HAINES IS NOT WITH BORAH IN NORTH

State Committee Forced to Recognize People's Protest

SENATOR IS RELIEVED OF THE INCUMBRANCE

Will Be Permitted to Make His Own Campaign, It Is Announced — Borah to Tour Through Northern Counties of State.

Forced to give way to pressure from all parts of the state centered on headquarters protesting against the tieing of a millstone, in John M. Haines, Republican gubernatorial candidate, to Senator William E. Borah without even the latter's consent in the hopes of bolstering up a weak candidate for governor, the Republican state central committee reluctantly abandoned its unprecedented plans of fastening a candidate distasteful even to the members of his own party to the coat tails of the most powerful and popular man in the party, with the result the joint itineraries planned by State Chairman Day and Secretary Davis for Senator Borah and Haines have been abandoned. Hereafter these two candidates will follow out separate itineraries.

Scheme Was Injurious.

Condemnation of the tactics employed by those in charge of the directing of the Republican state campaign was not only local, but was statewide in opposition to the attempt to team Senator Borah and John M. Haines together without the consent of the former, which it was believed when this was done and is still believed was for the purpose of humiliating Senator Borah, the state chairman and secretary resorting to the ruse under cover of their management of the campaign. So far the management conducted in this way has, it is claimed, not served to advance the interests of the party and while it has not injured Senator Borah it has made a show of the gubernatorial candidate.

Senator Borah left last night for North Idaho. He was not accompanied by John M. Haines. The gubernatorial candidate has been cut off in the one man game of "tag" he was playing with the junior senator and will make his own brilliant campaign speeches, alone, thereby giving him a better opportunity to display his oratorical abilities. Those who heard his addresses when he tagged Senator Borah down to the southeast and back to the southern part of the state, uninvited by the senator and without even consulting him, have been kind enough to refer to the Haines addresses as "alleged" speeches. They are said to have made a laughing stock not only for himself but Senator Borah, for the state committee is claimed to have attempted to make it appear both candidates were making strong and eloquent addresses.

Trick Exposed; Protests Come In.

When the trick that was played on Senator Borah was exposed through the publication of the facts, the protest that rolled in from every part of the state kept the state chairman and secretary busy trying to make explanations. These were not satisfactory and the protests still came in, finally crystallizing in a demand that those in charge cease the underhanded methods to embarrass candidates, and not only cut Mr. Haines away from Borah, but permit the latter to follow out a separate itinerary. The showing said to have been made by Haines did not promote his candidacy and when the scheme was exposed, the committee was severely condemned for the action of the chairman and secretary. This condemnation came from prominent party men who did not mince words in their protest, hence the announcement that Mr. Haines has been cut off as a team-mate of Senator Borah.

PICKETING HELD LEGAL BY COURT

Duluth, Sept. 24.—Picketing is legal, according to the decision of Judge Dibell in the case of the Duluth street railway, which tried to stop alleged interference with strikebreaking employes by court injunction. ## WEAVER ON TRIAL FOR THE MURDER OF LENA SPEERS

Jury Is Quickly Secured and the Taking of Evidence Is Begun—Defendant's Sister on Stand.

(Capital News Special Service)

Shoshone, Sept. 24.—Ray Weaver, charged with the murder of Lena Speers, was placed on trial yesterday. The time occupied in the selecting of a jury was brief indeed for so important and celebrated a case. The jury was sworn in at 2:30 o'clock and witnesses were examined.

It will be remembered that the defendant dispatched to Miss Lena Speers, at Sequoia, a box of candy in which was concealed a bottle of oil of tansy for the purpose of relieving her condition, that the deceased drank the poison, about a half ounce, and in an hour and a half was dead.

The defendant fled and was captured at Walla Walla by Deputy Sheriff Chapman of this county.

The jury selected to try the case is composed of Stephen H. Chase, Heyburn; Stanley Steck, Shoshone; B. M. Price, Shoshone; J. W. Dwyer, Good-

WOMAN WHOSE BEAUTY DAZZLED EUROPE NEAR DEATH IN A RUSSIAN DUNGEON

Countess Tarnawska.

Kief, Russia, Sept. 24.—Once the toast of all Europe, once its most beautiful, most courted, most vivacious woman, Countess Tarnawska is near death, after seven years of solitary confinement in a miserable dungeon cell.

The beauty that once dazzled all Europe is gone—forever; the wonderful figure that brought her fame even beyond the continent is twisted with rheumatism. The woman who in the days of her glory had a new dress for every day and who bathed in milk and wine can change her linen but once a month and can bathe but four times a year.

And never once, since the day of her incarceration, has she seen the light of day. On rare occasions she is permitted a walk in the courtyard, but always it is with a heavy mask over her eyes and a guard at her side to forestall the possibilities of her lifting it for one glimpse of the silvery sunlight.

She is not allowed to read or write. Her lot for seven years and for the remaining years of her life is to sit all day in the dark, narrow dungeon with nothing to occupy her mind—nothing to think of but the terrible thought of the contrast with her present and her past.

The countess is an Irish girl. Her father is one of the wealthy O'Rourkes. But all his thousands cannot help his daughter in her plight. Early in life she infatuated Count Tarnawska. He was her slave. Everything he had in the world he laid at her feet. Finally she married him. But his love did not satisfy her. Her nature yearned for the attention of other men. And legions there were who paid court to the brilliant Irish girl. One of their number was the Count Komorowski. He went wild over her. And she led him on.

Her extravagance changed her husband from a wealthy to a poverty-stricken noble. Her flirtations with other men nearly drove him mad. So he fled. And then the girl gave her attentions to Komorowski. In some way she persuaded him to insure his life, in her benefit, for $500,000.

Only a short time afterward Komorowski was found murdered. A boy admirer committed the deed at the behest of the countess. But suspicion did not direct itself toward her until the boy's own nerves failed him and he confessed.

The trial that followed was the sensation of Europe. The countess tried every ruse, every subterfuge, to save herself. She so fascinated the jury by her beauty, her vivacity, that it was said had it not been for the indisputable facts against her she would have been freed.

But for once her charms failed—and life in a dungeon is her lot.

DEFENSE RESTS IN THE TRIAL OF LIBEL SUIT AND THE REBUTTAL IS BEGUN

The defense this morning closed its case in the libel suit for $10,000 damages brought by the Central Dressed Meat company against the Capital News by presenting evidence that the manager for the meat company had consented to clean up his place and make it comply with the requirements of the law as laid down by Pure Food Inspector Wallis and by showing from R. S. Sheridan, general manager for the Capital News, that the article was published without malice and for the sole purpose of giving news which he believed the public was entitled to have and that he believed the article to be true; that he had made efforts to corroborate it and that he had been informed long before this story came up of alleged foul conditions about the slaughter house.

R. S. Sheridan was the first witness called. He is the general manager of the Capital News and has general control over the publication. He was aware of the publication complained of. Before publishing the article he said he had been called to the counter by a stranger whom he identified as Bosworth, who called his attention to an article about to appear and asked that Mr. Wallis be consulted first. He gave instructions that Mr. Wallis should be seen by the reporter before writing. After it was written he inquired to find out if it had been verified, and was told by the city editor that it had been and that there could be no question of its truth. Thereupon he said he gave instructions to publish it, because if true it was information the public should have.

He said that last fall Mr. Veatch, the advertising manager, had told him of coming upon a pile of five or six unborn calves and many chickens which he had found came from the same slaughter house and from cows about ready to give birth to calves. He said that he had no ill will whatever at the time the article was published, against the plaintiff company, any of its stockholders or officers.

On cross-examination, Edwards, an attorney for the plaintiff, had the witness identify copies of the Capital News of August 25 and Sept. 20, which were offered in evidence and read by Attorney Barnes. The first paper contained the answer of the Capital News, which contained both the article complained of and the answer which ad-

FATHER RELENTS; WAYWARD SON IS NOW OUT OF JAIL

Millionaire's Son Served 26 Days of His Fine at Rate of 50 Cents a Day—Father Writes Letter.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Harold F. Hoops, the son of a wealthy manufacturer who more than three weeks ago was sent to the city workhouse on a fine of $25 after a young woman had complained he tried to induce her to enter an automobile, was released yesterday. His father sent him a check for $13 with a note reading: "You have now served 26 days in prison. You were fined $25 for insulting a young girl on the street and to have worked out that fine would have entailed 50 days. In other words the state allows you 50 cents a day for your labor. I also allow you that sum. Enclosed check is payment in full. This is the first money you have earned in your life. Twelve dollars will pay that part of your fine not worked out. That will leave you $1 capital with which to begin a new life. Come to see me and I will find some honest work for you. What you have done in the past will be forgiven. Whether it can be forgotten depends on yourself. You now have a clean sheet on which to write your future."

Hoops paid his fine, went down town on a street car and went directly to the office of his father.

New York, Sept. 24.—A priest, a policeman and two sailors were injured in a battle with three hold-ups on the Hudson river water front today. ## STRIKE OF MINERS MAY SPREAD TO NEVADA FROM BINGHAM

President Moyer Visits Ely and Other Camps for the Purpose of Sizing Up the Situation

Ely, Nev., Sept. 24.—President Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners, who attended the meeting of the Mill and Smeltermen's union at McGill last night, is spending today at the mines of the company with G. R. Miller, a member of the miners' union executive board. Lane miners' union will meet tonight. President Moyer refuses to talk at present. It is said that many new members joined the union at McGill last night. There is much opposition to a strike among the laboring men, many of whom contend that the desired advance in wages can be obtained without a strike if recognition of the union is not made an issue.

Bingham, Utah, Sept. 24.—J. C. Lowney and anco Terzich, executive board members of the Western Federation of Miners, announced today that the striking copper miners were so fully in control of the situation that the operators certainly would be forced to terms. In contradiction General Manager Jackling of the Utah Copper company repeated that it was the determination of the company to resume shortly, regardless of the miners' demands.

The Greeks are again gathering in the hills, but there has been no more shooting. Utah Copper continues to augment its forces of guards and although recent developments have given new hope of peaceful settlement, both strikers and operators are making preparations to meet any adverse move.

Lowney said of the mission of President Moyer of Ely, Nevada: "Moyer is in Ely conferring with local union officials on the situation there, and to discuss cooperative action there and elsewhere, should the Utah Copper company continue to ignore our demands for better pay. We have the situation well in hand and the company will be unable to resume work without granting our demands. Labor is scarce. Strikebreakers were advertised for in many western cities, but I have information that the labor agents are meeting with no success."

A. L. Wilde, secretary-treasurer of the Steamshovel Men's union, is in charge at Salt Lake during the absence of Moyer and is engaged today in efforts to bring about a meeting of labor leaders and mine operators through Governor Spry.

Bingham, Utah, Sept. 24.—Developments in the strike of the 4500 Bingham copper miners, instead of resulting in a widening of the breach, has taken a sudden turn toward a peaceful settlement.

The announcement by General Manager D. C. Jackling of the Utah Copper company that Leoidas G. Skiliris, employment agent, had resigned, was received here with enthusiasm by the strikers.

On behalf of the miners, A. L. Wilde, secretary-treasurer and business agent of the associated union of steam shovel men, made an appeal to the governor to bring about a meeting of the union leaders and the officials of the Utah Copper company for the settlement of their differences.

Although the leaders of the strikers are encouraged over the outlook for a peaceful culmination, Deputy Sheriff Schweitzer reported that a clash between the Greeks and deputies on duty at Upper Bingham was narrowly averted yesterday.

A number of Greeks gathered on the hillside opposite where the steam shovels lie idle and sent a shower of bullets down around the deputies. No one was hit, but several had narrow escapes. Only the efforts of the officers in charge of the deputies prevented the latter from returning the fire and precipitating a battle. Soon, however, the Greeks ceased firing and disappeared over the hill.

When officers of the local union were notified of the incident they declared it was the work of persons not in sympathy with the union.

Secretary E. G. Locke of the local miners' organization stated last night that the resignation of Skiliris foreshadowed an early settlement. Skiliris had been charged with practicing the peonage system among the Greek employes. The charge is denied by officers of the Utah Copper company, who say that the resignation of Skiliris was accepted only because it would eliminate one of the alleged grievances against the company.

J. C. Lowney and Yanco Terzich, executive board members of the Western Federation of Miners, also spent the day in Salt Lake conferring with other leaders, said that the resignation of Skiliris is secondary to the demand for a higher wage scale, and is not a sufficient concession to cause any of the strikers to go back to work.

STRONG MAN OF GERMANY DEAD; NOTABLE CAREER

Marshall Von Biederstein, for Many Years Minister From German Empire to Turkey, Passes Away.

Baden Weiler, Germany, Sept. 24.—One of Germany's brightest diplomats, Marshall von Biederstein, died here today after a short illness.

Baron Marshall von Biederstein was regarded as one of the most accomplished diplomats of his time, and since the death of Bismarck was considered Germany's strong man. The baron stepped into the shoes of Bismarck when the latter left office in 1890, becoming, on April 1 of that year, secretary of state for foreign affairs.

In 1894 he became Prussian minister of state and three years later the emperor appointed him ambassador to Turkey. He remained at Constantinople more than 14 years and was often called to Berlin to confer with the emperor, not only in regard to Turkish affairs but in connection with Germany's general foreign policy. His views were so well liked at the court that he was often mentioned for the imperial chancellorship. The baron was particularly successful in maintaining the influence of Germany in near-eastern affairs, and it is considered due to his diplomacy that Germany's commercial standing in the Turkish empire is so strong.
