TIMELY IMPROVEMENT.

Building at the Treasury Which Miffs Some Employes.

A number of workmen were engaged yesterday delivering iron girders and uprights in front of the Fifteenth street entrance of the Treasury Department. Inquiry developed that these iron joists and uprights were designed for an addition to the supervising architect's office now being constructed in the Southern court of the Treasury Building.

The late Congress, among legislative acts that were timely, provided for an addition to the architect's office, to be built in the Treasury court, South, which has heretofore been devoted to space for carpet scouring and left to the prolific incubation of English sparrows.

The north court of the building is exactly similiar in size and shape to the southern court, and this was appropriated some two years ago for the construction of the famous underground silver vaults, which cost something over $20,000. This vault, although planned on modern architectural principles, proved to be so damp after it was finished and occupied that steam pipes and other artifical apparatus had to be introduced to keep the bags, containing the dollars of our daddies, from falling into a state of innocuous desuetude.

The north court, lately seized for the architect's convenience, will be occupied by a glass and iron structure about the height of the second story windows of the main building facing it. It has been designed to afford ample light for the architect's draughtsmen, but not a breath of ventilation. Indeed, it is presumed that the people who are to occupy it do not require air, for the solid walls of the building proper compass it about and shut out every suggestion of ventilation as completely as a prison wall shuts in its inmates.

The clerks employed in the rooms facing this architectural blunder never cease their complainings, and they watch the slow uprising of the building with aggravated displeasure. They comprehend fully what its glass roof and iron accompaniments mean for them during the solstice season, when they are wont either to nap over their desks or watch the budding grass and astonishing ornithological propagation in the court below. It may be a matter of interest to the Government people whose pleasant quarters are to be affected by the improvement (?) noted to learn that it will cost Uncle Sam some $25,000, and that it promises to be a permanent legacy left to them by the late unlamented Fifty-first Congress.

CITIZENS OF BRIGHTWOOD

Hold a Well-Attended Meeting and Organize a Protective Association.

A meeting of the Citizens' Association of Brightwood avenue was held last night in Brightwood Hall, Mr. William A. Gatley presiding.

A permanent organization was effected and by-laws and a constitution adopted. It was decided to hold regular meetings on the second Friday of each month.

The subject of street car service was discussed, and Mr. William L. Earle of the Judson Pneumatic Railroad Company addressed the meeting, promising to do all within his power to secure the best of car service and railroad facilities.

A resolution, expressing the gratification of the association at the Soldiers Home one-mile limit rule, and requesting the Commissioners to adhere to their firs construction of the law, was introduced but voted down.

VETERAN TELEGRAPHERS.

Preliminary Arrangements for the Meeting of the Old-Timers.

About thirty old-time telegraphers assembled in the rooms of the Board of Trade last evening to make preliminary arrangements for the entertainment, etc., of the members of the Old-Time Telegraphers' Society, which meets in this city next August. A general exchange of ideas as to the entertainment of the members were exchanged, after which Mr. George C. Maynard, the electrician, was appointed chairman, and Mr. M. Mareau, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was chosen secretary. The chairman was then authorized to appoint a general executive committee of fifteen, with the power to appoint sub-committees, etc., to look after the arrangement for the reunion.

Whallen and Martell at Kernan's Next Week.

Whallen & Martell's Mammoth Combination, the attraction at Kernan's Theatre next week, is one of the new shows of the season, and will introduce a number of artists who have never been seen here. Heading the list of talent is the Martell family, the members of which are acknowledged the most skillful and accomplished acrobats, bicyclists and unicyclists in the world. Then there are brothers De Gray, whose experiments in hypnotism are calculated to create a sensation. A novelty will be the mind-reading feats of the Louclercs, Harry and Mildred. Among other great cards are McIntyre and Heath, Tom and Hattie Naun, Dan Regan, Carrie Ezier, Millie May and Professor William Kappes. Seats now on sale.

William Muldoon, with Jake Kilrain and noted sparrers and wrestlers, in addition to the London Gaiety Girls, has proved the strongest attraction of the season. To-night Muldoon will probably meet Robe, and Kilrain a big fellow from Georgetown. There will also be a meeting between two colored sparrers, Winfield Scott, 139 pounds, and Will Brent, 137 pounds. Ladies' matinee to-morrow.

Dining Cars on Royal Blue Line.

Pullman Dining cars are now running between Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, via Royal Blue Line on the famous five-hour train, leaving B. & O. R. R. Station, Washington 10 a. m., arriving in New York 3 p. m., and on the Fast Express, leaving Washington at 5:10 p. m., arriving in New York 10:35 p. m.. The high standard of service for which the Pullman Company is celebrated will be fully maintained.

First Garfield Memorial Graduate.

The first graduate was matriculated from Garfield Memorial Hospital yesterday, and Mrs. James A. Garfield, dressed in deep mourning, presented to the first graduate a silver memorandum tablet on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Justice Harlan presided, and his opening address about the importance of the hospital as a training school for nurses was admirable. At the conclusion of the address Mrs. Garfield rose and presented the graduate, Miss Margaret A. Mullen, with the tablet. Misses Hart and Lincoln sang several beautiful solos, Drs. John S. Billings and James W. H. Lovejoy talked briefly.

Gaiety in the First Precinct.

The policemen of the First precinct for the nonce laid aside baton and uniform, helmet and pistol, last night and proceeded to make merry.

The occasion was the third annual ball of the officers of the precinct, and it was an emphatic success. The large hall of the National Rifles' Armory was a gay, festive and memorable scene. There was not a hitch in the arrangements, the committee had forgotten nothing that would make the affair a success, and they were rewarded by raising a sufficiently large sum to fit out the gymnasium in good style.

Death of An Old Citizen.

Mr. O. E. J. Fisher, the well-known saloon-keeper at the corner of Seventh and L streets northwest, died suddenly this morning about 2 o'clock. He was an old resident of the city and has been engaged in business for many years. He belonged to a number of secret societies and was a prominent member of Nelson Division, No. 2, U. R. K. P.

WILL NOT PAY THE SCALE

THE JOB PRINTERS SEND AN ULTIMATUM TO THE UNION.

Will Not Grant an Increase of Wages for Time or Piece Work Nor Submit to a Reduction of Hours—The Correspondence.

There is now hardly a doubt but what the book and job printers will go out on Saturday.

But not from all the shops in the city, as several of the employing printers have expressed a readiness to accede to the demands of Typographical Union, No. 101. Many of them, however—a majority, in fact—have declared that they would not, and this morning they put their determination in writing and sent a copy of resolutions adopted to Secretary Padgett of the union. Here is an official copy:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30, 1891.

We, the undersigned employing book and job printers of the District of Columbia, hereby give notice that we will not grant an increase of wages for time and piece work, or reduction of hours per day, as demanded by new scale of prices issued by Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101. The appended correspondence explains itself.

JUDD & DETWEILER,
RUFUS H. DARBY,
GEDNEY & ROBERTS,
McGILL & WALLACE,
H. L. McQUEEN,
BYRON S. ADAMS,
R. BEAUFORD,
R. O. POLKINHORN.

The officers of the union say that they are prepared for a strike, and have a large fund on hand to support the printers if it is decided at the meeting of the union called for Friday night to go out. But many of the more conservative printers want to do everything in their power to prevent any trouble with the bosses, if it can possibly be averted.

The correspondence passing between the union and the employing printers was today made public, and is below printed in full:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20, 1891.

F. H. Padgett, Esq., Secretary Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, Washington, D. C.

SIR: In answer to your letter, with enclosure, of the 3d instant, addressed to the several employing printers of the city, and consequent at a meeting of employing book and job printers, held on the evening of March 19, 1891, I am instructed to notify you of the unanimous adoption of the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, has issued a new scale of prices to go in effect April 1, 1891, calling for an increase of pay for composition and time work and a reduction of hours per day;

And whereas a compliance with said demand would work great injury to the printing and publishing interests of the District;

And whereas the said change of prices is issued without sufficient notice and without consultation with the employing printers,

Be it Resolved, That Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, be notified that the employing printers of Washington decline to grant the increase of wages or reduction of hours demanded in the proposed new scale of prices for the following reasons:

1. The scale is uncertain in its operation, it being impossible to interpret its exact demands.

2. It prevents employers from contracting for the completion of work at a given time, because, under various demands, the extra pay are exorbitant, unfair and unjust to the customer as well as the employer; and

3. The employers earnestly protest against being used as instruments of experiment for the purpose of sustaining the claims of the Union before Congress in determining the rates to be paid at the Government Printing Office.

The favor of an early acknowledgment is requested.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) W. F. ROBERTS,
Secretary Meeting of Employing Book and Job Printers.

WASHINGTON, March 24.

W. F. Roberts, esq.:

SIR: Your communication of the 20th instant received and laid before the union at a meeting held March 23, and, after being duly considered, I was directed to notify you of the unanimous adoption of a resolution to the effect that the union intends to adhere to the scale of prices submitted to the employers, to go into effect April 1, 1891.

In regard to that portion of the communication which says that the new scale is uncertain in its operation, it being impossible to interpret the exact demands," permit me to state the price per 1,000 ems is increased from 40 cents per 1,000 ems to 42½ cents per 1,000 ems for day work, 45 cents per 1,000 ems for night work, nine hours to constitute a day's work; time work to be paid at the rate of $18 per week; overtime up to midnight, 10 cents per 1,000 ems or 10 cents per hour advance after midnight, 20 cents per 1,000 ems advance. Very respectfully,

F. H. PADGETT, Secretary.

Mr. Rufus H. Darby, who has taken a leading part in the trouble between the men and bosses, said to a Critic reporter to-day that under no circumstances would the bosses accede to the demands of the printers.

"It is a business matter," said Mr. Darby, "and has to be treated as such. We cannot possibly agree to an advance at this time. The rates paid now are as liberal as those of any offices in the country and the printers should be satisfied with this."

BARRED OFF THE AVENUE.

Complaint of a Congressman Leads to the Suppression of an Annoyance.

The wife of a prominent Congressman, who every fine evening takes an airing on the Avenue in her Victoria behind two blooded bays, has been greatly annoyed lately by the occupant of a mail cart drawn by a pair of thoroughbreds, who takes delight in passing and repassing the former's equipage.

These actions would have passed unnoticed but for the brazen air and effrontery of her tormentor, who is a woman well known in police circles. The evident pride which she takes in advertising herself on Washington's thoroughfare has caused comment for a long time.

But in her demeanor toward the lady mentioned she went a trifle too far. When the Congressman was told by his wife of the occurrence he immediately laid the matter before the Police Department, with the happy result that they decided to rule the demi monde off Pennsylvania avenue.

Yesterday and to-day notices were served on the frail creatures informing them of the Department's action. Of course they objected strenuously, spoke about "the law in the case" and made other wild threats. But the police are all powerful over these children of the pavement. They will submit to the decree that has gone forth, and the gray asphalt of the Avenue will no longer resound to the dull rumble of "madame's" luxuriously furnished carriage.

Last night a number of professional friends of Dr. Middleton, the physician in charge at the Emergency Hospital, tendered him a banquet. The affair was an enjoyable one and the jolly party did not separate until the small hours. Among those present were Doctors Sohon, Kneson, Atchison, Delweiler, Cresson and others. Dr. Middleton to-day resigns his present position to engage in outside practice.

SOUTH WASHINGTON.

Commodore Pruitt will probably take a party down the river next Sunday in the steam launch Nellie Marr.

Many citizens of this section are disturbed over the fact that Messrs. Charles Parker and Philip Dwyer seem to have lost interest in the railroad question.

It is hoped by the residents of South Washington that THE CRITIC will continue to urge the necessity of greater care and vigilance in looking after the safety of the public at railroad crossings, more especially those at Four-and-a-half, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth and Eleventh streets. THE CRITIC's suggestion that the crossings should be better lighted meets with especial approval.

St. Dominic's Church is one of the finest buildings of its class in the city and is naturally the pride of the Southwest. But it would be vastly improved by the addition of the tower necessary to the full display of its architectural charm. A movement of the church authorities toward this end ought to meet with a generous response from the citizens of this section.

The C. E. Society of Kendall Chapel has just elected the following officers for the next six months: Theophilus Bray, president; Miss S. E. Wingate, vice president; J. E. Wingate, secretary. Kendall Chapel is in a prosperous condition and a building fund has just been started.

His friends in this and other sections of the city will be glad to learn that Dr. John Bray, who has been quite ill of late, is recovering.

It is not much out of the way to expect that the pathways leading to and around about such an institution as the Smithsonian should be constructed with some regard to science. But they are not. The sloppy pavements along the Seventh street side of the grounds would disgrace a country village.

It is a little too early for much activity among amateur baseballists, but doubtless the coming season will see the organization of the usual crop of vigorous young clubs in this section.

"The duck, like other prophets, is never honored in his own country," remarked one of the oldest river rangers of the Southwest. "There are any number of gentlemen, including our duck-loving Executive, steaming in any number of launches to any number of places away down the Potomac, the Patuxent, the Susquehanna and elsewhere in search of imaginary ducks, when Four Mile Run is fairly teeming with thousands of ducks of all description."

In the death of the Rev. John W. Phillips, which occurred on the 29th instant, the congregation of Grace Church, of which he was pastor, suffers an irreparable loss. His funeral took place from Grace Church at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Last week what might have proved a serious railroad accident at unlucky Four-Mile Run was only averted by a "fluke" which happened to be caved in at that point. Those familiar with the circumstances are inclined to criticise the railroad company in connection with the matter. When the old culvert arch over the railway was blasted down a year or so since the driveway arch was left standing, and the wall adjoining the tracks was allowed to remain, surrounded by an overhanging mass of jagged and unstable masonry.

Every one who noticed its condition predicted that the continued jar of passing trains would certainly cause its fall some day, with the possible result of a terrible disaster. The prediction came true last Saturday, though fortunately the train which gave the final jar escaped injury; the ponderous mass, however, almost grazing the rear of the last car. Had the cave-in occurred at night or at any time just before the approach of a train the possible result may be imagined. The people of this locality feel that they have especial occasion to comment severely upon this fresh example of railroad carelessness, inasmuch as they have not yet forgotten the disaster which occurred at Four-mile Run several years ago, resulting in the death and serious injury of a number of South Washingtonians.

HARRY MARTIN'S CASE.

THE COST OF HIS ADVENTURE AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The Charge of Housebreaking Dismissed—Rested on a Bag of Chickens—Kate Smith Bound Over for Shooting William Williams.

"John Henry Martin! John Henry Martin!" John Henry Martin!!" yelled Bailiff Hooe, in the Police Court this morning, but there was no answer.

"Martin does not answer, your Honor."

"Well, he had better answer," said Judge Miller, "or I'll issue an attachment for him."

Then the bailiff went outside and called the man's name again, but he didn't appear.

"I have nolle prossed the charge of housebreaking against Martin," said Prosecuting Attorney Arms, who came in at this instant, "and filed a new information charging him with assault and battery on John S. McKinney, one of the officers at the White House. He has deposited $25 collateral, and as he does not answer it is forfeited."

So the case against John Henry Martin went on the records of the Police Court as a forfeited collateral case, and it cost him just $25 to climb into the White House window without a cost.

Poultry for a Pillow.

Last night officers found two men asleep in a wagon near the market, and, upon investigation, found that one of them was using a bag of chickens as a pillow. They were carried to the station, where they gave their names as Henry Richardson and James Minor. They were charged with being vagrants, and this morning in the Police Court they could not explain their presence in the wagon. For the next ninety days they will reside at the workhouse.

Kate Smith Was Sorry.

Kate Smith, the woman who shot her lover, William Williams, yesterday was sobbing when she was brought into court.

"Yes; I did, it Judge," she said, "but I was drunk at the time, and I'm so sorry. Please let me off and I'll never do it again."

She will not have that chance for a long time to come. The court held her for the grand jury in $2,000 bonds. In default she had to go to jail.

Who Hit George?

George Reed's head was battered and his face bloody when he stepped into the dock this morning. He was charged by Officer Snyder with disorderly conduct, and the prisoner chimed in that the officer was the disorderly person instead of himself. He claimed that he did not resist arrest and that the officer had brutally clubbed him without any cause whatever. The officer said that Reed was bloody when he found him, but admitted on cross-examination that he had struck Reed once on the legs to rouse him. The case was dismissed.
