THE DEMOCRAT

THE PEOPLE'S PAPER

Official Organ of the Tax-Payers.

CAPE GIRARDEAU.....MO.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1891.

Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury, fell dead in New York Thursday night. His sudden death was caused by heart disease.

Mr. Jagon, of Iowa was offered a $400 farm for a one-dollar coin and refused the offer. The other fellow did not have a "jag on," but the coin was one of the date 1795, on which there is a premium of over $400.

Senator Burks, it is said, is the ugliest man in our State Senate. Never mind about his looks, our Jasper is a hustler, a daisy and a jim-dandy. Every time a dollar shows up Burks will be there with both feet.

Ex-Mayor Thomas Navin, of Adrian, Mich., who, seven years ago, stole three millions from the city and made it bankrupt, has been pardoned, and on his release from prison will commence the study of law in Detroit.

General N. P. Banks is now but a shadow of what he was fifteen years ago. His face is thin, and, though he still carries himself with some of his old-time erectness, his manner is that of a man who lives in the past. His hair and mustache are snow white.

Let President Harrison appoint John J. Ingalls to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Secretary Windom, and a Republican howl will go up that will be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Ingalls is the man and the country will demand his appointment.

A bill has been introduced in Congress to survey the west bank of the Mississippi from the land above the overflow in Cape Girardeau county, Missouri, to the Arkansas line, for the purpose of building a levee to improve navigation and shut out the overflow.

Our Bourbon Legislature now loafing away time at Jefferson City, says not a penny shall go from Missouri to the World's Fair it the force bill is passed in Congress. Now that settles the World's Fair. There are lots of fools yet living, and if the members of the Missouri Legislature are not fair specimens of those living, then we are in a bad fix for samples.

The irony of late strangely illustrated in the death of several soldiers in a railroad accident in Kansas. These soldiers were part of the Seventh Cavalry, returning from Pine Ridge Agency to their station at Fort Riley. Having passed through the late Indian campaign without meeting with any loss, it seems rather hard to be killed in a railroad accident on their way home.

At almost every public place when Gen. Sherman makes his appearance the band invariably strikes up "Marching Through Georgia," and the General recently remarked, while listening to the air for the millionth time, "I have often thought that when I was marching to the sea it would have been well had I marched on into it.

Our representative in the Legislature is to be commended for his display of good common horse sense. He has not introduced a single bill in the House and will not make a fool of himself in that respect during his stay in Jefferson City. Mr. Russell is a good man, a sensible man, and he will represent this county as no other county in Grand old Southeast Missouri will be represented. He will look wise and keep his mouth shut.

Another English manufacturing concern has been compelled to remove to this country in order to make a profit on their wares. Ashworth Bros., of Manchester, England, have purchased seven acres of land at Fall River, Mass., on which they will erect large shops for the manufacture of carding and other machinery used in woollen mills. This is another tribute to the value of the new tariff, and our foreign neighbors are gradually awakening to the fact that free trade between England and the United States means widespread ruin in every branch of industry, &c.

The savings banks statistics of our New England States are an excellent refutation of the free traders' claim that protection to the industries is causing "decay" in that section. The reports from Maine, New Hampshire and Connecticut show a large gain in savings bank deposits for 1890, the increase in Massachusetts alone being $20,869,248.65. These deposits are the savings of the toilers and wage earners of the State. The State may well feel proud of this exhibit, as these figures are substantial demonstration of the growing thrift of the people, and with them to point to Massachusetts and stand undisturbed by the insults and sneers of the radical free traders.

The meanest and most contemptible man in the country has come to light in Arkansas. The individual who can object to showing respect to the memory of such a man as Secretary Windom, simply because he did not honor a man who, with all his good qualities, was a rebel, has the floor in a contest for meanness and bad taste. The South complains of the way race issues are kept alive in the North, and their complaint is often justifiable. But such a brutal remark as was made at Little Rock Tuesday puts into the shade all offensive remarks on sections and races that have been made so far in public places.—Star-Sayings.

Now we will have to sleep on straw beds. The Missouri Legislature says geese shall no longer run at large. Of course the farmer cannot afford to raise geese if he is compelled to keep them in pens.

The letter V is playing an important part in Congress, as we have had occasion to note before. Now it has been discovered that Senator-elect Vilas, of Wisconsin, was born in Vermont, and altogether the next United States Senate will contain seven sons of the Green Mountain State.

The New York Press is one of the most reliable and best of all the Republican papers in the country. Its staff of editorial witers embraces a number of the ablest writers, and they are making the Press a newspaper worthy of the support of every patriotic Republican in the land.

In accordinance with the apportionment bill, Missouri will be entitled to one more Congressman. Now jackasses are prohibited by law from running at large. Will our additional Congressman come under this head?

The Missouri Legislature has disposed of the geese and now a wily Democratic member is after the goats. Mr. Hughes is now preparing a bill to rid the Capitol grounds at Jefferson City of goats. The Governor owns a fine white Billy, and he roams at will over the mansion grounds.

Rev. Sam Jones licked the Mayor of Palestine, Texas, the other day. This goes to show that there is something more than religious blackguardism in the Georgia evangelist. A preacher is not provided with the limbs of his body for nothing. When the Lord created man he made him complete.

It is to be hoped Missouri constables will exercise their newly acquired powers in the way of arresting domestic geese with great caution. If all domestic geese found at large are "run in," the expenses of the constabulary and indeed, of the administration of justice generally, will be increased to an alarming extent.

A bill has been passed by the Missouri Legislature to prevent geese from running at large. This bill was surely introduced by a Republican and its intention is no doubt to head off the Democratic geese who will be attempting to run at large for Congress under the Congressional apportionment act.

From a farm boy to Secretary of the Treasury—what an encouraging story there is in this for every American youth. While the biographies of our statesmen begin in this fashion no brave and faithful boy or man need despair of his future. Garfield, a canal boatman; Abraham Lincoln, a rail splitter; Johnson, a graduate from the tailor's bench; Windom, a farm boy and a tailor's apprentice—such is the evidence that the Republican party, which elevated and honored these men, is truly the party of the people.

The murder of four negroes and the wounding of five more by white citizens of Alabama goes to show that the race question is very much what the white men make it. At any rate the State of Alabama will have a blot on its fair name unless it hangs the miscreants who committed the wholesale murder. If the color of the murderers and murdered had been reversed half the bloodhounds in the State would have been on the trail ere this, and a score of Vigilance Committees organized.

Not many years ago a dictatorship was the normal form of government in Central and South American republics. But the living generation has witnessed a wholesome change in this respect, and with Balmaceda, of Chili, will depart the last of a long line of Spanish-American despots. It is not necessary to go back to Lopez, of Paraguay, who involved his people in a national ruin not paralleled in modern days. We have seen Barrios slain, Blanco a fugitive, Cleman deposed and Dom Pedro, a good man, but a monarch, driven into exile; and now there is an outbreak of the same spirit in Portugal. Everywhere true republican ideas are gaining a hold on the people, and the prospects are bright for Latin America and Latin Europe as well.

INDISCRIMINATE NATURALIZATION.

The decision of a judge in Scranton, Pa., raises a delicate question regarding citizenship in the United States. He refused to grant naturalization papers to two Hungarians because they could not understand the questions of the Court, through interpretation.

The question whether a knowledge of English ought to be a condition precedent to granting naturalization, if settled according to this decision, might exclude some very learned men in the world from becoming citizens of our country, for such men might live in communities here where a knowledge of the language would not be necessary for their daily life or the prosecution of their studies or vocations.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the creation of citizens is certainly much abused, as gangs of Italians or Hungarians, recruited from the lowest rank and scum of foreign populations, are made into citizens without the slightest knowledge of any language but their own dialect, and utterally ignorant on all subjects except handling a broom or pickaxe, and willing to live on a few cents a day.

That American citizenship is too lightly regarded no one can deny, and it is achieved with very little formality, and is regarded only as conferring a right to vote. The many inducements of a free government and equality of human rights held out by our country attract a large number of the oppressed of all nations, and it would be difficult to draw the line. Yet many are inclined to believe as the judge in this case did, that when a person cannot understand the questions put to him, even when interpreted in his own tongue, he should be denied citizenship with a people who feel it an honor to call themselves Americans.

THE NORTHERN FARMERS ALLIANCE.

The convention which has been sitting at Omaha for several days is a body composed of representatives of the National Farmers' Alliance—a body which must not be confounded with the "National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union," whose convention at Ocala was recently reported at some length in our columns. This Northern alliance, as it is generally called, has its greatest strength in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and North Dakota. It is a smaller body than the F. A. and I. U., and its political successes have not been so great. There was some expectation that it would unite with the larger body at Ocala, but it did not.

The platform just adopted at Omaha is a remarkable piece of architecture. The fourth plank is as follows:

"The alliance shall take no part as partisans in a political struggle as affiliating with Republicans or Democrats."

The seventh plank reads thus:

"We declare in favor of holding a convention on February 22, 1892, to fix a date and place for holding a convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States. The representation shall be one delegate from each State in the Union."

How these two planks can be reconciled or dovetailed together, in the same platform, does not appear to the average mind. But plank four is theory, and plank seven is practice.

With a convention of the alliance and Knights of Labor at Cincinnati on February 22 or 23, 1892, and one of the Northern alliance somewhere on the same date, things begin to look as if there would be an extra Presidential ticket in the field in 1892.

SOME DEMOCRATIC DEFAULTERS.

A special committee of the Arkansas Legislature has just been engaged in counting the money in the office of the State Treasurer. That official has been found to be short just about $94,500, and his bondsmen will have to make good the deficit. A few days ago, in the report of the State Auditor to the Legislature the fact was announced that seven of the county treasurers of Arkansas are at the present time defaulters, some of them for small amounts, but altogether aggregating quite a large sum. This will do pretty well for one ironclad Democratic State, where the principles of Jefferson are supposed to be carried out in all their purity, and where the Democrats have had things all their own way for a number of years.

This exposure in Arkansas brings to mind a number of other causes of the same sort. It was only last spring that the State Treasurer of Maryland, Stevenson Archer, was indicted for embezzling $132,000. About the same time it was discovered in New Orleans, during the course of the fight on the lottery charter, that a Democratic member of the State Legislature had fled with about $60,000, of embezzled funds. This man, whose name was Alphonse Phillips, had an example set him by the previous flight of the Louisana State Treasurer, Mr. Burke, with nearly $800,000 of the State's money, which has never been recovered.

Still about the same time, namely, the middle of last May, it was discovered in Kansas City that the city treasurer, Mr. Peake, was short about $20,000 in his accounts, and the citizens were thoroughly frightened when they discovered, after Mr. Peake had been in office for three days, that although $100,000 had come into his hands not a cent of it had been deposited in the bank.

It was only the other day in New York that the courts affirmed a judgment in favor of the city against Philip Goldman and Adam Kunkle, who were sureties on the bond of E. D. Gale, formerly collector of arrears of taxes, and the sureties were obliged to turn over $10,000 to the city treasury.

Following is a list of States in which the State Treasurers have defaulted. It does not include, of course, any county or city officials who have proved unfaithful to their trusts. It shows that within a short period no less than ten State Treasurers have proven untrue to their obligations, and have stolen altogether more than $4,500,000:

Louisiana	$ 793,500
Georgia	90,000
Kentucky	200,000
Virginia	150,000
Tennessee	400,000
Missouri (several thieves)	1,857,000
Mississippi	315,612
Maryland (estimated)	500,000
Arkansas	80,000
Alabamy	200,000
Total	$4,586,212

The amounts stolen have undoubtedly been overstated in some of the items of the above table, but the fact of the stealing remains the same. This is a very remakable exhibit. It would seem as if such wholesale plundering by State officials in one section of the country during a period of less than one year must be something more than merely accidental. It is a remarkable fact that every one of these ten States is a Democratic State, and that all of them but three—Maryland, Missouri and Kentucky—were of those lately in rebellion. It has been the fashion in certain Democratic circles and in all Democratic newspapers to hold up the Democratic party as the party of purity and economy, and to denounce the Republican party as the party of corruption, lavish expenditure and waste of public funds. In view of the facts presented above it is hard to see what basis there is for any such allegation. Within a year ten Democratic State Treasurers and a large number of other Democratic county and city officials, nearly all in the States south of Mason and Dixon's line, which are solidly Democratic, and which are kept so by force and fraud in order—so the dominant party tells us—that government may be administered with purity and economy, have stolen the funds committed to their charge. During the same period how many Republican officials have even been charged, much less convicted, of any such malfeasance? The balance is overwhelmingly against the Democrats. It is ridiculous for them any longer to attempt to pose as the party of purity and honesty.

A Paper for the Million.

The Western Rural and American Stockman is one of the oldest and ablest farm journals published in this country, and none is more fully identified with the best intertsts of the agricultural classes. It deals not only with the farm but more especially with the farmer. Its columns are devoted to subjects involving literature and science and its aims are for the promotion and elevation of the social and economic condition of the farmer and his family. The Rural advocates physical culture and manual training as well as intellectual endowment. It believes that the State owes to the citizen the right of such an education as shall fit him for a self-reliant citizenship and that our Public School system should be enlarged along the more practical lines. In short, the Rural is a Fireside Companion as well as a helper in the affairs of farm life. Subscription price $1.50 per year. Mr. Gorman in the Senate.

When the Senate opens in the morning, while the page boys are drawn up a semi-circle, one at each desk in front of the Vice-President's table, and the chaplain is pouring forth his appeal for a Divine blessing, to which Ingalls listens with folded arms and devoutly bended head, and to which Mr. Hoar responds with an earnest "Amen," Gorman sometimes stands with his shoulder against the arch of the cloak room door, one foot crossed over the other, that habitual frozen, cynical smile on his mouth, and looks over the Senate chamber as if he could read the thoughts of each man and the plans for the day each might be thinking of during his devotions. During the session he is sometimes in his seat, listening and watching intently, or is moving among his colleagues, quickly from one to another, but with coolness and an air of deliberation. Anxiety is never indicated on his face, and he preserves an even manner throughout the day and from day to day.

He is perpetually sought by newspaper men who want "inside information," and he talks with them all pleasantly and confidentially without giving them any information. Sometimes one who is radically wrong in his interpretation of a move will receive a hint to that effect; but he is left to his own wits to work out the truth. Gorman takes few people into his confidence, and many who take commands from him do so on faith, not knowing just the reason for them.—Washington Evening Star.

Wholesale Arrest of Township Officers.

For a week past Sheriff Goodin has been busy serving attachments issued by order of the County Court, returnable to the February term of said court, to be held in this city on Monday next, against each and every justice of the peace and constable in Mississippi county, whose term of office recently expired. It is charged in the attachments, as a cause for the wholesale arrest of officers, that they, or most of them, have failed, after due notice and in accordance with law, to make the settlements required by statute. The peculiar wording of some of the attachments bear the impression that the arrested officers are charged with embezzlement of funds collected by them; but it is not probable that such a charge was contemplated, the object of the extraordinary move being only to comply with law and make the justices and constables do the same with regard to settlements. The county court will be lively in its proceedings next week, perhaps.—Charleston Democrat.

C. M. Travis for Governor.

The Indianapolis, Indiana, Tribune is for C. M. Travis for Governor of Ohio. C. M. Travis is a brother of our fellow townsman Dr. G. W. Travis. The Tribune says of C. M. Travis:

The presentation of the name of Governor Alvin P. Hovey as the candidate of the Republican party for the office of United States Senator is the only ray of hope that has shown through the gloom of last Novembers' defeat for that party to carry the State of Indiana in 1892. Aside from Governor Hovey, the only other Republican that can come within 10,000 of an election is the Hon. Chas. M. Travis, of Crawfordsville.

CHILDLESS AMERICAN WOMEN.

Astonishing Figures Developed by the Last Census.

The fact that the total population of the United States has fallen below the popular estimate of 64,000,000 is likely to call attention to the fecundity of American women. Not long ago a sensational newspaper took a census of the children in certain fashionable quarters in this city, and brought to light the fact that comparatively few children gladden the spacious homes of Murray Hill, and that the birth rate there was alarmingly low. The last State census of Massachusets brings out some interesting facts in relation to the percentage of married women having no children. Here is a table compiled from the Massachusets census showing the percentage of native and of foreign born women having children:

MARRIED WOMEN WITHOUT CHILDREN.

	Native born.	Foreign born.
The State	20.18	13.27
Barnstable	16.95	14.77
Berkshire	17.93	9.49
Bristol	19.61	13.08
Dukes	20.00	14.89
Essex	19.43	13.78
Franklin	19.33	11.20
Hampden	20.86	11.98
Hampshire	20.23	12.61
Middlesex	19.92	13.52
Nantucket	17.26	27.03
Norfolk	17.63	11.67
Plymouth	18.58	13.28
Suffolk	23.89	14.94
Worcester	20.03	10.29

Here we find that one-fifth of the married women of Massachusets are childless. It is said that in no country save France can a similar condition of affairs be found. On the other hand, instead of over 20 per cent., only 13.27 per cent. of the foreing-born women of Massachusets are childless. What is true of this State is undoubtedly in a greater or less degree true throughout the country. The time has come, when we must face the fact that, the increase of population by birth is decreasing—that the tendency of the times among well-to-do Americans is to small families, and that one-fifth of our native married women are childless.—Chicago Tribune.
