PARTED.

Dissolution of Copartnership.

My ability to supply the farmers of the surrounding country with agricultural implements, seeds, etc., on time, is not equal to my disposition. I have such implicit faith in the honesty and integrity of my patrons that I would, if I could, supply all their wants in my line, and let them consult their own convenience about paying me. But it so happens that that is just exactly what I can't do. I have, therefore, made up my mind to dissolve partnership with the credit business, and to let my partner go in with somebody that is better able to stand his way of doing than I am. This course is a necessary step in the direction of self-preservation, and I have no well-wisher that will chide me for taking it. I shall, as heretofore, keep everything the farmer and planter of the surrounding country need for the successful prosecution of their calling, and a thousand and one things that are considered necessities to town people, but for all these things, I intend to exact

CASH ON DELIVERY.

The adoption of this rule will enable me to sell cheaper than ever, as I will not be compelled to "chalk-up" prices to cover the loss of an occasional "wild-cat" debt. My customers will no doubt appreciate the necessity that impels this step, and give it their approval. Let it be understood, then, that "sink or swim, survive or perish," my motto for the future will be: "Small profits; quick sales; no cash, no trade." And having started out on the cash basis, I desire to dispel a memory of the fact that I ever did business on any other plan. If parties indebted to me will cancel their indebtedness, so that I can burn my old books, I shall soon be able to achieve that desire.

Thanking the public for their liberal patronage, and hoping that those indebted to me will find it convenient to square up soon, I remain as ever,

Very Respectfully,
WM. M. DAVIDSON,
180 Commercial avenue.
