Last Sunday night about 7:00 a beautiful sight was witnessed in the heavens, the falling of a monster meteor, and as it shot across the horizon it lit up the sky as bright as day for three or four minutes.

A back rock in Mitchell's shaft No. 8 of the Doe Run company fell, on the 26th ult., killing three men outright and injuring another so badly that he will die. Another thief entered a house and awoke the family, took a scare and made a getaway by running up to the roof it is supposed.

Missouri Wins Highest Individual Place in Judging Contest

At the American Royal Live-stock show held at Kansas City Oct. 10-15, T. R. Douglass, a student of the University of Missouri, made the highest score in judging all classes of live stock in competition with Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. The students from Missouri also won the highest individual score on cattle and hogs and tied for the highest individual score on horses.

The best score made by any student of any institution was that of S. T. Simpson of Missouri, who made a perfect score in judging cattle. This is the highest score ever made by a student in any contest in the United States. The next highest score was made by an Iowa student at Chicago in 1909.

T. R. Douglass of Missouri also made a perfect score on judging hogs. This is the highest score ever recorded in any hog judging contest in the United States.

Not only did the students take high places in the judging contest, but the fat cattle shown by the College of agriculture won many important prizes. At the live-stock shows held in St. Joseph, Sedalia and Kansas City the Missouri College of agriculture won three champion prizes, twenty-two first prizes, twelve second prizes and twelve third prizes.

All these fat cattle have been returned to Columbia and will be used in the short winter course in agriculture which began November 1.
