Scrofula

THE OFFSPRING OF HEREDITARY BLOOD TAINT.

Scrofula is but a modified form of Blood Poison and Consumption. The parent who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and eruptions and extensive wasting, some signs of Scrofula. The disease may be not external enough to be noticed for a long time, but it is sure to develop slowly in some cases but the poison is in the blood and will bear fruit at the next favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Soule, 1 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Two years ago my daughter fell and cut her forehead. From this wound the gland on the side of her face became swollen and burst. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

SSS makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and sure cure for Scrofula. It overcomes all forms of blood poison, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

Genius.

The middle-of-the-road-and-nothing-else party, long on numbers, has no originality and is weakness. It is a great deal more evident that it shows no partiality—it has no royal favorites. We find it among all races, and in all sizes and conditions of men. It is constantly springing surprises on the world by breaking out in unexpected places.

In literature we see it typified in the writings of Shakespeare. We find him familiar with all dialects yet untutored, and unfamiliar with the structure and formation of his own language except as it came to him by intuition and inspiration. He is now universally acknowledged as the master of the English tongue.

In the humble African race we find this mystic force cropping out in Toussant L'Overture, the soldier, Booker T. Washington, the educator, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the poet, and Blind Tom, the musician.

Who, familiar with the pathetic eloquence of Logan, the diplomacy of Red Jacket, and the tactics and bravery of Osceola, will believe that genius is a stranger to the red man?

Sometimes genius is born in a palace, sometimes in a hovel, sometimes it manifests itself in the precocity of youth, sometimes in old age, sometimes in poland and often in traditionary circumstances.

Peter the great was perhaps the greatest monarch that ever graced the Russian throne, Napoleon, the great soldier of the modern world. One measured six feet, eight and a half inches, the other not more than five.

Stephen A. Douglas was so small of stature and so diminutive in appearance that he was called by his admirers "The Little Giant." H. Clay was tall, graceful and erect, while his successful rival, Abraham Lincoln, was tall, angular, and awkward.

Robert Toombs and Alexander H. Stevens were as unlike one another in appearance as it is possible for two men of the same nationality to be, yet in the light of genius their claims are divided as to which deserve the greater praise. Stevens was delicate to effeminacy, and in the more robust period of his life weighed less than one hundred pounds. Toombs weighed almost three times as much, and in the shape and the shake of his head, the compass of his voice, and the splendor of his gesture, was likened to a lion in his strength. Yet, delicate to invalidism, "Little Alex" outlived his robust adversary and in his contributions in solving the vexed questions in which he lived, will perhaps outlive him also.

These wonderful contrasts in the physical development of men of genius are everywhere plainly marked, and it would seem that the strength of frame is no index to the strength of mind.

General Lee was tall, well proportioned, proud and commanding in appearance.

General Grant was of middle stature, careless as to dress, and indifferent as to appearance. A stranger at Appomatox could easily have mistaken the victor for the vanquished.

General Scott, while burdened with more than three hundred pounds avordupois, was a stickler for military etiquette and never happy unless in full uniform and on dress parade.

General Taylor, who shared his military triumphs and was his successful rival for the presidency, was considerably more agile, repugnant to military display and never more unhappy than in uniform.

One won the soubriquet of "Fuss and Feathers," the other of "Rough and Ready."

So every where we see these contrasts abounding.

From the time of David, when he slew Goliah, to the battle of Santiago, where General Wheeler divided the honors of that campaign with General Shafter—one very small and one very large of stature, the physical conditions in men of genius have been marked.

When asked what ought to be the exact length of a man's legs, Mr. Lincoln replied that they ought to be long enough to reach from his body to the ground, and from current historical testimony, we think old Abe sized up the situation correctly.

So all history proves that intellectuality cannot be judged by height nor circumference, nor the color of the skin, nor bodily weakness, nor bodily strength.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

The Orange Graze Returning.

During the week we have had visitors from various sections of the county, and they all bring us rose-colored reports of the condition of the orange trees.

The old John O. Mathews grove at Citra has an excellent bloom, and it is estimated that the crop next season will be more than a thousand boxes. Other groves at Citra are also in bloom and will begin bearing for the first time since the disaster of 1895.

Candler has many groves in bloom and will perhaps ship more oranges next winter than any other place in the county.

The groves at Lake Weir are recuperating very rapidly, and those who have given attention to the same will be rewarded for their labors this season.

Mr. Pat Randall, at Connor, on the Ocklawaha river, has paid perhaps more attention to his grove than any one else in the county, having tended the same for several winters past, and now has a grove that it is really a delight to look upon. He will have a good crop next season.

Reports reach us from other sections of the county of equally bright prospects, and the growers are not only hopeful but are again getting to be very enthusiastic.

Stepped Into Live Coals.

"When a child I burned my foot frightfully," writes W. H. Eads, of Jonesville, Va., "which caused horrible leg sores for 30 years, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured me after everything else failed." Infallible for burns, scalds, cuts, sores, bruises and piles. Sold by Garrett & Gerig. 25c 5

Mr. J. Novicow, of Odessa, Russia, writing of the Russian people in the International Monthly, says that the Russian church, in the nine centuries of its existence, has not given to the world either a great theologian, or a great doctor of the faith, or a saint who is at all remarkable or out of the ordinary, or a celebrated missionary, or even a great preacher. But Mr. Novicow says the music which it developed, especially at the close of the eighteenth and beginning of the nineteenth century, forms an entirely original school; it derives inspiration from no other church, and its grandeur is as wonderful as its originality. No instrument is used. The mass is sung by choirs, with no accompaniment, and the choirs are composed entirely of male voices, little boys taking the soprano and contralto parts. The celebrated musician, Berlioz, after hearing mass sung by the choir at St. Petersburg, cried out: "I do not know how they sing in Paradise, but it seems to me that it cannot be much better than this." Oh, that the churches here could catch this musical inspiration!

Between the ages of fifteen and forty-five, the time when womanhood begins and motherhood ends, it is estimated that the aggregate term of woman's suffering is ten years. Ten years out of thirty! One third of the best part of a woman's life sacrificed! Think of the enormous loss of time! But time is not all that is lost. Those years of suffering steal the bloom from the cheeks, the brightness from the eyes, the fairness from the form. They write their record in many a crease and wrinkle. What a boon then to woman, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It promotes perfect regularity, dries up debilitating drains, heals ulceration, cures female weakness, and establishes the delicate womanly organs in vigorous and permanent health. No other medicine can do for woman what is done by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The South's pecan crop for the year 1901 is estimated to be worth more than a million and a half dollars. Its peanut crop for last year was more than five million bags, and were exported to all countries throughout the civilized world.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily.
