THE POTATO BEETLE.

Appearance of the Pest and a Good Spray to Kill the Bugs.

The potato beetle is such a common pest that a description scarcely seems necessary, but since other insects are often mistaken for it, it may be well to give a brief account of it. The adult beetle is is oval in form, about three-eighths of an inch in length, and just a little narrower than long. The ground color is yellow. The upper wings are marked by 10 black lines running lengthwise, says The American Cultivator. The adults live over winter in the ground to the depth of 6 to 10 inches or more. Where the ground is loose, they have been found to the depth of several feet. In the spring, the beetles appear about the time that the potatoes break from the ground, and in a few days the egg-laying begins. The eggs are bright yellow in color and are laid in patches on the under side of the leaves. Each patch contains from 15 to 30 eggs. They are very easily discovered by simply turning over the vines with the hands, so that the under sides of the leaves are exposed. Every potato grower should make a systematic examination of the vines by passing through his fields and turning over the leaves of two or three hills in each row.

The eggs hatch in from four to eight days, according to the temperature. The larvae are dark-red grubs, with black heads. For the first day or two they often eat the surface of the leaf upon which they were hatched. Then they migrate to the top of the plant and feed upon the young tender leaves, which are just unfolding. The ideal moment for the first spray is just when the eggs are beginning to hatch. Fortunately, we know an insectable which will stand considerable wet weather and still leave enough clinging to the leaves to do very effective work. This is arsenate of lead. This poison usually comes in the form of a white paste, though some manufacturers make a powdered product. The arsenical is applied to the vines in water at the rate of six or eight pounds of the poison to 100 gallons of water, or about three or four pounds to the barrel. The best way to mix the poison is to weigh out the required amount in a pail, pour in some water, and mix thoroughly with a stick. Pour off the top of the mixture into the barrel of water through a screened funnel. Add more water to the remainder in the pail, mix, and proceed as before until all the substance has been dissolved.

The best means of application, especially in large fields, is by means of a power sprayer. These machines are made to spray from four to six rows, with a fine, misty spray. A fine nozzle is used and the liquid forced out with pressure. The pressure is obtained by gear attachments with the wheels. It will be best for the farmer to consult neighbors who have used these machines and select one that has given satisfaction elsewhere. Some of the earlier makes failed to give sufficient power to make a good spray.

A very effective home-made spray may be made by mounting a square platform on the front wheels of a wagon. On this a barrel is placed, which is furnished with a good hand-spray pump. From the barrel four lends of hose go to a rod extending across the back of the platform. Each hose is provided with a vermorel nozzle, which sprays downward. The nozzles are spaced so that one comes over each row of potatoes. The cost of this apparatus is about $20, not counting the wagon and labor.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

About the State

The grangers of Bennington and Rutland counties are planning for the biggest field day ever held by the fraternity in southern Vermont, to take place in Dorset, July 21.

The number of visitors to the Bennington monument during the month of May was 566. The number for the corresponding month in 1909 was 402, a difference this year of 64 people.

In a fight, which occurred at Wilder Tuesday night, one man had one of his fingers chewed off and various other damage inflicted upon him. As a result of the fracas, one arrest was made and the culprit paid a fine in court Wednesday.

Ned Martin, aged two years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Martin of Hardwick, got one thumb caught in the large wheel of a sewing machine Monday, which his five-year-old brother was turning. Their mother had gone to the cellar and, upon her return, found that the boy's nail was pulled off and the thumb badly torn and bruised.

Marjorie Naudet, the ten-year-old daughter of A. P. Naudet of Burlington, left for Montreal Wednesday, expecting to sail yesterday on the steamer, Royal George for London, Eng., to remain until fall. The little girl was accompanied to Montreal by her mother and brother, but she will make the journey across the ocean alone, in the charge of the captain.

The people of St. Bridget's parish, Roman Catholic, of West Rutland are preparing to celebrate on July 4, the 50th anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the church, which was built in 1860 by the late Rev. Thomas Lynch, who at the time of his death in Fair Haven, ten years ago, was vicar general of the parish. As the golden jubilee comes on the national holiday the program will be largely of a patriotic character. Bishop Joseph J. Rice will attend.

Lawrence Wade of Dorset met with a serious accident last Tuesday, when he backed his horse and wagon off a bridge running from the highway to the upper part of a barn belonging to George E. Sexton of East Dorset. The outfit fell to the ground, a distance of 15 feet, killing the horse, valued at $250, and injuring Mr. Wade so that he was unconscious for some time. He was injured on his shoulders and back, where he struck the ground.

Ephraim Adams, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Adams of White River Junction, was knocked down and run over by a team Saturday evening, being quite severely injured. He was playing with other boys and, as two teams were passing in opposite directions, they ran into the street, not seeing one of the teams, so that, in avoiding one, young Adams stepped directly in front of the other. His scalp was laid over onto one side of his head and the ligaments of one leg were badly torn. The boy refused to take any anesthetic while the scalp was being sewed in place.

There is in the window of a jewelry store in Swanton an exact model of a Japanese naval machine gun built by W. P. Garring of that place from the scraps of gun parts used in the construction of pieces for the Japanese government. Mr. Garring, who is now employed in the shops of the Robin Hood Powder company, Swanton, worked in the English arsenal at the time of the Russian war, when the company was turning out guns for the Japanese, and he used his spare time in making this model. It is complete and in proportion in all its details, and the owner has often discharged the piece.

A new automobile club has been formed and a constitution and bylaws adopted at Newport. The officers are: President, H. F. Hamilton; vice-president, O. C. Miller; and secretary and treasurer, D. N. Dwinell. The executive committee numbers J. F. Lambert, G. D. Pratt and J. R. Kirkpatrick, and a roads' committee, which will assist the authorities in improving and maintaining highways. The object of the club is to protect the rights of the automobile owners and to secure fair legislation regarding taxation and licensing of automobiles. Accidents due to bad roads and hostile demonstration against motor vehicles from certain elements aided in the formation of this organization.

Mitchel-Brown.

A pretty home wedding took place Wednesday evening, June 8, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Drusilla Mitchell, in Bath, N. H., when her daughter, Jennie, was united in marriage with Ervin Eugene Brown. The parlor was decorated with ferns and daisies, the contracting parties standing beneath a floral bell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. C. Cowper of Woodsville, N. H., and was witnessed by a small party of friends and relatives. The bride and groom were attended by a brother and sister of the bride and the bride was given away by her uncle, A. J. McLean of Plainfield, Vt. She was charming in a princess gown of white net, over white, and carried red roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in white. After the ceremony, ice cream was served and at two o'clock Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Brown departed on their wedding journey, followed by the best wishes of many friends. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue. They will visit Boston and Pittsfield, N. H., and on their return will reside at Woodsville, N. H., where they will be at home after July 1.

WOULD REBUILD RUINS.

Project Started to Restore Old Fort at St. Frederic.

Burlington, June 10.—Since the acceptance of the gift of Fort Frederic on Crown Point by the legislature of New York from the firm of Weatherbee, Sherman & Co., a number of people who are interested in preserving the historical points along the lake are engaged in an attempt to have the ruins put into some such shape as are those at Fort Ticonderoga. Although no great battle was ever fought on this point, it has almost as interesting a history and in some ways surpasses it. It was selected by the French for the strongest fortification on the lake and after the destruction of the first fort, General Amherst erected another at an expense to the English government of $10,000,000. The ruins of the second fort are in a fair state of preservation and, although the work was never completed, the outlines of what was one of the strongest fortification on this continent at that time can be plainly distinguished. The fort was never named but is known as Fort Frederic from the name of the first fort, which was christened by the French.

The walls of the old fort are still standing and the large ditches dug by English soldiers nearly two centuries ago for moats are easily traced. The fort abounded in secret passages and tunnels which were in vogue in colonial times and now they are plainly outlined. One leading to the lake has filled in at points but its course in plain. A short distance from the fort, Israel Putnam, afterwards General Putnam of Revolutionary fame, was captured by the Indians and bound to an oak tree to be burned. The fagots had been piled up as high as his arm pits and the Indian braves were amusing themselves by throwing tomahawks into the tree near his head, when Marin, the greatest of French scouts, came to the rescue and gave him his liberty. The oak tree was still standing a few years ago but has since blown down. Part of the trunk, however, remains.

Putnam is only one of the great heroes of later days, who received his education in arms in the vicinity of Crown Point. Montcalm, who was killed before Quebec, for a time was in command of the fort, as was Arnold, and a number of almost equal fame. Among the rangers who passed in and out of its walls were Williams, who, before leaving to take part in the French and Indian war, made his will, which furnished funds for the founding of Williams college.

Another interesting point is the place, a short distance outside of the fort, where signs of an extensive settlement are still to be seen, but of which there is almost no record. Murray says that the population must have been four or five thousand. Remains of a street made of broken stone, such as is used at the present time, is seen, as well as cellars of houses, some of them in solid rock. There are also trees not native of these parts but which were doubtless brought there by immigrants of whom nobody knows. The road built by General Amherst to Ticonderoga is also plain at points and little shrubbery has sprung up in its pathway.

...FACT PROVED...
Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.
If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit inoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.
It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ—which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.
Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.
Accept no substitute. "Destroy the germ you remove the effect."
