DEATH IN THE SHAFT.

P. C. Holt Caught Beneath a Hoisting Cage at Bottom of Shaft and Instantly Killed.

A fatal accident occurred last Monday morning about 2:30 o'clock at Federal shaft No. 2, on the old Derby property, in which P. C. Holt was instantly killed by being caught under the hoisting cage at the bottom of the shaft and crushed.

It appears from the best information obtainable, that at the beginning of the shift a loaded car had been dumped in the sump or bottom of the shaft, which made considerable trouble. Holt was taking out the rock. It is claimed that he signaled the cage up, then signaled to stop, again rang four times, which is the signal to hoist with a man on the cage, and in about two seconds rang twice, which is a signal to lower. There must have been some misunderstanding of the signals, for Holt was not on the cage, but under it, and as it was lowered he was caught beneath it and crushed to death.

No one was with Holt at the time, as the mule driver had gone back to the heading, about 800 feet away, after a loaded car. Holt was held under the car fifteen or twenty minutes before his dead body was discovered. He was a married man, 28 years of age and had several children.

Why Pick Out the Little Fellow

A sixty-five dollar per month clerk, testifying before New York's insurance committe, declared that he never signed a voucher acknowledging the receipt of several hundred dollars, to which voucher his name was attached. Newspaper dispatches have much to say concerning the promises that this clerk will be vigorously prosecuted on the charge of perjury.

This is all very well so far as it goes; but how does it happen that the prosecution of the McCalls, and the McCurdys—men who robbed their policyholders of millions of dollars—is not seriously proposed by any one in authority? How does it happen that out of all of this exposure of theft and embezzlement, no one in authority seriously proposes the arrest and prosecution of the men who for so many years have pretended to have a monopoly upon the patriotism and the intelligence of the country?

We have heard in recent years concerning the claim that men who protest against the wrongdoing of wealthy rascals are stirring up class hatred. Do not intelligent men know that nothing will be so productive of intense class hatred as the fact once established, that laws were made for the prosecution of the poverty stricken wrongdoer; that the man who steals a loaf of bread or the woman who makes away with a peck of coal must pay the penalty; but the rich man who adds to his millions through the spoilation of trust funds goes scott free, or is permitted to escape without punishment other than that involved, perhaps, in an enforced relinquishment of his office.—The Commoner.
