are unable to get into type for this week's paper the favor of a Washington correspondent. If accepted it will appear in our next. Read the Oyster and Tobacco Inspection Laws published in today's issue. Parties not subscribers can obtain a free copy by forwarding their address. The last issue of the Chicago Farm, Field and Nursery contains a well-written article from the pen of G. G. Jones entitled "Lower Maryland—Answer to Many Inquiries." We expect soon to republish it.

We return thanks to Mr. Cecil Morgan for an invitation to attend the Commencement of the Law Department of Georgetown University. We are also under obligations to Dr. Whit Hammett and Mr. Paul Combs for similar favors. If you desire anything in the clothing line write or call upon Mr. F. M. Camalier, corner of Penna. avenue and 2nd street, Washington, D. C. "Tom" is with the largest clothing house in the city and we hope that St. Mary's people will give him a call. Representative Compton has recently introduced the following bills of county interest: To pay P. Gough Edelin, $42—this amount having been advanced by him to Nancy Taliaferro upon a revenue check presented to him, payment having since been refused at the United States sub-treasury in Baltimore on the ground that Taliaferro was erroneously pensioned; also to pay H. B. Langley, John R. Walton and Edward Walton, heirs of the late John Walton, $12,234 for damages to property, destruction of fruit crops and buildings by the United States troops which quartered on his premises.
