SENSATIONAL TRIAL

All London Excited Over the Baccarat Case.

OVER 18,000 APPLY FOR SEATS

The Scene When Court Opened This Morning an Interesting One.

The Prince of Wales Will Be Called Upon to Testify—His Testimony Will Have a Great Bearing On the Result—It Is Rumored that the Defence Will Plead Justification.

LONDON, June 1.—Beginning with the baccarat scandal trial to-day, the British public will be regaled with a series of sensations, including eight cases of breach of promise of marriage, and a new trial of the notorious Wolpole-Wiedeman case, which has thrown such a lurid light upon the state of English society in the East.

So great is the interest taken in the Sir W. Gordon Cumming trial by the public that there have been over 18,000 applications for seats, and the court has accomodation for only 250 in that portion reserved for the public.

In order to meet this unparallelled demand, extra seats have been placed in the body of the court and a row upon the bench itself, but these latter are reserved for the most distinguished applicants. In order, too, to prevent any possible confusion, Lord Coleridge himself has signed every ticket for admission.

The scene, therefore, when the court assembled this morning was an interesting one, not only by reason of the fact of the importance and gravity of the case, or the circumstance that the Prince of Wales will be called as one of the chief witnesses, but also because of the position and social consequence of the audience which is in attendance to watch the proceedings.

The great event of the day will naturally be the calling of the Prince of Wales and it is expected that His Royal Highness will follow Sir William in the witness box. Much will depend on the Prince's evidence, so that apart from the consideration of his rank, his testimony will have a great bearing on the case.

Nothing is definitely known as to the nature of the defense to be brought forward, but it is rumored in legal circles that justification will be pleaded.

BARNUM'S BODY.

Friends of the Dead Showman May Decide on Cremation.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 1.—Benjamin Fish, treasurer of the Barnum & Bailey show and cousin of Mrs. Barnum, is quoted as saying: "I have just left Mrs. Barnum and we have decided that the best thing that we can do is to have Mr. Barnum's body exhumed and cremated."

MORE BARNABY MYSTERY.

An Illegitimate Child Now Brought Into the Famous Case.

DENVER, Col., June 1.—Developments in the Barnaby case continue to interest the public, but are at present mostly confined to the experiences of witnesses.

A story has come to Denver that might show up motives in a startling manner.

For some time the detectives in the East have been working steadily on a clew and attempting to find a certain mysterious individual.

This person is said to have been the great and primal cause for the disruption in the Barnaby family, which eventually led to Mr. Barnaby cutting off his widow with $2,500 a year.

The individual who could account for so many things has not, so far as is at present known, even by word or action, placed himself or herself in in a position to cause fear or trouble.

This person, who is likely to become one of the most important personages in the case, is said to be an illegitimate child of the late Mrs. Josephine B. Barnaby.

The latest piece of information comes as a thunderbolt in the pervading dullness in the unraveling of the great poisoning mystery.

Little is known at present beyond the bare fact that such a complication exists.

What its full significance may be cannot be fully determined until the day when the jury shall be hearing the evidence which is to pronounce Dr. Graves either an innocent and much persecuted man or a criminal who planned and carried into fatal execution the most diabolical murder ever perpetrated in the West.

Grip Communicated After Death.

LONDON, June 1.—Sir Morrell Mackenzie has made some startling statements with regard to influenza. Sir Morrell believes the disease can be communicated by dead bodies. In support of this opinion, he quotes a case from the American newspapers, in which a gentleman of that nationality, having died with influenza in Paris, his body was embalmed and sent to Philadelphia, where it was exposed to the view of the family, all of whom were immediately attacked by the disease. Sir Morrell does not doubt that the influenza was introduced into the House of Commons by the witnesses from Sheffield, where the disease was at its worst, who gave their evidence in one of the committee rooms.

Subscription for Nellie Baskett.

LONDON, June 1.—A subscription is being taken for Miss Nellie Baskett, the young woman whose evidence served to bring Captain Verney and his fellow conspirator, Madame Boullier, to justice. The young woman is dependent entirely upon her own resources. She could have received thousands of pounds had she consented not to appear against Verney, whose family is very wealthy, but the authorities found her a steadfast witness. The subscription already amounts to a handsome sum.

Belgium Labor Troubles.

LONDON, June 1.—Belgium seems to be getting deeper into the trouble with strikers instead of out of its difficulties. Financial aid for the strikers is offered from France, Germany and England, and the council of the workingmen's party have voted to continue the strike. It is expected that a strike of gasworkers will soon be commenced, which will throw Brussells into total darkness.

No Mercy for Hebrews.

VIENNA, June 1.—The police of Astrachan, Russia, are vigorously expelling Jews on only a week's notice. Similar action is being taken elsewhere, with more or less vigor. It is estimated that 250,000 will be driven out.

Final Report of the Grand Jury.

NEW ORLEANS, June 1.—The Grand Jury made their final report. Referring to the irregular proceedings about the court building, the fact is mentioned that the list of tales jurors in the Hennessey case was delivered to the defence nearly 24 hours before it was given to the State's attorneys. The Grand Jury suggest that the court officials investigate the matter and place the responsibility where it belongs.

His Beard Grown After Death.

NORTHFIELD, Minn., June 1.—The body of E. H. Haskell, who has been dead for over 20 years, was yesterday removed from his grave, it being purposed to put the body in another lot. When his body was exposed it was found that he had a beard over 23 inches long. His wife said that before he died he had been shaven and all his hair must have grown after his burial.

Doctors in Trouble.

OMAHA, Neb., June 1.—The three doctors arrested for criminal malpractice are still in jail. The remains of two infants have been exhumed in the yard of the Medical Institute. Dr. Hugeson, another member of the staff of the Institute, has disappeared. The institute has been closed, all the employes and patients being dismissed.

Oarsmen Arrive at New London.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 1.—The Columbia 'Varsity and freshmen crews have arrived here and taken up quarters with Captain Kit Brown at Gales Ferry. There are 23 in all in the party. The Columbia boys arrived much earlier than usual in order to make up for their poor condition.

They Leave for Europe To-Day.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Russell Harrison sail for Europe to-day. In England they will be the guests of Minister Lincoln. In Paris they will be the guests of Minister Reid, and in Germany they will probably be the guests of Minister Phelps.

Shot His Brother-in-Law.

NORFOLK, Va., June 1.—John Kelly, last evening shot and fatally wounded his brother-in-law, Otto Cayton. Kelly is in custody. Cayton persuaded Kelly's wife to leave him.

The First Canadian Peer.

MONTREAL, Can., June 1.—Sir George Stephen has been created a peer by Her Majesty. This is the first instance of a peerage having been conferred on a Canadian.

THEY ARE TOO POWERFUL.

A Movement Against Mercantile Agencies in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, June 1.—The contest over the Mercantile Agency bill is one of the most important matters before the Legislature, and its whole course has been attended with much public interest. The history of the movement this year is well known. An order was introduced authorizing the Committee on Mercantile Affairs to consider the expediency of enacting a law making mercantile agencies amendable to the libel and kindred laws.

The committee reported that such legislation was inexpedient. Representative Mellon, of Worcester, dissented from the other members of the committee, and offered a substitute bill.

The bill at present before the Legislature is not a radical one. Its provisions are that mercantile agencies shall be liable for injuries inflicted by false reports on the same basis as newspapers and private individuals, and that their reports be not regarded as privileged communications.

The whole movement is the result of the unique position which the mercantile agencies hold in business circles. A New York man who testified made some sworn charges against agencies in general.

The whole question, as viewed by the promoters of the bill now before the Legislature, is whether the mercantile agencies shall be allowed to proceed in their business entirely free from legal restraint, as is now the case. It is claimed that they are now possessed of far too much power. Their whole work is done in secret, and a man may be injured without being able to defend himself or know from what source the blow was struck.

A YOUNG GIRL'S CRIMES.

She Says She Cannot Resist the Temptation to Steal.

CARROLL, Ia., June 1.—Many crimes are charged to a pretty 16-year-old girl, who is locked up in the county jail. She calls herself Katie Faulkner, but says she is concealing her real name to shield relatives from disgrace. She says she was left an orphan when only a year old, and went to live with an uncle.

Her great passion was for money, and, seeing a circular advertising counterfeit money, she answered it and placed quite an order. When it came it was sent by express with $35 charges, and, not having the money to get the package out of the office, she ran away and went to another uncle, where she stole $60.

After securing the money she went to Council Bluffs and put up at the best hotel in the city. In a short time she left without paying her board bill, and on arriving at Panama she robbed a store, secured a suit of men's clothes, and in this disguise started for Defiance, where she was arrested, but was released on condition that she would reform.

She says she tried hard to keep from stealing, but she could not resist the temptation. She says she failed to secure the money and jewelry of Mr. and Mrs. Yates because they would not lie still long enough, but if she had had a revolver they would have lain still long enough for her.

THE DYING PREMIER

Sir John Macdonald Still Fighting Off Death.

THE END MUST BE VERY NEAR

The Attending Physicians Astounded at the Marvelous Vitality Displayed.

A Crisis in Political Circles in the Dominion Imminent—Speculation as to Sir John's Successor—The Cabinet Held a Six-Hour Session—Parliament Will Adjourn To-day for Three Weeks.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1.—Sir John Macdonald is still living, but it is only a slender cord that binds him to earth, still the attending physicians are astounded at the marvellous vitality he displays.

The old premier is fighting with characteristic tenacity, but the fight cannot be much longer maintained. Since Friday afternoon, though deprived of the power of speech, he has maintained the cheerfulness for which he was so noted while in health. Not the appearance of regret or disappointment has been expressed. He realizes that the end is approaching, and seems to be prepared for the final call.

A Political Crisis Imminent.

A crisis in political circles is imminent. The Cabinet sat six hours Saturday, but, as if by arrangement, the lips of all the Cabinet Ministers are sealed as to what was done. In the event of Sir John's death, Sir Henry Langevin, the Privy Councillor, will be summoned by the Governor-General to assume control of public affairs, but with grave charges of malfeasance in office hanging over him. The Minister of public Works will naturally refuse to do so, leaving the question of leadership between Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, and Sir Charles Tupper, High Commissioner for Canada in England.

The government has already held an informal conference with the Minister of Justice, but indications are that a large wing of the Conservative party will insist on the sanction of Sir Charles Tupper as the new Premier, Sir John Thompson being a Roman Catholic.

A caucus of the party will be held at an early date, and Parliament to-day will be asked to adjourn for three weeks.

SIR JOHN'S CAREER.

For Years He Has Been a Prominent Figure in the Affairs of Canada.

Sir John Macdonald was born in Sutherlandshire, Scotland, January 11, 1815. He was brought to Canada in 1820, when his father, Hugh Macdonald, settled in Kingston, Ont. He was educated at Kingston, and when 16 years old began to study law. He was admitted to the bar in 1835, and in 1836 became counsel, and achieved distinction by his defense of Schultz, who made a raid into Canada in 1836.

Macdonald entered public life in 1844, as the representative of the city of Kingston in the House of Assembly and continued to sit for this constituency until the Union of 1878 when he was defeated. Several other constituencies then elected him and he sat for Lennox County. In May, 1847, he was first appointed to office, becoming Receiver-General and subsequently Commissioner of Crown lands. Early in 1848 the government was defeated, and Macdonald remained in opposition until 1854. In September, 1854, the government was defeated on the question of secularization of the clergy reserves, and he entered the coalition cabinet which was formed, becoming attorney-general, and under his advice the clergy reserves were secularized on what was considered a fair basis.

In 1856, on the death of Sir Allan McNab, Macdonald became the leader of the Conservatives, which position he has held ver since, exercising great influence on Canadian history.

In 1858 the Macdonald ministry was defeated on the question of the location of the seat of government, but the new ministry was defeated on the first day in the

In 1864 Macdonald and his associates succeeded in convincing the people that a confederation of all the British North American provinces was desirable. In bringing about the confederation Macdonald was an active factor and it may be claimed that he was the creator of the Dominion of Canada.

The new constitution went into force July 1, 1867. Macdonald was sworn in as a privy counsellor and appointed Minister of Justice and Attorney-General. In recognition of his services he was created a Knight Commander of the Bath by Queen Victoria and in 1884 he received the grand cross of the same order. He remained Prime Minister until 1873 when he was defeated on what was known as the Canadian Pacific scandal. He remained in opposition until 1878 when his party were successful in the tariff issue and he resumed his office pledged to protection. In 1882 and again in 1887 he carried the country. His success at the recent Dominion elections is known.

Sir John was one of the Alabama Claims Commissioners, and for his success on that Commission was made a Privy Councellor of Great Britain. He married twice. His first wife, Isabella, daughter of Alexander Clark, of Delnavert, Scotland, died in 1856. His second wife was Susan Agnes, daughter of T. J. Barnard, a member of the Privy Council of the Island of Jamaica.
