NEW FALL AND WINTER GOODS

HAVING begun business about the last of the Spring, and consequently not having at that time purchased a Summer Stock we have been compelled to buy FALL & WINTER GOODS EARLY and since the middle of August have been receiving lines of goods to suit these seasons. We are now prepared to offer full lines of all goods we carry, and purchasers have an

ABSOLUTELY NEW STOCK
from which to select, we having been doing business here for too short a time for old stock to accumulate.
We beg to call attention to our stock of SILKS for men and women and children; also to our men's and boys'

BOOTS, both leather and rubber; men's and boys' neck wear, underwear and over suits. In dry goods to-m bleached and brown muslin-cations, sheetings, tickings, kerseys and cassimeres.

In dress goods to our prints, ginghams, cassimeres, cheveruses, satins, crepes, cambric, storm serge, Hercultas, fur novelties and other suitings. A first-class line of Groceries and Flour, Hats, Woollenware, and Tinware and Glassware

In the latter line we would suggest you examine our line of "patent colored" LAMPS. These lamps are not put on as in the old style with plaster of Paris, which, as soon as it becomes saturated with oil, causes it to pull the collar in place, but are fitted to the lamp by a patent process in such a manner that they will not come loose.
Will be pleased always to show goods, and if prices and quality are to the purchaser, we think we can satisfy them.

From The Pile

THE MASCAREY LAMP.
By J. E. M. RALEY.
When shadows fall across my soul
As twilight o'er the day,
And e'en the changeful seasons' roll Drives not the gloom away.

To save from waste, as they depart,
The quickly speeding years,
I hark to Him Whose sacred Heart
Hath sweetened even tears.

Within His thrice-blessed temple kneel,
Where e'en in darkest night
The myriad trembling rays reveal
The undying altar light.

O Christ, the Light, unceasingly Shine through the gloom of sin,
Be thou my ever-true refuge—
We need but enter in.

SHE DROPPED HER MITTEN.
It was just 6 o'clock, and the car was packed with people going home.

She carried some bundles, and in her efforts to handle them and save them from crushing she dropped her mitten. She saw it go, but was powerless to stay its descent, and it went down in successive stages in a triangular space between herself, a man who looked over her head, and an individual who was deaf.

"There goes my mitten!"
"The deaf man leaned over and said, 'Eh?'"

"My mitten—mitten—it fell down."
"Well, ye can't get it, mum.
Ye'll have to wait till the car gets to the end of the line, so the conductor kin pull up the floor."

"I'll do nothing of the kind.
Besides I ain't goin' to have all these people walking on it for half an hour."

"Haven't ye got another one?"
said the deaf man.

"Course I've got another one," and she wiggled the hand incased in her other mitten.

"The deaf man saw the movement, and knowing that women often carry carriage inside their hand coverings reached over and pulled her mitten off for her.

Then she screamed.
"The conductor was the only man who could edge his way to the scene of trouble.

"What's the matter here?"
"Lady dropped her nicker and can't pick it up," said the deaf man.

"Didn't drop my nicker—dropped my mitten," said the lady with the packages.

"Said she had another one," pursued the deaf man, "but she lied."
"You're an old doorman," said the woman with one mitten.

"Queer how folks go traveling about town with one nicker," said the deaf man.

"They get along better'n people with no ears," said the woman who didn't drop her nicker.

"Was that all the money yer husband give ye?" asked the deaf man in a tone of sympathy. "He must be a reg'lar brute."
"If he was here now, he'd eat you up."

"I s'pose them's collars and cuffs she's been doing up and is going to deliver 'em," said the deaf man to the passengers.

Then the conductor said, "Fare, please," and the woman gave up a nicker that she had been carrying in her mouth."

"Thought it was yer 'nitten,"
said the deaf man.

"You don't know how to think,"
said the woman.

"Wonder why she didn't carry 'em both in her mouth?" said the deaf man.

"You ought to stuff both your own mittens in yer mouth," said the woman.

"Ain't ye afraid ye'll swaller yer nicker that way some time?" asked the deaf man.

"If I do, I reckon it won't injure my hearing," said the woman.

A LEGAL CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Skill in examination is, perhaps, one of the most important qualifications of the attorney, and in considering the big retainers of the present day the mind runs back to an exhibition of skill in an Ohio county court several years ago.

The case was a murder, and a crossroads lawyer was retained for his reputed skill in criminal cases. On cross-examination he went at the witness after this manner.

"Now (ahem), Mr. Tompkins, you say you saw the defendant kill the man?"

"Yes, sir."
"Yes—well—how did you know it was the defendant?"

"Because I saw him."
"But, sir, how did you know it was him?"

"I've known him for thirty years."
"You have?"

"Yes."
"Known him all that time?"

"Yes."
"You state it under oath?"

"Yes."
"How did he kill him?"

"He shot him with a revolver."
"How do you know?"

"I saw him."
"Did you see the revolver?"

"Certainly."
"Did you see it revolve?"

"No, sir."
"Aha! How did you know it was a revolver?"

"It looked like one."
"Um-huh! Did you see him pull the trigger?"

"No, of course not."
"Ah! Then you admit he didn't pull the trigger?"

"I saw the blaze and smoke."
"Did you see any bullet in the blaze and smoke? Would the blaze and smoke have caused death?"

"Of course not."
"Then what danger was there in firing?"

"The bullet was found in the victim's head."
"Did you see any bullet strike the deceased?"

"Of course not."
"The attorney solemnly arose and addressed the court: 'If your honor please, we would like to introduce testimony in impeachment. Here is a man who swears that he saw one man kill another with a revolver, yet he neither saw the bullet leave the pistol nor strike the victim. He didn't even see the man pull the trigger.'

"Are you addressing the court?"
asked the judge.

"Why, certainly, if your honor please."
"How do you know?"

"Why, your honor certainly hears me."
"Yes, but you neither see your words leave your mouth nor strike the court's ears."
The attorney sat down.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PICKING FLAWS IN WOMAN.—
Let us, my friends, you of my own sex who may read these words, try and pick all the flaws we choose in woman, and what good does it do? writes Edward W. Bok in 'At Home with the Editor,' in the February Ladies' Home Journal. We always come back to her, and glad we are of the privilege, too! Nervous! But yet how calm and steady when the right time comes. Illogical! But yet how certain the intuition, how unerring the instinct! Without judgment? But yet how safe her counsel, how sure her guidance!
Never a leader? But what a helper!
Timid? But yet what a sweetheart!
Unsystematic? But yet with what precision is marked the training of her children! Dressy? But yet how she can wear her gowns!
Never ready? Rarely for the theatre, but yet how ever ready with her sweet womanly sympathy in time of trouble! Fond of pretty things? But yet how they become her person, her room, her house!
Expensive? Well, bless her, yes, but the cheapest article for the money ever created! And long may we love her to brighten our homes, make wise our children, make men better than they are, and life the better worth the living!
And we'll love her, too, for the reasons she has made.

A DISTINGUISHED CONFEDERATE GENERAL DEAD.

Gen. Edmund Kirby Smith, the last of the officers of the Confederate army enjoying the rank of general, died yesterday at Swanee, Tennessee, in his sixty-ninth year. His career was exceptionally brilliant and distinguished.
In the war with Mexico he was twice brevetted for gallantry—at Cerro Gordo and at Contreras. He was wounded in the battle of Bull Run, after which he was in command of department embracing East Tennessee and Kentucky and defeated the federal army at Richmond, Ky., in August, 1862. Assigned to the command of the trans-Mississippi department he organized a government embracing Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and the Indian Territory and managed it in the interest of the Confederacy with the greatest success to the end of the civil war.
He made his department self-supporting, and his army was the last to surrender. In 1864 he defeated Gen. N. P. Banks in his Red River campaign. Since 1875, he has been connected with the University of the South, at Swanee, as professor of mathematics and as chancellor of the University.—Sun, March 29.

der.

AN ANT'S BRAIN.—The creature which Solomon advised the suggard to consult in regard to a bit of information concerning the art of "hustling" has a brain larger in proportion to the size of its body than any other known being. Writers on that branch of entomology declare that ants are not only endowed with a high quality of instinct, but that they display reasoning and good judgment, as well as powers of reflection and calculation.

Mrs. Languish. "Tired! Oh, so tired all the time!" Mrs. Smart.
"Well, so I used to be until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a spring medicine, and now I don't know what it is to have that tired feeling. Try it, my dear; only be sure you get Ayer's."
