SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 26, 1886.

The dandelion is the floral dandy lion in Paris this season. It appears almost universally in the buttonhole bouquet.

Gladstone will have a walk over after Beecher fairly gets in his work in behalf of Irish home rule. Henry Ward is still a very eloquent old man.

The senate committee decides not to investigate Payne. Are the members afraid the business is loaded and may explode and fire their own magazines?

The senate has passed the bill restoring Fitz John Porter to his rank in the army. Fitz was very fortunate in not being hanged when he should have been, to say nothing of the good luck that has just come to him.

If the French princes will come to America and settle down and pay their grocery bills no questions will be asked and nobody will molest them. They will feel quite at home, too, for we are all princes over here, and are princes de facto as well as de jure.

The London Times mentions Hons. Geo. W. Wilson, W. Morrow Beach, Col. Toland Jones and Hon. John F. Locke as Madison county congressional timber. These gentlemen should all be rodded. It is impossible now to tell where the electricity will come to the earth.

If we may believe a local Sucker newspaper, an extraordinary spectacle is now presented in Illinois. "All nature" is asserted to be tongue-agoing around with her tongue hanging out." Maybe she is trying to write a communication for a newspaper and doesn't know how to spell the big words.

A law was passed by the Ohio legislature, on May 19th, which provides that persons whose property has been destroyed by fire or tornado may have a deduction made from the amount on which they are taxed, which deduction shall correspond with the amount of damage done. This is a humane and just law.

The Normal Exponent, a high class educational journal, published in Cincinnati, has the following editorial, under the heading, "Our Next School Commissioner":

Prof. W. H. Venable, the talented teacher poet of the west, is a candidate for state school commissioner. We have knowledge of facts that makes it almost certain that he will receive the nomination. Every teacher and child in the state will rejoice at this. No higher honor can fall to this great educational state than to have a gentleman of such genius, so celebrated as a poet and of such national repute as an educator, preside over its educational affairs.

The Hancock Courier, a democratic paper published in Findlay, has this queer paragraph:

The decision of the supreme court of Ohio can be predicted in advance to a certainty on all questions where party policy or party prejudice is involved. To this disgraceful state has the highest judiciary in the state been brought by the republican party.

It has only been a few weeks since there were a majority of republicans in the supreme court; so this "disgraceful" state of things must have been organized while the democrats were in the majority. Which is a historical fact, which nobody can deny.

The Toledo Commercial of Friday says:

Springfield is endeavoring to raise $10,000 for the purchase of a site for the Soldiers' home. They have about $7,000 subscribed. If the old soldiers could have a voice in settling this question it would be practically unanimous for Fort Meigs, in order that the hallowed grounds and the graves of the patriotic dead may be properly protected.

That is all very well. The "hallowed grounds" and the "graves of the patriotic dead" should be "properly protected," but the state is to provide for the needs of its homeless war veterans, and its authorities are not legally justified in doing anything more or different. Springfield offers a site for the institution which possesses all the required conditions, including, also, a neglected graveyard, if that should be insisted on as necessary.

Of the failure of the senate committee to report in favor of investigating Coal Oil Payne, Senator Sherman said, to Boynton, of the Commercial Gazette:

I know nothing of the action of the committee, except what I hear from members of the house of representatives. If true, I deeply regret it, and hope there is some mistake about it. The public sentiment of the people of Ohio, I think, without distinction of party, demands that an investigation should be made by the senate of the grave charges made in respect to the election of Senator Payne, and will not be satisfied unless this is done. I have purposely abstained from active participation in this matter from a sense of delicacy to a colleague, and have no opinion to express on the merits of the case, nor can the facts be properly ascertained, except by an examination under oath of the persons charged with participating in the bribery alleged. I still think such an investigation will be ordered by the senate.

The fair, honest men of all parties in Ohio wish this investigation prosecuted by the senate, and demand that it shall be.

Wife-Beating.

One of the meanest and most despicable crimes for which men are brought before our mayor is wife-beating. It is getting to be much too frequent. The style of brute who infests saloons (or who is infested by saloons), and gets drunk and then goes home and assaults the poor, defenseless woman, who of all persons in the world is his best, most faithful and most devoted friend, is precisely the style of brute to which the mayor and other persons in judicial positions should give the severest punishment known to the statute.

The wife-beater is the most contemptible of all scoundrels. He deserves no consideration and no mercy, and, in instances where the law would permit, should be sent to the penitentiary. And the authorities should not wait for the poor, injured wife to appear as the prosecuting witness; certainly not for her to push the prosecution. Mr. Mayor: Pulverize the wife-beater.

A Hint to the Council Committee on Parks and Cemeteries.

We would be glad to have the City Council committee on parks and cemeteries "Sit down on" (or no) the old Columbia street graveyard, for that is what it is, for it was laid out and used before cemeteries were invented. As the brats have just been cut down, the members of the committee could probably do this without injury to the seats of their pantaloons, and if they would remain in a position where they could see the condition of the tract of ground alluded to, a half hour, they would have a comprehensive view of the situation. They would see a piece of ground which, in its present condition, is of no public or private use whatever. Were it condemned and vacated the tract would prove of considerable value in money, but the descendants of those who have buried friends in the ground, during the last seventy years, have, doubtless, property rights in lots that have not been vacated, and at least one lot has recently been substantially improved.

The one fact about this graveyard is that the tract should either be condemned and vacated and utilized by the city, or it should be improved and kept in proper condition as a cemetery and opened to the public. It is not sufficient to cut out the underbrush and mow the grass and weeds once a year. The ground is capable of very much improvement at a very little outlay. There were, as a matter of course, streets laid out in the graveyard, originally, and these could be discovered and graveled, and turnstiles put in the fence so that this public ground would be accessible to the people.

Gentlemen of the council should do one thing of the other. We need public parks. Here is ground adapted to the purpose, already enclosed. The old gravestones are not at all in the way, or out of place, in a park. They would prove a most interesting feature, and it is likely that, were some effort made by the city to keep the ground in proper condition, the descendants of the old and honored former residents of the city whose remains lie there would feel encouraged and stimulated to give some attention and effort in the way of caring for their graves.

Dr. Helwig Coming.

We are very glad to hear that the Rev. Dr. Helwig, now of Akron, has consented that his name shall be placed before the First English Lutheran church of this city as a candidate for its pastorate. This is in response to the urgent request of the members of the church, and the vote of the church in his behalf will doubtless be unanimous and hearty. Dr. Helwig is a very able man, and is also a man of very popular qualities, and he will prove a strong and most wholesome personal force in the community. Then, with two such men as Dr. Gotwald, of the Second Lutheran, and Dr. Helwig, as pastor of the First, to reinforce, locally, the work of Wittenberg, we may rightfully expect that the institution will prove more prosperous than ever.

The London Times does the fair thing by three of our distinguished citizens in the following paragraph:

The Eighth district does not lack congressional aspirants. Among them Hons. J. Warren Keifer and Asa Bushnell, of Clark county, are recommended, while the Hon. Thomas J. Pringle asserts his ability to carry the loads of the honor. The capacity of General Keifer, as a legislator, is doubted by some having knowledge of his career, the splendid work of Mr. Bushnell, as chairman of the republican state executive committee during the last gubernatorial campaign, is remembered by the party and at once places him in the fore rank of possible candidates. Mr. Pringle made a good record as state senator, and is a good man to date.

This is all quite true, of all the gentlemen named.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Rev. Samuel P. Linn, an able Presbyterian minister, of Pittsburgh, is insane.

Base Ball—Cincinnati 2, St. Louis 1; Baltimore 7, Brooklyn 5; New York 7, Maroons 5; Chicago 16, Washington 5; Louisville 19, Pittsburgh 5.

According to Bradstreet's Review, at leading cities there is considerable confidence in the prospect for trade, grocery, dry goods and hardware and dealers in other lines are looking ahead to increased demands after the close of the dull season.

At Cincinnati the circuit court has reversed the decision of the common pleas court, in which Judge Huston set aside his own decision holding the Dow law constitutional. This is in the line of the supreme court declaring the constitutionality of the law.

The majority report of the senate committee on privileges and elections will be against an investigation of the Payne bribery case. Senators Teller, Evarts and Logan voted with the democrats. Senator Hoar, the chairman of the committee, and Senator Frye voted as a minority for the investigation.

In a court decision, Judge Sloan, of Milwaukee, says: "Laborers or capitalists may organize for their own protection, but have no right to take the aggressive. In our social and industrial life and our government, the socialist, the anarchist and the boycott have no place."

In the house thirty veto messages on private pension bills were read and referred. A conference committee was appointed on the agricultural appropriation bill. The sundry civil bill was taken up and considered until 5 p. m., when the house took a recess until 8 p. m., the night session being for consideration of pension business.

The Travelers' Protective Association, meeting in Baltimore, elected officers for next year. Oliver P. Pindell, of Xenia, Ohio, was unanimously elected president. The press committee condemned the Merchant Traveler, of Chicago, charging it with duplicity, and recommended that it be dropped as the official organ of the association.

Congress.

JUNE 25.—In the senate, after routine business, the Fitz John Porter bill was taken up. Mr. Logan objected to the bill on the constitutional point that it increased the retired list, provided the president made the appointment. Mr. Teller moved to amend the bill by adding the name of General Alfred Pleasanton, but Mr. Sewell objected. Mr. Plumb followed, after which the bill passed, 30 to 17. The bill for the adjustment of railroad land grants in Kansas was placed before the senate, and at 6 p. m. the senate adjourned until Monday.

The editor of a western paper recently wrote a paragraph about the "ministerial firm of Jones & Small," but the printer made it "the minstrel firm of Jones & Small." The editor considered the mistake so trifling that he let it stand without correction.

A Lyons (France) court recently fined one Tourrus for unlawfully practicing medicine. He professes to cure baldness by a certain magnetic operation. It was observed that he was himself perfectly bald.

A young salesman in New York City within a few weeks has received a very large order in his line from a manufacturer on whom he called 41 times and was repulsed on every occasion but the last.

"Will it do no harm?" This is the question often asked, and the answer is, "it cannot," for Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup is an innocent remedy, warranted to contain neither opium, morphia, or anything injurious. 25 cents a bottle.

Chas. H. Moore, ex-state commissioner of insurance, died at Columbus, O., of blood poisoning.

Every mother in the land should know the value of Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup and never be without it. It is free from opiates. 25 cents a bottle.

Reports of the state officers are for the most part in the hands of the printer.

HONESTY IN PERSIA.

A LAND WHERE THE OFFICES ARE FARMED OUT.

The Entire Persian Government Honeycombed with Corruption—The Poor the Only Taxpayers—Condition of the Lower Classes Might Be Worse.

Honesty there isn't much of in Persia. Political services are always paid for—office on delivery. Here is, for instance, the son of the present moursheer el-mowleh, a boy of 14, not quite five feet high. His father had done the shah a little service some time ago, and so the young fellow got a job as governor of Ghaserin, an important and fertile province. He didn't rule any worse than his predecessors—that's true. As a general thing the offices are all farmed out, so much cash down and so much every year as long as the office holds good, which is not long. For the right divine to misgovern some of the more important provinces enormous sums are paid. Thus, the Zil-es-Sultan pays his royal papa annually a matter of 300,000 tomans, and the other prince at Tabreez pays 200,000. The governor of Khorassan, although bossing it over a thinly peopled and sadly impoverished country exposed to continual inroads of the Turcomans, yet has to find the wherewithal to replenish the coffers of his master every year to the tune of 60,000 tomans ($60,000), and so it goes on in proportion in all the other offices down to the very scullions who have to bribe their superiors to be allowed to stay another term.

Everything goes by bribery, corruption, and stealing here, either direct or indirect. The whole country, from the complicated government machinery down to the smallest business, is so honeycombed with this thing that I doubt if a thorough reform could ever be accomplished here in this slow-going, conservative country, even if some shah or a succession of shahs should attempt it. The present shah is, for instance, fully aware of this dreary state of things, as numbers of his sayings prove, but he has never tried to remedy it. Thus he gives the fattest jobs within his gift always to his favorites. Every Noon-Rouz (New Year's), about March 21, he sends out a number of them, who have to bear the khalats (robes of honor) to the big officeholders in the provinces. This is a sign that they will be allowed to hang on to their offices at least one year longer. The messenger bearing this mystic gift travels with almost royal pomp, and a large retinue of servants, horses, mules, camels, etc. All this splendor and the gigantic bribe paid the messenger to report to the shah that the province is in apple-pie order, and that all the inhabitants thereof are as happy as the day is long, has to come out of the governor or officer, and indirectly, of course, out of the poor taxpayer, and when I say "poor taxpayer" I mean "poor tax payer," for here the only taxpayers are the poor—the artisans, the peasants, the small tradespeople.

NOT A POOR MAN'S PARADISE

The rich don't pay any taxes whatever. That is why a great many rich folks here, with whom the fear of being despoiled is greater than their love of display, and that is one of the leading traits of the Persian—the love of display, live in mud hovels, go about on the back of lame donkeys, and wear shabby clothes. As soon as a peasant, for instance, has had a plentiful crop—presto, the thumb-screw is applied to him, and he is made to pay twice his usual taxes. Redress, there is none. A refractory taxpayer is simply bastinadoed till he gives in. It is astonishing that there is any people left here at all to raise taxes from. But century after century of this misgovernment and oppression has accustomed them to it, so that they don't know any better, and think it is as it ought to be. Nowhere else in the world, I do believe, are the people such thorough believers in the old saw, "Whatever is, is right." Besides, they can't help themselves. They are intensely ignorant, and have but the filmiest and most absurd ideas of other countries. They don't know but what Persia is really the "poor man's paradise," as I once saw Persia called in a book written by Dr. Willis. Emigrate they can't—there is a law against it, and the government prevents it. Even the poor Guebres, tortured and oppressed beyond endurance, had to emigrate to India on the sly, and those caught were punished cruelly.

In spite of all this, the poor here, as far as the actual necessities of life are concerned, are really better off than in some other countries—as in the south of Italy, for instance, or even the west of Ireland. They have enough to eat and drink, and the shelter they have is ample three-fourths of the year. The soil, when cultivated, is usually extremely rich, the climate not rigorous, and the clothes they wear and food they eat can be supplied for next to nothing. Their wants are not those of civilized beings, but of poor, down-trodden slaves, who have been under the heel of the conqueror for thousands of years. Who knows but what it comes in appropriately here to say, Where ignorance is bliss 'twere folly to be wise? At least, I must say that it is but very seldom that one meets a Persian—no matter how humble, even the beggar by the road side—who wears the dejected, desolate, miserable air one may see so often depicted on the faces of the toiling masses of England, France, Germany or Italy. It seems the gayety of heart, the elasticity of mind we find in a Hafiz, a Saadi, have not wholly faded out of the national character.—Wolf von Schierbrand's Teheran Letter.

A Tired and Worn-Out Publisher.

"I have been in the business twenty-six years," said George W. Carleton, the publisher, the other day, "but now if I wish to live, I have got to rest. And as I would like to live a little longer, I shall sail for Europe on the 5th of June, and pass the summer at Hamburg, where I hope to be benefited from the waters. When cold weather comes I shall proceed to Cairo for the winter. Yes, he continued, "I have been very lucky as a publisher. The most successful book I ever brought out was 'Les Miserables,' by Victor Hugo. You know he wrote it at his residence, Hauteville house, and it was given to the public in 1862. It made a tremendous sensation, and appeared at the same time in New York, London, Paris, Berlin, Brussels, Madrid, St. Petersburg and Turin, in eight different languages. That is more than can be said of any other book. Among the other books which made great hits were Michelet's "L'Amour," and the novels by Miss Augusta Evans, such as "St. Elmo."—Croffut's Letter.

Nervousness Betrayed in Penmanship.

The condition of a man's nerves is often betrayed in his writing, and also the tire of his temper. If he be slow and methodical, he covers a page with characters laboriously drawn out and a copiousness of ink that is defacing. A nervous man will either contract his signature into the smallest place possible or scrawl it out in flowing lines and big letters or write it phonetically. In either of the three cases it is generally impossible to decipher it. Business men to a certain extent cultivate an original style of writing. Their correspondence is very large and their names often attached to valuable papers. A style peculiar to themselves, if rigidly followed out, is one of the safeguards against forgery. But there are forgers as clever as business men who devise strange styles of penmanship.—Pioneer Press.

Curtailed Diet as a Cure.

Dr. C. E. Page of Boston, seems intent on supplementing the solution of the drink problem by a pledge of abstinence from all food whatever. The records of baby-farm statistics do not shake his confidence in the efficacy of a curtailed diet as a cure for all disorders of childhood, and he quotes the case of a consumptive who, much to his own surprise, was cured by carrying that curtailment to its logical extreme, having, in fact, tried to starve himself to death, and has gained strength at a rate causing a widespread sensation.—Chicago Times.

Sig. Tomasini's Electric Photography.

A committee of the Paris Polytechnic institute has reported favorably on Sig. Tomasini's method of electric photography—i. e., a plan for superseding the functions of light by the direct action of electric currents, and obtaining photographs in the dark. Edison lately patented a device for telegraphing without the medium of telegraph wires. After teaching lamps to dispense with lamp oil, electricity may yet enable us to cook without fire and shoot without powder.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald.

A Great Friendship Sprung Up.

A great friendship has recently sprung up between Judge Kelley, "the father of the house," and Mr. La Follette, the youngest member of that body.

Seeing your Cuticura Remedies so highly recommended, confided to give them a trial, using the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and Resolvent internally, for four months. I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement.

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than catarrh. The sense of smell, or taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind, one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison which it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Equally, because little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have but little hope to be relieved from it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the proper treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into handsand once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto unfried method adopted by the Sanford Chemical Corporation of its Radical Cure, has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, snuffing and obstructed breathing, and radically removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restoring the sense of smell, taste and hearing and controlling the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

Sanford's Radical Cure consists of one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and an Improved Inhaler, price $1.

Sketching Prince Bismarck in Action.

An artist has, like other people, to exercise ingenuity and even boldness in the pursuit of his calling. It is well known that Prince Bismarck does not visit the reichstag now-adays as often as he used to do. Sketching the chancellor in action is therefore a difficult matter, but the feat has just been accomplished by Adolf von Werner, the director of the academy of Arts. Werner entered the reichstag with pencil and sketch-book a few days ago, and took his place amongst ordinary spectators. The moment he seized for his purpose was when Bismarck, having finished a long and fiery speech, was engaged in conversation with his son and several ministers, his face and nervous movements bearing evidence of the strain he had just undergone. Werner had just well begun his sketch when the chancellor moved to another place and settled himself as if for a long time.

The artist, no hing daunted, at once went down stairs and took his seat amongst the deputies, for he could now only obtain his sketch by entering the sacred space allotted the members of the house. Admission to this part of the house is strictly forbidden, but Werner's boldness rescued him, for he was not disturbed, and finished his work in ease. It is expected that Werner will make Bismarck in the reichstag the subject of an important painting. It is worthy of note that the artist Lenbach's etched Moltke on his introducing the military pension law a short time ago. On this occasion Lenbach actually secured a set at the ministerial table, an extraordinary concession.—Art Journal.

Treatment of the Human Feet.

To those afflicted with feet too strong in odor for the comfort of their neighbors, regardless of the three or four thorough washings and the frequent changes of hose they are subject to each day, we would advise a simple and harmless remedy, many times advised by the physician, which is equal parts of pulverized burned alum and salicylic acid. Bathe and dry the feet well, then rub them freely with the powder and for a few days keep the stockings also well dusted with it. The alum you can prepare at home and your druggist will supply the other ingredient. Remember this is not a cure-all, but it will improve most cases and cure many.—Western Journal of Health.

Harvey Lee, merchant at Twin Springs, McDonald county, Mo., writes May 9, 1884: "The Shaker Extract of Roots has cured my wife of sick headache, which she has been subject to for ten years. She feels so proud over it that she wishes me to sincerely thank you for sending the medicine to this place." James M. Morgan, merchant, of Empire, Ky., writes Feb. 18, 1884: "A gentleman who had been afflicted for years with severe rheumatism has been perfectly cured by seven bottles.
