COLLEGE ATHLETES LIVE LONGER.

Director of Yale Gymnasium Will Issue Statistics of Graduates.

Dr. William G. Anderson, director of the gymnasium at Yale, is about to publish a report in the Yale Alumni Weekly to the effect that college specialized athletes live longer and are sounder in after life than those who did not distinguish themselves in athletics during their undergraduate days. He bases his conclusion on an exhaustive statistical investigation of the mortality among members of Yale teams and that among general graduates during the last 50 years. He finds that of 10,922 students in academic and Sheffield school classes from 1855 to 1905 inclusive, 1,406 are dead and 9,516 living. The percentage of deaths is 12.9 per cent. Of the 807 athletes during the same period 58 are dead, or a percentage of 7.2, or only little over half the general graduates. Consumption was responsible for 12 of the 58 deaths, but he says n the case of athletes the percentage of men dying from this cause was not greater than the expected deaths from among non-athletes from a similar cause. Deaths from heart disease were four, a very low average, he declares. Pneumonia carried off six and typhoid five, and nine of the 58 athletes met violent deaths, of which two were suicidal. Dr. Anderson holds that while the Yale men who reached high honors n the major sports in the last half century has more than the ordinary man's share of long life, it is yet unproven whether this is due to his development as an athlete or his original strength, and it seems likely to remain so until some more perfect means of comparison can be found.

A Fortunate and Grateful Woman.

Mrs. J. H. Giles of Everett, Pa., says: "I suffered for many years from kidney and gravel trouble. The pains from the gravel were simply awful. No physicians or medicines at home did me any good. I finally began using Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. A few words tell the result. I am a happy and perfectly well woman once more."

TOBACCO GROWING.

Florida and Georgia Competing With Northern Products.

Some points in tobacco trade requirements as presented by Dr. E. H. Jenkins before the Massachusetts state board of agriculture is reported in New England Homestead as follows:

Florida and southern Georgia are again becoming a great tobacco growing region, and while at present its output wraps only about 10 per cent of the cigars of this country the business because of its apparent success is likely to grow to an extent which we cannot foresee. At present Florida has the call on the market, and its crop sells itself. Florida and Sumatra are unquestionably the popular tobaccos with manufacturers, Wisconsin leaf is more largely used for wrappers than it was, and New England wrapper leaf is losing its pre-eminence.

The great struggle is to make cigars as cheaply as possible. The production of good grades of Havana filler has not at all kept pace with the increased cigar manufacture, and, as all of us who smoke know to our cost, the quality of cigars has greatly deteriorated.

Mine is the unwelcome task of asking you to consider the fruits of our tobacco and not its excellencies.

New England leaf as it leaves the dealer's hands is not nearly as uniform in color, shape or even size as either Florida or Sumatra leaf. It is sorted before sweating and never afterward. Colors change unequally in the sweat. The leaf next to sides of the case does not sweat in the same degree as that farther in, so that cigar manufacturers often must resweat this outside leaf, a thing which adds to the cost. The tobacco is, to be sure, sized according to length, but any one who studies his crop carefully in the field knows that even in his own crop the width and shape and style of leaf vary a good deal.

SUMATRA LEAF TOBACCO.

With Sumatra and also with Florida leaf the case is quite different. In the first place, these tobaccos are sorted after sweating, not before. The colors are fixed then. For the same reason there is no resweating to be done. Here is a saving of labor and of expense to the manufacturer.

Cut wrappers from a big Havana or seed leaf and you have left perhaps two inferior wrappers or a few binders and a large amount of waste leaf, which you paid 50 to 75 cents a pound for, to use as filler if you will or to sell again for from 10 to 20 cents a pound. You have, in other words, a lot of waste product on hand to dispose of as best you can.

Paraguay.

In Paraguay there are more than twice as many women as men. This is due to the fact that some years ago in a political revolution and a war with Brazil and the Argentine Republic the men were almost exterminated.

Apple Trees For Planting.

Some leading apple growers of Missouri who have planted one-year-old trees every spring are satisfied with the results, but regard the use of the very strongest first class two-year-old or even three-year-old as preferable.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

A queer state of affairs seems to exist in the locality known as "Bear Town" (in Underhill Center) where several small children, all of school age, are left without means of attending school, although the parents of those children are called on annually to pay their taxes.

Ludlow coal dealers complain that while there is coal enough to be had at the centers of supply, transportation facilities are lacking, and even when coal is loaded for shipments the roads are slow to move it. Considerable inconvenience will result if there is not a change soon.

An important business transfer will be consummated in Burlington January 12 when the business so long known to the public under the name of B. Turk & Brother, will be taken over by a corporation to be known as the B. Turk & Brother Co. S. S. Richell, who has just concluded the managership of a large department store in Elizabeth City, N. C., is to become one of the largest stockholders in the new company.

Death of Former Prominent Vermonter.

Edwin G. Southworth, aged 78 years, one of the most prominent old-time residents of West Lebanon, N. H., and widely known throughout New Hampshire and Vermont, died of pneumonia at his residence in West Lebanon, Wednesday, December 26.

Mr. Southworth was born in West Fairlee, and filled the offices of tax collector and sheriff of Orange county for nearly twenty years, residing in Vershire. He was the first manager of the Orange county hotel in Chelsea, the county seat of Orange county. After removing to West Lebanon he built the now well-known Sargent's hotel and stable, (which he conducted for twenty-five years;) and he had contributed largely to the building up of the village, having built the large residence adjoining the hotel, where he resided at the time of his death.

Found Deer's Antler in Road.

C. A. J. White was driving through Pinney Hollow in Plymouth last Saturday, and when just east of the James Wood place he saw a large deer antler with four points, lying in the snow beside the sleigh track. Mr. White picked it up and found traces of fresh blood on it, where it broke from the buck's head. Fresh tracks in the snow indicated that the animal had probably jarred the antler partially loose by jumping over a fence and down a steep bank, and then shook it off as he crossed the road.

Runaway Team Still Missing.

A most peculiar runaway occurred in Bellows Falls Monday night of last week. A Greek hired a horse of William Gassette in Windsor and came to Bellows Falls to call upon his countrymen here. The runners caught in the electric railroad tracks and overturned the rig. He was thrown out and the horse started to run up Rockingham street. As soon as he recovered himself he started to find them but to this day no trace of the team can be found. The owner has scoured the country all about for many miles but inquiries fail to discover the whereabouts of the rig. The case is one that baffles any solution.

Observed 94th Birthday.

Several of the friends and relatives of Mrs. Tirzah White of Bridgewater called on her last Wednesday afternoon to help her celebrate the 94th anniversary of her birthday. She received many appropriate presents besides several letters of congratulation from absent friends. Mrs. White, although past the allotted four score years and ten, is as bright and active as most at half her age. Last summer she took the entire care of her garden as she has done for the past years, and her garden equals in product that of many younger people. Those present Wednesday passed a very enjoyable time and in leaving all wished her many happy returns of the day.

A Bronze Medal Calendar.

The 1907 calendar of N. W. Ayer & Son, the Philadelphia advertising agents is just out and as usual it is one of the season's best office calendars.

They have followed the same design used in 1906, but their famous medal and motto "Keeping Everlastingly at It Brings Success" appear on a bronze background, which gives it an exceedingly rich appearance. While the calendar is arranged with a month on each flap the figures are clearly legible across a large room. The blank spaces on the flaps are filled with new and pointed epigrams on advertising and business building in general.

The calendar is too expensive for general distribution, but while they last, Ayer & Son will mail a copy to any address upon receipt of twenty-five cents.

Horse Talk.

Never leave a horse tied with his head to the wind.

Bedding makes the manure much more valuable and makes the horses look better.

Never leave home without a horse blanket, and when the horse is stopped, even for a short time, put the blanket on him.

Be sure that the halters put on the colts are strong and well fitted. If broken or rubbed off it will not be forgotten, and the result will be a halter breaking horse and a nuisance.

Give the colts a chance. Thrifty yearlings should grow one hand taller this winter. But they won't do it unless well fed.

Do not give the colts ice cold water to drink. When a colt shivers a day's growth is taken out of him.—Farm Journal.

Low Stumps In Tree Felling.

It is now frequently urged that trees be cut with low stumps to avoid waste of timber. However, only sound butted trees will yield a profit on low stumps. What is supposed to be gained in the woods by cutting trees with damaged butts too low is lost in the mill at the trimmer, where the original length may be reduced by at least two feet.

Good Fences.

A great deal of disappointment will surely come to the sheep breeder who depends on poor fences. A good fence must be maintained where sheep are kept. We have heard people say that barbed wire is not good for sheep, as it will pull the wool from the sheep. This is a mistake, for we had such fences for twenty years and never lost more than enough wool for the birds to make nests of.—Farm Homestead.

Language Changes

So rapid has been the change in the English language that the English of today bears no more resemblance to the English of 1,000 years ago than it does to German.
