More School Law.

On Monday State Superintendent, Frank J. Browne issued an opinion covering several points of school law. One is that the directors of a school district have no power to restrain parents or guardians from sending children to other districts to school, even though school is in session in their own district. Pupils may be admitted to the schools of our state from adjoining states upon such terms as the district authorities may determine, but the attendance at our schools of children residing outside the state shall not effect the school fund apportionment. Under this ruling non-resident children attending school within the state are not to be counted in making up the basis for apportionment of the school fund.

A Short Ghost Story.

A minister in Kansas wanted to deliver a sermon. He had heard of sensational methods, and wanted to give his congregation a surprise. A negro boy was taken into his confidence as a confederate, and stationed on the roof just above the pulpit. In the lad's keeping was entrusted a pigeon, which was to be let loose in the church through a convenient hole at the proper moment. The church was packed and the preacher, having stormed his denouncement, raised his voice and cried: "And the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove." but no dove appeared. He repeated his sentence. Still no dove. At the third outcry a black face appeared at the hole in the roof and the query came: "Pahson, a cat done gone an' eat de Holy Ghost; but I got de cat. Shall I frow her down?"

The people of this state have surely not forgotten the howl of the republican press during the campaign of 1896, that if the populists carried the state it would go to the bow-wows. Last Sunday the P.-I. in the following gave the lie to such assertions when we remember that New York is in the hands of the republicans. Read republican testimony:

"While the state of Washington is enjoying an almost unprecedented prosperity in the factory and on the farm, the great state of New York is complaining that in every branch of employment the market is overstocked. Immigrants are pouring into the city of New York and they are employed by people who are in quest of cheapness, and they are the more readily sought because they submit both to over-work and underpay. This condition affords the free silverites a specious excuse for attributing the evils to the demonetization of silver, but it finds a much more rational explanation."

Mrs. Mary E. Lease will speak in this city on Monday, May 2d, at 7:30 p. m. She comes under the auspices of the national guard.
