ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

There are at present only three inmates at the Springfield town farm, the smallest number at any one time in 40 years.

Rebecca Hill, aged 76 years, died Monday in Johnson of pneumonia, death being hastened by a fall, after which she lived but a few minutes.

Navigation opened yesterday on Lake Champlain, just twenty-two days later than last year. Water in the lake is six feet and a half above low water mark.

Lindsey Hays, youngest son of L. M. Hays of Essex Junction, nearly lost the sight of one eye Saturday, when he was struck under the eye by a stick, which grazed the eyeball.

Cornelius, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Mahoney of Burlington, who was severely burned Tuesday, when he sat down in a pail of boiling water, died at the Mary Fletcher hospital that night.

A bronze tablet has been placed in the First Congregational church of St. Albans in memory of Charles Wyman, a deacon from 1858-1897, Henry M. Stevens, from 1858-1910 and Benjamin D. Hopkins, 1886-1904.

R. K. Merrill of Orleans, a laborer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with Clerk F. S. Platt of the United States court. His liabilities are $1,545.92 and he gives his assets at $200, all of which is claimed to be exempt.

St. Albans liquor licenses were granted Tuesday as follows: First class, H. A. Dunbar at the American house, W. H. Larrow at the Central house, Owen Marron at the St. Albans house, and Dr. G. C. Berkley at the Colonial Inn; second class, John J. Thompson in the American house building and Michael Driscoll in the Sullivan building.

John Colton, the Rutland railroad brakeman, who was recently injured by falling from the top of a freight train, is improving at the Mary Fletcher hospital, Burlington, where he was taken after the accident which occurred at the Colchester siding. His foot will not have to be amputated as first thought.

The body of Charles Nielson of Athol, Mass., who was drowned Sunday night in the West river in Landgrove, was found Monday. While on the way from his parents' home to that of an uncle, he wadked off a bridge and quickly disappeared in the angry waters caused by the rain and thaw. Not until the next day did searchers find the body. Mr. Nielson was 30 wears of age and left a wife and two children in Athol.

The state committee earnestly desire a free and frank expression from the Republicans of Vermont of all shades of opinions, and cordially invite the attendance of all Republicans interested in promoting the unity and efficiency of the party.

WESTERN MINING DISTRICTS.

Maps and Report Show Individual Mining Camps Throughout the West.

The United States west of the 103d meridian, comprising the Rocky mountain, plateau, desert, and Sierra Nevada regions, is one of the most important producers of precious and allied metals in the world. Within this area are mining regions or camps which are known as "mining districts." In most of the states the boundaries of these districts are well recognized, some of them are legally recorded, and nearly all can be plotted on state maps with a fair degree of accuracy. In the Mother Lode country of California, however, there are no "mining districts" in the sense that the term is used in the other states.

The output of the mines in the United States is reported yearly to the division of mineral resources of the United States geological survey, and by a study of the district reports for a number of years the values of the most important metals produced in each district can be fairly well determined. In some districts, notably those in Colorado, the value of several products are nearly equal, but in most of the districts the output of one metal has a greater value than that of the rest.

The United States geological survey has published reports on the economic geology of a large number of the mining districts of the country. In 1908 the survey included in its annual volume "Mineral Resources of the United States" a map of the western states showing the location of the mining districts. A later publication, bulletin 507, "Mining Districts of the Western United States," by J. M. Hill, contains a revised edition of this map, together with much new material, and is an index of the gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, quicksilver, iron, and rare-metal mining districts of the western states.

A geologic introduction to this report, by Waldemar Lindgren, gives a general summary of the geology of the states and describes in some detail the economic geology of the more important camps as well as some of the less widely known mining regions. This part of the report includes a small map of the western United States showing the general distribution of the mining districts.
