Wheezings of Wheezer

By Schneez-er

Pageant Needs No Cash.

Poets are born, ——— not paid.

Spots.

"Say, did you ever kiss a girl in a quite spot?"

"Yes, but the spot was quite only while I was kissing her."

"Wheezlets."

When Greek meets Greek nowadays there is a restaurant.

Ask a woman to marry you in a street car. She won't accept you. Ask her in a limousine. She will.

A girl doesn't care that your middle initial stands for Harvard, but when she begins calling you by your first name, watch out boy. She likes your last one.

It is better to have someone wonder why you are not there than to have someone ask how you got in.

A. Saintsnry.

The Lord gave and the doctor hath taken away—money.

There are people who still imagine—

That the dynamite bomb automatically removes the comedian's suit allowing his "B. V. D.'s to remain untouched.

That bathing beauties know how to swim.

That we judge others as they judge us.

A man from his feet up to his neck is worth only $1.50 per day. From his neck up, That's up to him.

Pelogies to Blob's O'Ink

A safety match isn't always one that won't strike any place, because there is always some place that the match can be struck.

By Zella, the proofreader.

Rubbing It In.

Isn't it strange that no matter how short women's dresses get, the price don't drop. Must be that short skirts are members of Vamps club, and charges an increased price for showing Milady's beautiful—?—, ankles.

Do you like to be in the yard, when the girls are watering the garden. There are two pairs of hose to watch —rubber and silk.

There's nothing slothful about an idle rumor; it keeps busy every minute.

"Bunching" up at public dances seems to be popular troubles at events in this community.

Hitting 'Em Again.

The skirts that the women are wearing nowadays should be put away and saved so they can be worn for the occasion of the shortest day in the year. They would correspond so well together.

We witnessed the first appearance of the socalled half-socks yesterday while getting our shoes tapped at the cobblers. Nature is a wonderful thing. Fate is good to all of us in certain ways.

A real dancing pavilion should be appreciated. Slobbery vanishes, and sociability comes floating in—sometimes.

Heard at the dancing palace: I wouldn't dance with that young lady over there, she isn't a neat dresser, her hair is hanging down in her face, and she is not considered very popular with the boys of the community. Whoever talks like this should stop and wonder how she looks to the boys. Remember the Lord made all of us.
