Secretary Smith's Opinion.

Secretary Alex. Smith of Barre branch reports his observations in the following monthly letter:

"Dec. 1.—Nothing to report this month, at least nothing of an encouraging nature. We have been living in hopes for the past few months that trade conditions would improve in our little town, but no, our fondly cherished hopes got all shriveled up on the morning of Nov. 16, when the bosses with solemn looks informed the cutters that the sheds were closed for the present. Well, the members went home, scratching their heads and thinking hard about what the trouble could be. After nosing around a little it was found that there had been a fizzle at one of the one-horse plants in Northfield over the cutters declining to work a machine called the 'bumper.' We scratched our heads the more, and thought still harder and are still thinking, but seem to be unable to realize why we are all locked out here, because there is a little trouble in Northfield. However we are still on the street and 'waiting for something to turn up,' but trust that something will be done soon, so that the cutters can return to work. There is one thing that the members agreed upon, and that is, the agreements we sign with the manufacturers are nothing better than a bundle of waste paper. A. M. Smith."

ABOUT THE STATE

Joel Bristol of Jamaica cut off all the toes on one foot recently while splitting wood.

The freight business of the Rutland railroad was the heaviest during the year 1909 that it has been for many years.

During the storm of Monday night, the roof of a house in Bakersfield was blown off and lodged on top of a telephone pole.

The ice on the Rutland pond is about six inches thick and it is thought by the men that they will begin cutting about January 1.

Elem D. Powers, a native of St. Albans, died Tuesday in Brookfield Wis., in which state he had lived for fifty-seven years. Had he lived six weeks longer, he would have been 99 years of age.

Harry Stone of Warren, a five-year-old lad, got caught in a belt at the steam mill last week Wednesday and had one arm broken and received a bad scalp wound. Had the belt not broken, instant death would have been the result.

Fred Mimeau, who worked in Pinney's stretcher mill in West Windsor, was fatally injured December 4, when a board flew from the saw, striking him in the abdomen, causing internal injuries from which he died.

With the holiday shopping season, shoplifters are beginning to get in their work, one Rutland merchant having $6.50 worth of goods stolen in one day he knew of. He is quite sure who took them, and expects to get the goods back.

Beulah, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Bates of North Pownal, while playing with matches on Saturday afternoon, was quite badly burned, her clothes taking fire, but the flames were extinguished before she was seriously injured.

Forrest Hammond, aged 17, son of Fred Hammond of West Windsor, was badly injured Saturday, December 4, while sliding, the damage being a dislocated kneecap. It was only recently that young Hammond lost two fingers by the explosion of a gun.

Frank B. Howe met with a painful, though not serious, accident recently at the Estey organ factory in Brattleboro. A heavy bellows fell upon one of his feet and crushed one toe. He was taken to the Brattleboro Memorial hospital, and at first it was believed that an amputation would be necessary.

George R. Wiley of Essex Junction, while at work in his livery stable Sunday, made a misstep and broke a ligament in his right foot. Frank Demag of the same place, who works in a blacksmith shop, sustained a painful injury to one of his eyes Friday. He was making a horse shoe when a cinder flew into his eye, burning it quite badly.

Saturday, December 4, while Peter Smart of Williamsville was playing with several other children, they found a small can of powder and, thinking if the proper time to have some fun, Peter set fire to it, with the result that he was badly burned about the face and eyes. It is feared he has lost the sight of one eye, if not both. He was taken to the ear and eye infirmary in Boston.

A. E. Atwood, publisher of the Brattleboro souvenir calendar, who is employed by E. L. Hildreth & company, while at work in the wood working shop of H. W. Sargent, December 4, cut off the second and third finger on his left hand, and badly lacerated the first and fourth fingers on the same hand. He was working about a small circular saw, preparing material for mailing his calendars. He was taken to the Memorial hospital.

Rutland and vicinity were treated to severe wind storm Monday night, blowing down trees and telephone poles and doing considerable damage. At the home of W. R. Eddy, a shed was blown down and a small timber from it was driven by the wind through the slate roof of the house into a bedroom. No one was injured, as the room was unoccupied, but it will cost about $25 to repair the damage done. Near Bennington, 30 telephone poles went down, taking the wires with them.

Peters Brothers of Windsor, who have been manufacturers and wholesale and retail delears in confectionary there for some time, have purchased the business, furniture and fixtures in the shop of Isaac G. Barber of Westerly, R. I., and will begin their occupation there immediately. Mr Barber has been engaged in the manufacture and sale of candy in Westerly for thirty years, and the Peters brothers intend to enlarge the rooms formerly used by Mr. Barber and have the best retail rooms in that section of of the country.

Hollis Sheldon, a native of Simonsville, was found dead in his bed at the Soldier's Home in Chelsea, Mass., November 23. He was born in 1842. He entered the service as a private in company K, 4th Vermont volunteer infantry, August 29, 1861. He was promoted to corporal. He was discharged from the service September 30, 1864, after engaging in the following battles, Lee's Mills, Williamsburg, Savage Station, Second Bull Run, South Mountain, First and Second Fredericksburg, Gettysburg and The Wilderness. He was wounded in the right arm May 5, 1864.

Peter Lawyea of Alburg, for whom the federal officers in Vermont have been searching since he was indicted at the October, 1908, term of United States court in Rutland for smuggling Chinamen, was recently arrested at Chateaugay, N. Y., and he was taken to Rutland. He will be locked up at the Rutland county jail until his case comes up in court, probably at the February term. Lawyea is supposed to have aided and abetted Bark Goon, a Celestial, who has since jumped his bail, in getting into this country from Canada unlawfully.

There has been recently installed in the keeper's house of the Bennington battle monument, which is on the monument grounds at Center Bennington, the beautiful oil painting of Captain Elijah Dewey, who was famous in Bennington's revolutionary days. The portrait was painted by Earle, the famous portrait painter, nearly 150 years ago. It is a valuable antiquity. During the year there have been 6000 visitors to the monument. In this number are included citizens of all but a dozen states in the Union. This is a considerable gain over last year, but a decrease from the year 1907.

Congressman Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, who is at the head of the Rutland-Florence Marble company in Fowler, has bought of P. M. Meldon and W. M. Peck of Rutland, H. S. Bingham of Bennington and Henry H. Hanley of North Adams, Mass., 10 acres of marble land in West Rutland, which was part of a 40-acre tract bought four years ago by Mr. Meldon and associates from the Liscomb and Hyde estates. The property is on the same vein as the famous West Rutland quarries of the Vermont Marble company, about a half mile south of them. It is said to contain the finest white and variegated marble. Congressman Fowler prospected for three months before making the purchase.

Among the holiday books that interest Rutland people particularly, and people generally, who like the beautiful, is "Rutland the Gateway of the Green Mountains," published by Louis F. Brehmer from his original photographs. The book includes fine double-page views of the mountain skyline east of the city, Mount Manley, Blue Ridge, with some artistic bits, such as A Misty Morning, Otter Creek, Mt Pico, McLaughlin Falls and a number of pictures hitherto unpublished. It is printed on a fine, supercoated sepia paper, with a marbled cover. The introduction to the book is by H. L. Hindley, who eloquently pictures Rutland in the grandeur of its natural resources, its commercial opportunities and beauty of location, a Mecca for tourists and a place altogether lovely.

Pet Crow Goes To School.

Forrest Wentworth of West Dover, a student in the Brattleboro high school, has a pet crow, which is quite an interesting bird. When its master attended the school in Dover, the crow would accompany the boy and stay on the window sill near him during the session. When Master Forrest ceased to attend school, the bird transferred his liking to another school boy, and goes to school with him. The tame crow dislikes hens and takes every opportunity to torment them, but does not offer to disturb chickens. He seems to understand what is said to him, and talks some. He can say "hello" very plainly and talks more freely when a drum is played. He has started horses several times by clucking, and has also been trained to squeal in a peculiar manner.
