

Life's Mission.
Life is wasted if we spend it
Hilly dreaming how to die.
Study how to live, not end it.
Work to finish, not to fly.
Godly living—best preparing
For a life with God above.
Work! and banish anxious caring!
Death ne'er comes to active love.
Death is but an opening portal
Out of life to life on high:
Man is vital, more than mortal,
Meant to live, not doomed to die.
Praise for present mercies giving,
With good works your age endow;
Death defy by Christlike living,
Heaven attain by service now.
—NEWMAS HALL.

TOOTHACHE.—No complaint in the world, perhaps, elicits less sympathy than toothache. Many is the time and oft I have heard people laughed at for having it. This was called "trying to laugh them out of it." Sudden mirthful affections of the mind have often, I grant you, scared away a trilling pain, but never the agony of an aching tooth. The most common kind of toothache is probably that caused by a simple inflammation of the pulp of the tooth, which generally is a decayed one. The inflammation itself is the result of cold. Bad enough is this kind of toothache, and it is apt to recur again and again from the same cause, in spite of all pain-killing nostrums that can be applied.

The radical cure for toothache of this sort is so simple that a child can understand its why and wherefore. Go boldly to a good dentist and have it cleaned and filled. And let me tell you this, that cleaning is a very essential part of the operation. Go in the interval of pain, and this latter may in all cases be removed by rest, warmth in bed, and an aperient of a cooling kind. Here is something that few people know—saline aperients are most valuable in the treatment of all trifling inflammations; they reduce the general bulk of the blood and remove inflammatory products. The roughest forms of saline are the Epsom and Glauber salts; the milder, Seidlitz powders, Pulla and other natural waters.

But as toothache is likely to recur, those who suffer by it should see to the state of the general health, and take a mild tonic if need be, and, above all, make a habit of brushing the teeth after every meal. Far too little care is taken of the teeth. From early infancy children ought to be taught the use of the toothbrush—a soft one, be it remembered—and chided if at any time they neglect it. At the same time, it is the duty of the parents to notice that at the period of second dentition things are going on regularly; and loose teeth should be removed, lest they cause disfigurement in the new rows coming up.

Never eat to repletion; toothache may be caused by indigestion. To remove the actual pain, chloroform and crocote may be applied with a morsel of lint over the aching tooth again and again, until numbness ensues. This is, however, a doubtful, if not a dangerous remedy, and should be used, therefore, with great caution. Actual decay of teeth is a disease mostly of a constitutional kind, and nearly always requires the advice of a doctor, combined with the work of a dentist.

SCALPED BY THE APACHES.—A sick and sorry-looking specimen of humanity stepped from the passenger train last night and climbed into the waiting wagon and was driven to the country. His name was Samuel Neff. He is a man of about 30 years of age, and his parents reside in Pine Creek. Young Neff is just home from Arizona where he has been prospecting in the mines and acting as a scout on the hunt for Indians. Unfortunately for him he found the murderous red devils, and they almost made mince meat of him. One day while riding through a canon he was shot through the shoulder and fell from his horse. His assailants, finding that he was not dead, tortured him outrageously. They cut gashes in his face and all over his body, applied fire to his feet and hands, and ended their brutal assaults by scalping him. He suffered untold agonies and prayed that death might relieve him. Finally he fell into a faint, and upon awakening he found himself being kindly cared for in a miner's cabin. The miner had picked him up and carried him a long distance on horseback. Neff suffered weeks of excruciating pain and raved with a fever, and as soon as he was able to travel he took the road for home.

Last evening a Chronicle reporter asked Neff how it felt to have his hair lifted. "It is a dreadful sensation," he said. "One thinks, as the skin is being torn from the skull, that his feet is coming right up through his body to the top of his head. Oh, it is terrible. It is so painful that you cannot utter a cry, and thousands of stars dance before your eyes. You imagine red hot needles are darting in and out of your flesh and you clasp your hands so closely that the finger nails cut into the flesh. I would rather be run through a threshing machine, ground up in a sausage mill or thrown under a locomotive than to ever undergo such another ordeal. It makes me shudder to think of the tortures I have gone through with, and I never want to look upon the face of another Indian."

"Do many persons survive the operation?" interrupted the reporter. "No, I have only heard of two or three men besides myself who have lost their hair by the scalping-knife and then lived to tell of it."

"Mr. Neff, do you think the hair will ever grow out again?" "Oh, no, I shall always have a bald spot up there. The skin was torn off for a space of four inches square, and I'm afraid it will never heal entirely. Even if it does heal over the bare place will always be so painful that I cannot touch it. I keep my head tied up in cotton and sweet oil. You can see that my beauty has been considerably marred. These frightful gashes across my face will go with me to the grave."—Chico (Cal.) Chronicle.

A PEEP AT THE FIRST CENTURY.—A correspondent of the Detroit Free Press writing from Naples, under recent date says:

The art of Pompeii (its marbles and wall painting) is almost wholly removed to the museum at Naples. What remains are its deserted street, temples and dwellings, these all lying open to the sky, not a roof or door, save one or two temporary modern ones, are to be found here. Of course, nothing really new can be said about Pompeii, yet it is an ever fresh wonder and unlike any other ruins, in that it brings you so close to the buildings, to those who lived and moved and had their being in these streets and houses 1,800 years ago. The baker's oven is so perfect it might be used to-day, in fact the bread of his last bake also remains a little stale, but perfect in shape, with the baker's stamp upon it. The bath, the fountain, look as if they might have been used yesterday. In one corner of a room, bedded in the ashes, lies a skeleton, the volcanic ash, that was his pillow for near 2,000 years, undisturbed that he still may rest upon it.

The case of another who had turned to dust is shown, still clutching the money belt, fastened round his waist. Another, a delicate woman's form lying with face buried in her folded arms as if trying to shut out the stifling smoke. Another, a woman and child lying close together. Another, an old gentleman lying peacefully with his head resting on one arm, as if in sleep. It is difficult to analyze the feelings that crowd upon you while looking at these evidences of a catastrophe so terrible. It is with an effort, you realize, that it occurred at the beginning of the Christian era—that the bread you are looking at is older than the earliest books of the New Testament; that the old gentleman so quietly resting on his arm may have conversed with St. Paul and St. Peter, too, if Catholic tradition is correct.

"More trouble about capital," said the train boy, diving into his chest for a Lat Sunday magazine and lifting a kiln dried orange.

"What now?" asked the brakeman, putting back a daily paper and lifting a kiln dried orange.

"Best girl on a strike," replied the news agent, "demands shorter hours Saturday night, 8 to 10, with 15 minutes intermission to take breath and listen for the old man at 9, extra carmel for over time, no new girls to be taken on without consent of the present force of employees, and a half day off for the matinee every time a new dude comes to town."

"What's capital going to do about it?" "Hard telling," says the news agent, with a sigh. "I'm holding out just now and offer to take her back and sign the old schedule and no questions asked, but there's a survivor's party camped right outside of town, a 'Mikado' company making a four nights' stay at the opera house and a Salvation Army storming the town, and the girl holds the key to the situation. Reckon I'll have to give in and sign the new scale."

WANTED HIM TO REST.—The Macon Telegraph says that after a recent stump speech by Gen. Gordon, who wants to be Governor of Georgia, a countryman who had listened carefully was heard to mumble to himself: "Well! He did all the nightin' endurin' the war; he whipped all the Yankees, he saved Georgia an' South Carolina an' Florida an' Louisiana an' the rest of the States, an' he built all the railroads by himself. That fellow needs rest, an' I ain't for crowdin' the Governor's job onto him. Bacon is a big, strong fellow, an' seems to want to do something. I reckon we'd better let him try it awhile."

Ladies, it will cost you but fifty cents to get a bottle of Vinegar Bitters Cordial. This Cordial is a clear, dark red color, and has a delicious taste. It is a most invigorating tonic, and is a gentle, painless, but thorough cathartic. It helps digestion, cures headache, bilious attacks, constipation, piles, hives, and strengthens the whole system.

A well-known minister was sent South from New Jersey a few years ago to labor among the colored people. They received him with many demonstrations of joy, and at the first meeting which he held one old colored preacher prayed for him with great earnestness, thus: "O Lord! bless dis yer dear brudder what's come down from de Norf to preach de gospel to us. 'Nout him wid de coal ile of salvation, and set him on fire."

A firm here wrote to a Western piano dealer who owed them money: "Dear Sir—Will you be kind enough to send us the amount of your bill. Yours truly," To this the firm received the following reply: "Gentlemen—Your request is granted with pleasure. The amount of my bill is $375. Yours very truly,—Musical Courier."

Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron combines so many virtues that if the system is not entirely disabled by disease a practical cure is sure to follow. It is the greatest nerve tonic, a blood tonic and invigorator. All druggists sell it.

"Ergo," remarked the professor to his class, after a long preamble. "Ergo"—then he stopped to take breath. "Well, let ergo," sang out one of the students, and the conclusion was ruined.

Why is it that he exercises
A vigorous Pawnee dance?
A business-meaning humble bee
Has got into his pants.

How We Poisonance.
Many of us still cling to the old myth about the inability of the average Northern to speak good English. But we are gradually giving it up.

We have learned that some localities in this country were settled by immigrants from certain English counties and that the peculiarities of their dialects, both Northern and Southern, are accounted for in this way. Then, we have no definite standard to go by, no one dictionary, no one city to lay down the law of pronunciation. Even the opinion of Fowler, expressed in his universal grammar, that the best English pronunciation is to be found in Maryland, must be taken with some grains of allowance.

It is plain that the Northern brogue or twang or whatever it is, has the upper hand at present. In company with Boston baked beans it is gradually bringing every nook and corner of the South. The rising generation in Atlanta and the rising generation in Boston talk alike. —Atlanta Constitution.

"Costly Thy Habit as Thy Purse (Can) May." The late Earl of Rosedale, who was noted for his shabby clothes, once called at the mansion of a certain Duke famous for his philanthropy.

"His Grace at home?" he inquired in his abrupt way of Mr. Yellowplush.

"Look here, my man," replied the gorgeous man, "hit all 'no use you bringin' bogging letters here. The Duke sends them all to the Charity Organization Society," and the door was slammed in his lordship's face.

"The Champion Seige Now On." Getting There In 1886!
The 8th Mechanical Wonder of the World, The Champion Steel Binder.
It will outwear a dozen of the old fashioned "flippity-dop" canvas rollers and pot-metal arks.
Come to Leomardtown during the present term of Court and examine samples of our three great novelties—the Light Steel Binder, the celebrated Folding Bar Resper and the Solid Steel Mower.
Mr. W. A. Hammond, our popular Champion lawyer, will assist in explaining to farmers the superiority of the Champion machines over all competitors.
The farmers of St. Mary's may well be proud of the Champion, and their appreciation of honest, unadorned and first-class workmanship increases with the great number sold every season. Did you not read that account of the large delivery of Champions at Potomac, Penna., January 6th and 7th last? Yes, 37 were handed away that day by the electric farmers, aggregating in value, 600 Champion Machines.
Mr. W. A. Hammond, our popular Champion lawyer, will assist in explaining to farmers the superiority of the Champion machines over all competitors.
