Our Water Motor.

The proprietors of the CHRONICLE have placed a Tuerk's Water Motor in the office to run the machinery. It is a compact little engine, and does its work admirably. It will greatly facilitate the dispatch of business, and increase the working capacity of the office. The enterprise has called for a considerable outlay, and it is hoped that the patrons of the CHRONICLE will enlarge their orders for job work, and that new subscriptions will come in in sufficient amounts to make up for the expenditure. Those who are indebted to the office are especially requested to come forward with what they are due. Such favors on their part will be highly appreciated just now. The CHRONICLE is making a steady progress, and promises further improvement when the increase of patronage justifies it.

The Chancery court meets the third Monday in April.

STOCK bills neatly and cheaply printed at the CHRONICLE office.

TENNESSEE JOHNNY to Ohio Johnny: "Did you hear anything drop?"

Hon. S. S. Cox, of New York, has been made minister to Turkey.

The Release committee on taxes for 1884, meets on April 3. The Quarterly county court meets Monday, April 6.

Rev J. R. Craig will preach at Hazelwood church near Peachers Mills, Sunday at 11 o'clock.

IT is reported that Turkey will prove treacherous to England and form an alliance with Russia.

WAR between England and Russia seems unavoidable unless one party or the other backs down.

THE backbone of the winter may be broken, but the backbone of President Cleveland is as sound as a gold dollar.

IT is believed by many and wished by all, that this will be a good fruit year.

IT is believed by many that the "back-bone" of the winter is broken and that we will now have spring-like weather.

Ask your physician about it? Nicholson's Liquid Bread or Malt Extract and call and get a bottle of it at Crusman & Howard's

Rev. Sam Jones of Georgia created a big sensation in Nashville Sunday by delivering one of his highly original and pointed sermons. He will be in Nashville again on the 15th of next month.

FARMERS who wish to keep posted in regard to the tobabco market, would do well, if they are not already taking the CHRONICLE, to subscribe for it, as we give full reports of sales every week.

W. D. Morton, charged with forgery, waved examination before Esqr. Caldwell, Wednesday, and his bond in three cases was fixed at $1,000 in each case. He has not yet given the bonds and is still in jail.

OUR subscription list is gradually increasing, in fact, we have added quite a number of new names to our list recently. We have still room on our mail book and will be glad to fill it with new names. Will our friends assist us?

CHAS. LEHMAN, proprietor of the well known European hotel and saloon on Franklin street, made an assignment Saturday afternoon for the benefit of his creditors. R. D. Mosely is the assignee. It is claimed that his assets will exceed his liabilities.

ROLAND REID the commedian, will appear at Elder's Opera House on the night of the third prox., in "Cheek." Both the player and the play are justly celebrated and Clarksville theatre goers will enjoy a treat.

THE Clarksville District Conference will convene at State Line, Friday, May 29th at 9 o'clock, a. m. Pastors will be called upon for their reports the first session. Let the Quarterly Conference journals be present for examination. J. A. ORMAN.

The next meeting of the L. U. N. D. I. Club will be held on Monday, April 6th, at the house of Mrs. Stacker, on Madison Street, at 7.30 p. m. Subject, Tennyson's Becket. Those who wish copies of the play should order them at once, as it will take several days to get them.

WE notice that a good many people come to the city every day on the I. A. & T. railroad, and not a few of them have heretofore done their trading at Hopkinsville. Maj. Gordon runs the trains so that they can come to the city in the morning and do their shopping and return in the evening. They say it is already a great convenience.

A STORY.

The editor of the CHRONICLE has received a nice little note, accompanied by a manuscript, which begins as follows: "Dear Sir—Will you buy my story?" The note is signed "Dolly," and requests an answer through the columns of the paper, as the writer don't wish to reveal her identity.

Now if there is one thing more than another in which this editor would like to invest some of his surplus wealth it is that story. It is none of your ordinary love stories, though it contains enough love and all the concomitants, such as kissing, &c., to supply a generation of Juliets. It is a genuine tragedy and ought to be dramatized. In point of thrill it double discounts the average mediæval romance, and accomplishes the feat of killing all the characters introduced.

It would delight the editor of the CHRONICLE to invest his shining ducats in this sort of thing, but alas! the editor of the paper is not its owner, and the owners of the CHRONICLE don't care any more for a fine story like that than "Dolly's" big brother does for a crazy quilt. They insist that the editor write all the stories that go in the CHRONICLE with the scissors, and say that long experience has taught them that is the cheapest and best plan.

With profound regret the editor states that the story is respectfully declined. The manuscript will be returned to any address designated and no attempt made to discover the author.

Report of Public Schools for March.

To the Board of Education:

For the month of March there is nothing of unusual interest to report. The pupils in your schools have gone on quietly with their work, and all, it is believed, moves smoothly. Offences against good order have been few, and those of a mild character, requiring discipline of only the mildest form. The attendance has slightly increased over last month, but the same causes prevail to effect absence. There are some children who have been very irregular for a long time. As a consequence, they can receive little benefit themselves, and are an injury to their class. An effort will immediately be made to enlist their parents on the subject; failing, the rules of the school will be enforced.

Tardiness has been reduced to the gratifying point—if you will pardon the expression—of three-tenths of one per cent. But that does not give you a very definite idea of the matter. This will:—It is as if 15,240 children were at school one day, and of the number only two were tardy.

Three teacher's meetings were held—all present and showing fine interest. The following figures for March are submitted.

From Corbandale.

To the Chronicle:

Mrs. Mintie Dillon, wife of L. C Dillon, aged 35 years, died on the 17th inst., of consumption, she was a good woman and a consistent member of the Methodist church, having professed and joined at Tarens, about eight [illegible] ago. The husband and five little children have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

Some one threw a rock into the ladies coach on the down passenger train Tuesday night, near Steels Spring, striking a passenger and scattering broken glass over several, but fortunately no one was seriously hurt. It is said to be the third time this has occurred at the same place. No punishment would be too severe for such acts and the perpetrator, whether man or boy, ought to be taken up and shot with a cannon loaded with tacks.

DALE.

March 26, 1885.

THE senior proprietor of the CHRONICLE had the pleasure to be present at an entertainment given Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jarrell on the 57 anneversary of their marriage, Friday afternoon of last week. The entertainment was given at the residence of the aged and venerable couple on Commerce street and was gotten up as a surprise to them by their many friends. It consisted of an elegant dinner and was greatly enjoyed by all who attended. Mr. Jarrell is in his 80th year and his wife is in her 74th. We hope they may live to enjoy many more happy anniversaries.

The Morrows.

Sheriff Collier received the death warrant of Wm. Morrow this week, from the Supreme court clerk. Petitions for a commutation of punishmet are being numerously signed all over the county, and will be forwarded to Gov. Bate next week. Wm. Morrow together with Ransom Morrow and P. F. Bellamy, will be brought back next week and placed in jail here.

No Use For Them.

The Washington papers contain an advertisement of a government sale, commencing at 12 o'clock next Friday, at the stables of the interior department. Among the articles thus advertised are the following: Six fine coupes and coupe rockaways, one four-seat summer carriage, eight fine coupe and carriage-horses, one mail wagon, ten sets of double and single harness, ten horse blankets, eight horse covers, six 3 4 plankets, six buffalo robes, seven lap-robes, three carriage covers, two poles, eight storm covers, whips, reins, brooms, chamois skins, ear-nets, fly-nets, leather dusters, collars, halters, shafts, surcingles, etc., etc.—at auction by order of the secretary of the interior.

MR. JOHN SHELTON is getting up an excursion to Nashville, for the benefit of the people in the Collinsville neighborhood. It is to be on the steamer Hillman, April 8. John says the Hillman will leave his landing about 8 o'clock on the morning of the 8th. This will be a good opportunity for the people of that section to see the sights in the City of Rocks.

Death of Mrs. Munford.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Munford, wife of Hon. A. H. Munford, died at her home in this city Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, of puerperal fever. She was the daughter of the late Gov. Joseph R. Underwood, of Kentucky, and sister of ex-Lieut. Gov. John C. Underwood, of the same State. She was born and brought up in Bowling Green, and had been married five years. She leaves two children, both girls, one three years old and the other an infant born two weeks ago. The funeral took place Friday from the Presbyterian church, with services by Rev. J. W. Lupton. The deceased was a lady of very lovable character, and her death has caused the deepest sorrow and regret among her large circle of friends and acquaintances. Her youth and the melancholy circumstances of her death add greater sadness to the demise. The bereaved husband and other relatives are deeply sympathized with in their affliction.

The heartfelt sympathy of her many friends was shown by the profusion of flowers placed on the coffin by their kind hands. Among the floral offerings, was one brought by her brother, Gov. Underwood, which was a pillow of violets, with a cross resting upon it, composed of beautiful flowers, with the word "Sister" in one corner of the pillow, formed of lillies.

Death of Mrs. Munford.

Park City Times, Bowling Green, Ky.

Mrs. Elizabeth U. Munford, wife of Hon. Arthur Munford of Clarksville, Tennessee, died in that city this morning at 8 o'clock of puerperal fever in her 31st year of age. She was the daughter of the late Judge Joseph R. and E. C. Underwood, and was born and raised in Bowling Green, where she was well-known and loved by the whole community for her many sterling qualities of head and heart. Mrs. Munford was a very superior woman in every respect, being highly educated and accomplished in literature, the languages and music. She leaves besides her husband, a darling little daughter about four years of age, also many near relatives who are overwhelmed with distress at her early demise. She was a member of the Episcopal church, but after marriage attended the First Presbyterian church with her husband, feeling it her duty as she told the writer sometime since, that wife should join her husband in attending the church of his choice. Her funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 o'clock p. m. at Clarksville.

THE protracted meeting which has been in progress at the Methodist church for the past two weeks has been growing in interest, and has done much good in reviving the church and converting sinners. Up to Thursday night fifty-four persons had made professions of religion. Dr. H. C. Morrison has conducted the meeting with great ability, and has preached many able and effective sermons. The doors of the church will be opened Sunday morning for the reception of members, when it is thought about thirty persons will unite themselves with that organization.

THE Democrat of this week announces that Mr. G. M. Bell has become the its proprietor. Mr. Bell has been the editor of the paper for nearly a year past and there will consequently be no change in its conduct. He is a bright young man and very zealous in the advocacy of his opinions. The CHRONICLE extends him its best wishes.

THE Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, in referring to Mr. Killebrew's candidancy for the Commissionership of Agriculture, says:

"Col. Killebriw is undoubtedly the ablest practical agricultural writer in the South, and is strongly urged for the position of Commissioner of Agriculture under the new Administration. There is no man in the country who would do better service in that position than he. He would confer honor on the office instead of being honored by it.'

THE Equalizing Board has been at work this week on the taxes of 1885. It is composed of R. A. Barnes of Dist. No. 1, N. O. Lovelace, Dist. No. 2, R. S. Payne, Esq., Dist. No. 4, W. H. Crotzer, Esq., No. 11, Jno. B. Johnson, No. 12, J. M. Swift, Esq., No. 18, and His Honor, Judge Tyler.

HON. JACOB THOMPSON died at his home in Memphis Tuesday, in the 75th year of his age. Mr. Thompson was a well known Mississippi politician before the war and filled the place of Secretary of the Interior in Buchanan's Cabinet. During the war he was the agent of the Confederacy in Canada, and when the conflict was over was marked out by Andrew Johnson as one of the rebels to be made an example of. A price was put on his head, but after a few years rambling he settled in Memphis and was never molested.

Nicholson's Malt Extract, or Liquid Bread is strongly endorsed by the highest medical authority as a tonic possessing great merit. It is now in store at Crusman & Howard's.

THE I. A. & T. railroad will run an excursion train Sunday, the 29th from the terminus of the road to Clarksville. The train will leave the terminus at 9 o'clock, a. m., arrive at Clarksville at 10.30 a. m., and leave Clarksville on the return trip at 3 p. m.

Letter From Todd County, Ky.

To the Chronicle:

There is rather a mysterious type of itinerate people, who make their appearance in this section during the early days of spring of each year. Though they are a motly "crew," they represent a better class of humanity than the real vagabondish, fantastic fortune-telling gipsy. They are un, doubtedly of Irish extract, and have the usual swa.m of women, children and dogs with them. The apparent vocation of the men is, "trading horses," that of the women, "vending lace." Although they declare it to be "avery thrid of pure linen and the finest texture," it is the cottonest of cotton lace. "Yis lady, made it mesilf, on cooshions, with long pins, rale hand worruck, every inch is worth five dollars a yard." But before they will leave a house without trading, they will compromise on a few eggs, or a little butter, "being as it's the very last of the expinsive." Stranger still, they occasionally find a liberal purchaser. About two weeks ago a company of these people camped at Guthrie Park and drove quite a business for several days. One afternoon a lot of them were trying to trade off some of their stock in that ville, when a mellow drummer was attracted by the crowd; recognizing an acquaintance about to "swap horses," called to him: "Wait till I examine that bag of bones for you, I can tell his age to a minute." After he went through the formula of looking into the mouth declared, "he is twenty years old." His friend disposed to humor the joke, answered: "Exactly right, why you are a splendid judge, how old is this one? "and so on, till he became so flattered that he exclaimed: "I can tell the age of anything, just so I can look at its teeth, man, woman, child or even a gipsy; hello old gip! open your mouth and let me see how old you are," stepping up to the sulky old rusty coat, who did not relish this phase of horse trading. Instantly he opened wide his mouth and the inquisitive young man stuck his finger in, to feel his grinders, when together they clapped and held on, until several fantastic capers were cut, and the poor crest-fallen drummer was glad to get his finger out at all. No doubt he was made a wiser if not a better man, learning the lesson not to "poke his finger into other folks busines."

The "Todd county, Creamery" is now a certainty, located at Trenton, and will be in operation by the middle of April. The people around that little town are wild over the new enterprise.

There is some excitement in the country about the appearance of several mad dogs at different places. We heard that there had been a child bitten, and died from the effects, at Hadensville, but will not state it as a fact.

There is a perfect dearth for news. Nobody seems disposed to marry, no one wishes to die; but as for the bornings there is a perfect boom in that line. The news that it is no longer fashionable to have large families has not reached this part of the world.

REMINGTON.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thos. Rogers of Dickson county, was in the city Thursday.

Mr. Frank McMillan of Erin, was in the city on business, Wednesday.

Capt. R. Y. Johnson of Dist., No. 1 was in the city Tuesday.

Mr. J. N. Ussery of the Southside was in town Monday, on business.

A GLANCE AT NEW-ORLEANS AND THE EXPOSITION.

To the Chronicle:

This communication must commence with an apology for that of last week. That paper was intended to give an account of my recent visit to New Orleans, including the sanitary council, the Exposition &c., but was cut short by a violent inflamation of the eye when I had given an inadequate account of the sanitary council and everything else had to be deferred. I now proceed with the other topics.

The journey from Nashville to New Orleans is not amusing; that part of it which might have interested one, viz: the coal and iron districts of Tennessee and north Alabama, were passed, going and coming, at night. The rest is an inconceivably monotonous stretch of pine woods relieved by glimpses of shipping at Mobile and of the gulf cost on the way thence to New Orleans. Having been wearied out with it myself, I will not inflict it upon my readers.

The city of New Orleans is less changed in appearance within the last forty years than any American city I am acquainted with. Some attempts have been made at sanitation, I fear very inadequate ones, but the attempt is a symptom of good augury. The canal which gives its name to the principal streets is partly covered in, and the rest appeals less obtrusively to the olfactory sense, than in former days. Some of the principal business streets have been paved and the open gutters on each side are flushed with fresh water every day, but as soon as you get beyond the central portion, you meet with the old style of streets, the middle part of which is a mud pile flanked on each side by a green stagnant and odoriferous ditch, all the refuse of the houses being piled on the mud pile afore said, in all its unsightliness. I am not blind to the vast difficulties in the way of sanitation there, but I believe they are not insuperable, and the good people will have to try again.

The St. Charles hotel is as unchanged as the city. Stepping out of it in Nov. 1841 and into it again in March 1885 everything was as familiar as if only a day had intervened. The eating is good and always was, the furniture is, I believe, identically the same I used at the former date. The colored waiters are as stylish, but not quite as civil and attentive as then, the company rather more varied, the Southern planter being absent or having changed his type.

The Exposition has the disadvantage of being five miles from the city, while the city is too many hundred miles from everywhere. It is certainly of immense extent and contains objects of interest from an immense area, for this reason alone I feel myself to be utterly incompetent to do it justice, as the business which took me to the city engrossed so much of my time, that I had less than a day to give to the whole of it. I can only select certain departments in which I felt specially interested and give my impressions of them.

In the principal building nothing seemed to me so striking as the Mexican exhibit. This had been made to appear a veritable part of Mexico; rocks and soil have been piled up and aloes and cactuses including the cochineal cactus had been made to grow in the interstices, and other bizarre specimens of Mexican vegetation spread overhead till one had to forget that one was north of the tropics and surrender to the illusion. As to the gold and silver ore and other mineral tresures, they were of much interest, but the living tableau of Mexican scenery absorbed more of my attention.

The Tennessee exhibit contained many objects for a Tennesseean to be proud of, but I needed a guide to tell me what to look at. The varied specimens of marble required no guide, their beauty attracting the eye at once, and the iron and copper ores were interesting both in an economic and scientific point of view. I must here point out a great error in the system of labelling, it is not peculiar to the Tennessee exhibit but extends to almost everything of scientific interest. The label almost always is limited to stating who are the exhibitors. Now two-thirds of the interest of a mineral or geological specimen depends upon knowing exactly what it is and especially where it comes from. To the general observer it is of very little interest to know that the specimen is exhibited by Messrs. Blank, Stupid and Co.

In the government building I was most interested in the exhibit of the United States Geological commission. Besides minerals and fossils this contains views of mountain scenery in water colors and numerous photographs of different tribes of Indians.

The department of Fine Arts was a disappointment to me, a few very fine specimens in the Belgian department comprised nearly all there was of high art, especially two paintings by Benj. Constant, one of these representing the hour of Siesta in an oriental seraglio was wonderful for richness and harmony of coloring. The best English and American artists seem to have severely ignored the exposition though there is one sea view by an American, (I have unfortunately lost my catalogue and forget his name) which I am disposed to estimate very highly, it represents a grey sea and sky, the surface of the sea being stirred by a brisk breeze and on a limited portion of it a gleam of sunshine falls with a dazzling effect.

Of sculpture there is none, or worse than none, futile attempts at the illustration of anecdote being all that is attempted. I am disposed to think that more artistic feeling is manifested in the decorative treatment of the useful arts than in regular works of fine art. Some specimens of external architectural decoration in terra cotta coming nearer to high art than anything else I saw.

The Floricultural Hall was another disappointment, nothing was in flower except a few fine camellias. There was a large assortment of orchids, but only one in flower that I could see. Some cycads, screw palms and other eccentric forms of vegetable life, suggestive of the extinct flora of by-gone geological ages, were interesting if not beautiful.

Financially I fear the exposition is a failure, the rush was already over before my visit, trains being only moderately full going to New Orleans and immoderately crowded returning. This is much to be regretted but, I think, was naturally to be expected from the distance of New Orleans from other business centres and the thinness of the population immediately around the city. St. Louis would have been a better location for such an exhibition. I enjoyed a good deal and learned a good deal while away, but I fear I enjoyed my arrival in Clarksville better than all the rest.

Clarksville Tobacco Market.

OFFICE OF THE CHRONICLE
CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. March 27, 1885.

The sales this week were about 550 hogsheads. The market was firm and active, and prices generally satisfactory to sellers. We are needing much a good rain and soft weather for handling, which would greatly enlarge receipts. We quote:

Common Logs	4 50 to 5 50
Good Logs	6 25 to 7 00
Common Leaf	7 00 to 7 75
Medium Leaf	8 00 to 8 75
Good Leaf	9 00 to 9 75
Fine Leaf	10 00 to 11 00
Selections	None.

Sales Reported Since Our Last Issue.
