Who "Republican" Is!—Wednesday, Mr. Washington Wilkinson, Republican candidate for the State Senate came into our office and demanded the name of the gentleman who had written the card published in the BEACON, of October 5th insinuating the name of "Republican." We replied that we would consult with the correspondent and give Mr. Wilkinson an answer by 12 o'clock, Thursday. After consultation with the author of said card we have been instructed to publish the name in to-day's paper. We believe it to be the name of a true Republican as is in St. Mary's county, and it is, Frank Neal Hines.

Mortuary Resolutions.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND, LAW SCHOOL, Class 1894.

Be it Resolved, by the Class of 1894, of the Law School of the University of Maryland, that it has heard with sincere regret the announcement of the death of our fellow-student and classmate BRUCE BOND. In the two years of our association with our departed comrade, we have learned to apply the line: "To know him was to love him," and therefore we grieve that he has been called away.

Be it also Resolved, that the Class of 1894 tender to the bereaved family of our fellow-classmate our heartfelt sympathy in this their time of sorrow.

Be it Further Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, and published in the papers of his native county.

Oyster Law Violations.—The State Oyster police schooner Bessie Jones, Wednesday last week made a number of arrests for oyster law violations in the waters of Potomac river and Brittan's bay. Philip Morgan, Alvin Norris, James Bond, Charles Maddox, George Holmes and Robert Butler were captured on the Potomac but were released, after a hearing before Justice J. P. Morgan, at Leonardtown, on the ground of insufficient legal evidence, there being no official copy of the Act of the Virginia Legislature submitted to prove the concurrence of that State in the Potomac law. Arthur Wilson and Henry Wilson were before the same magistrate charged with tonging in Brittan's bay without license. Arthur was acquitted and Henry fined $20. The captains were made by Captain Hayden Mockingbird the mouth of the bay with the Jones and mate Co. de running down the bay from Leonardtown in a small boat.

Captain and Mate Thrown Overboard.—John Bannan, Patrick Barden and James Barrett, three of the crew of the oyster vessel Horatio Seymour, were brought to Baltimore from Leonardtown Md., yesterday, and committed to jail by Commissioner Rogers for a hearing on the charge of mutinous conduct on the schooner. It is said that while the vessel was at anchor at Cornfield Harbor, St. Mary's Co. last week, the three men robbed the captain of $50.00 he had obtained for a cargo of oysters and then threw the captain and mate overboard. The captain and mate swam ashore and swore out warrants for the men, who had sailed away in the schooner. The warrants were placed in the hands of United States Deputy Marshal John Guyther, who pursued the three men in the schooner Isaac Solomon, overhauling the Seymour at Point Lookout last Thursday, where the arrests were made. The Seymour belongs to Patrick Prendergast, of Baltimore, and is commanded by Captain Cotttingham.—Sun.

A Telephone Line.—A movement is afoot to build a telephone line along the route of the Washington & Potomac railroad to Mechanicsville. The line from Brandywine to Mechanicsville, a distance of 20 miles, will cost $900, or at the rate of $45 dollars per mile—wire, chestnut poles, work and rental of instruments, for one year, being included in the estimate. On the 6th instant, a meeting to be held at Mechanicsville to discuss the matter. The railroad will transport all parties along the line, going to the meeting, free of cost. Leonardtown folks and all others interested are also invited to attend. Mr. Fox, the manager of the road, informs us that he has extended the line to the town and thus put themselves in touch with the outside world. The advantages of the proposed line are manifest, and it is to be hoped that all our enterprising citizens will lead their aid to push the project to completion. We have talked the matter over with some of our leading business men and are encouraged to believe that our end of the line will be all right. We are about 10 miles by road, from Mechanicsville and one of the public spirited gentlemen with whom we have talked has expressed his willingness to build one mile. Fifteen more are needed and we hope the amount necessary to span that space will soon be subscribed.

An Old Soldier Made Happy.—"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Bonding, of Hales, Oregon. "since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found that that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by W. F. Greenwell & Son, Leonardtown, Md.

Military.—Do not forget that at Mrs. L. A. Jones, Brown Store can be found all the novelties in millinery. Notions, dress goods, cloaks, cloak trimming, fur, in fact every thing that completes a lady's toilette.

Localities and Otherwise.—There is still a large quantity of tobacco standing in the fields. We are told that the corn crop this year will be short. There is, however, a fair crop of tobacco.

J. Thomas Swann has been appointed postmaster at Piney Point, vice Philip J. Medley, resigned.

We are informed that the gross receipts of the recent St. John's Tournament and Dinner were $106.63.

The County Commissioners' and Orphans' Court were in session yesterday and transacted regular routine business.

Up to noon Wednesday the number of Tonger's Licenses issued by Circuit Court Clerk Greenwell had run up to 717.

The Republican candidates have been through the 7th district, and have made speeches at two or three places there.

The Sheriff's Election Notice is published in another column. Read it and give careful attention to the laws published with it.

Eggs are likely to command good prices during the winter. Feed and care well for the fowls and your returns from them will be a pleasing surprise.

Commissioner Rogers dismissed the case of James Barrett, John Fannon and Patrick Byrne, charged with mutinous conduct on the schooner Horatio Seymour.

It is said that the Democratic campaign in our county will be short but active. This course has been adopted that the people may lose as little time as possible from necessary work.

Justice Morgan informs us that he did not decide in the oyster cases, which were before him last week, that there was no law on the books forbidding the taking of oysters in small boats by scrape.

Leontown Local.—(From our Regular Correspondent.) The month which our Saxon forefathers called the wine month (Wyn Mowat) is passing rapidly away. This is the month of corn shucking feasts hereabout and both white and colored generally attend them.

The Little Brown Jug is always a welcome visitor at such feasts so long as "M. T." is not pronounced against it. So far as our knowledge goes coupled with asserions of those who ought to know whereof they speak, a tolerably fair yield of this cereal will be realized.

We notice that wagons and carts are being utilized hauling fertilizers from the different wharves and sail craft are bringing it, too, for farmers who reside near the water.

This year has been a prolific one for apples and a number of persons have them for market at from $1.50 to $2.00 per barrel. Very little cider has been made owing we presume to the low figure for which vinegar may be bought.

Merchants of this locality are beginning after a long while to pattern after those who are similarly engaged on the opposite side of the Potomac. Hides, furs, eggs, feathers, "sounds" (air bladders of the trout), old iron, rags, etc., are taken in exchange for merchandise, and really a considerable trade in this way is carried on, remunerative no doubt to the merchant and measurably accommodating, &c., to the buyer.

It is gratifying to note that sickness is on the decrease, with few exceptions, throughout the district. One of the exceptions is an entire family—father, wife and three sons—who, it seems, are suffering in consequence of a chronic form of malarial fever. Quinine, not the commercial, and other remedies to numerous to mention have signally failed to give a temporary relief. Doctors are puzzled, and those who keep a "Family Medicine Chest" are trying to "look like Solomon." Old ladies have recommended "yerb" tea, one of which we tried, and after several days it put us to scratching which we kept doing more or less for several consecutive weeks. We felt much better now, and can take our regular three meals and lunches of Udum.

The active principle of nux vomica which has been unexpectingly administered to cows has failed to exterminate the useful (?) bird; for their almost incessant cawing is heard, which seems to say, we are here all the same.

We will not delay longer to convey the thanks of this section who attended Court to Messrs. Moore and Abell of your town. The concerning testimony of all is, we do assure you, that the gentlemen named know how to run a hotel to please their guests, and to make it at the same time a paying concern.

Vegetables, principally cabbage, potatoes and those of the pulse kind, are bought by those who unfortunately failed to raise their own. The former are scarce and are comparatively dear, that is, extra penalties are in requisition whenever a purchase is made.

Promptly at 2 p. m., Saturday, 7th instant the W. and B. Club met at their room, and your correspondent with his badge conspicuously displayed upon the front part of his weather beaten velvet cap entered and quietly took a seat near the door. After the names of the members were called, all being present, the president in his usual bold manner arose and said that the old bachelor whose apples the ladies consider so sweet would make a few remarks relative to hygiene. After the president resumed his seat, the member arose and in a musical like tone of voice said: Mr. President and fellow members of the Club, Hygiene or the proper care and management of the body is at all times essential to the well being of the whole man.

The preservation of health and the prevention of disease is of equal or even greater importance than its cure. It will not be denied when I assert that man is an omnivorous creature partaking of the nature both of the carnivorous and herbivorous animal, consequently he is necessarily compelled to subsist on a mixed diet. In doing so the utmost care should be taken to preserve a proper state of health, as if too frequently occurs that sickness is superinduced by overeating or a violation of the demands of the appetite. In this as in mental hygiene we should possess a command over the passions. The unphysiological habit of not properly bathing is a cause of sickness, and all physicians will agree with me when I assert that to fulfill one of the important requirements of hygienic law is to keep the skin clean. Trusting that what I have briefly said upon the subject may be favorably received, I am a non-medico, I conclude by thanking you for your undivided attention. The secretary came down the aisle to where we were seated, cordially gave us a shake of the hand, and very courteously informed us that as business of great importance would engage the Club, it was desired that we should retire which we did as quietly and in as gentlemanly a manner as possible. We subsequently learned that one of the members received the blessings (?) of the club in view of his contemplating the taking a partner for life. A certain ceremony has to be performed; so your reporter has been informed. No person therefore, not a member is permitted to be present during the same.

Not to avail one's self of a favorable opportunity is a proof of imbecility, or in the words of Pittacus, "know your opportunity" and fail to profit thereby, is an indication of stupidity of mind. The owners of the cannery factory at the Ridge (Pine) know how to avail themselves of opportunities which occur and in so doing they not only benefit themselves but are a help to a large class of laborers who, perhaps would have perished to indulge in that which was not made for man—idleness. We always indulge the opinion that the best way to aid a poor fellow-man is to give him suitable work and remunerate him for it.

School teachers, well, what shall we say about! Men's passions operate variously, and we notice that their opinions usually accord therewith. We met a little by a few mornings ago walking slowly along the muddy road with a number of books and a bucket. He appeared very tired. We stopped and so did he. Well, my little friend, we kindly asked, what are you going to do with so many books? He paused a few moments and replied, "Going to learn in 'em, sir." A casual glance revealed the fact that two of the books, that is, their contents are too difficult for the boy's mind to compass. His mind is not sufficiently developed even to superficially know less thoroughly understand the different subjects therein compiled. We took his four reader and opened it at page 26 and requested him to tell us whether the cage spoken of in the lesson was a gold one or not. His reply was, "I don't know, sir, but you bet the birds were!" Comment is unnecessary. Suffice it, cramming the mind of children is dangerous. During the time when Teachers' Institutes were held at Leonardtown, and if my memory be not at fault, it was the first one held at the Society's Hall, Prof. Newell wished to know of the teachers present how they taught the Alphabet. Frank N. Holmes, Esqr., replied that he invariably taught it with the book turned up side down, i. e., reversed. (We take the liberty to use the gentleman's name as he was regarded a first class instructor of knowledge.) The idea made a terrible impression upon our mind and we afterward tried it and was pleased with the result. In a future communication we shall (D. V.) make a few mild assertions about teachers and teaching generally. For the present what we have hurriedly written must suffice.

Farmers of St. Inigo's creek are an industrious class, and it is pleasing to note that their labor is so far crowned with success. Excellent reports from St. Mary's City farmers reach us. Their staple crops are satisfactory notwithstanding the several weeks of dry weather, which occurred in July and August.

An occasional walk through the woods near by reminds us of our halcyon days. There we see pretty flowers, yellow, purple and blue, and there we read our doom in the fading leaf. We by combining the present with probable circumstances, endeavor to form something like an insight into futurity. Presumption! We do not view it as such. Does it savor of true wisdom? We pause for a reply.

AZIANA. LAUREL GROVE, MD. October 10th, 1893.

Messrs. Editors.—Mr. L. J. Wise assumes an air of injured innocence, that would be quite amusing, did not the unadvised remembrance of his outrageous interference with our mails, still remain with us. Fortunately, for the community, he no longer has charge of the matter, and our mails arrive regularly, having missed them but once since October 1st, when another sub-contractor took charge of the route. We have had some experience before, with just such men, who have work done by some one else, and then disclaim any responsibility. I know whereof I speak. Mr. L. J. Wise, you forget, or would have others forget that printed petition, signed by the three lower postmasters, requesting the Postal Authorities at Washington, to order the lower mail to be dispatched from Mechanicsville at 2 p. m. These signatures were obtained by the assertions that the upper mail would connect before that hour. You had nothing to do with it. It didn't benefit you any. Better for your team to travel in the cool of the evening. It didn't interest you any, whether the mails left at 12 midnight or any hour. Yet, you individually, asked the Authorities to fix the hour at 2 p. m. You wished the public to believe you have unbounded influence with the department. We know better, Mr. Wise. We know that the change was brought by this little printed petition, and signed by the three lower postmasters, and that those signatures were obtained through your instrumentality and misrepresentation. We needed no such object lesson to get the mails upon the train, and to talk of the department refusing to send them thus, because of economy is the veriest bomb. Whenever the authorities become convinced that the present railroad to Mechanicsville will continue to run, and not stop at the first big snow drift, as it did a few years ago, and place them in an unusually awkward position, then we will get our mails by this means. And to make a cowardly thrust at the old veterans, because of the small pittance they receive as a just acknowledgment of their great service to the country in its hour of need, is disgusting in the extreme. The patrons here, are ready and willing to aid by any proper means to facilitate the delivery of the mails along the whole route, knowing well, that they will necessarily be benefited thereby. I, too, Mr. Wise, remember when we had no daily mails along this route. Twenty years ago our mails were only weekly. Now we have them daily all along the route; but Messrs. Editors, recall Mr. Wise, I cannot guarantee, or tell a lie. I didn't do it all with my little hatchet. [pauze.] Enough has been said about this wretched business, Messrs. Editors, and do not wish to trespass further upon your valuable time and space. But cannot close without paying a just tribute to the ingenuity and ability displayed by Mr. Wise. He has served the public faithfully and unselfishly; pity he's not more appreciated. The patrons at California had very poor mail facilities, until he sprang into the arena, and to the changed Mails that arrived before 12 o'clock m., before then reached the office at 7 p. m., the Sunday. Glorious change. Great Mr. Wise. He writes grandly too. Old how sweet the rhythmic flow of his copy. How fitted to his embellished sentences are the couplet of an old-time eminent critic.

"He soared aloft on wings of fame, And,—lit on daddy's woodpile."

Respectfully, FRED A. MORAN.

LAUREL GROVE, Oct. 9, 1893.

Messrs. Editors.—It appears from your last issue that in these "letter times" there has arisen upon a certain "Republican" who is different from anything yet known in the ranks. It seems that this strange personage has taken exception to the party's choice as candidate for the State Senate of Maryland to represent St. Mary's county, and although Hon. Washington Wilkinson was fairly nominated under the Crawford system of nominating and by a majority vote that could leave no possible doubt "even on the minds of the most skeptic" that he was the party's choice. Yet, this new kind of republican in a chapter of questions and answers, assails Washington Wilkinson, no doubt for the purpose of prejudicing the minds of some republicans against the party's candidate, and thereby if possible deprive him of some votes on the 7th of November next.

I wonder why this queer kind of republican did not attend the primaries, and there by his powerful vote and influence defeat Mr. Washington Wilkinson and nominate some other person to be candidate for the Senate, of whom it might have been said, there is no fault to be found in him. Was it because he [Republican] was asleep or away on a journey, or had he not heard that the primaries were to be held.

This so called Republican seems good at answering questions and we would like to propound a few and ask that he furnish the answers in order that we may know what manner of man he is.

How came you to be a republican? Was it your admiration for the principles of that grand old party, or was it because the party had at its disposal some good positions, one of which you wanted?

Have you been a Whig for some position, and suspect that Mr. Washington Wilkinson may have hindered you in an appointment; hence, your failure to succeed.

Have you always been true to your party's in preference to your own personal interest?

Finally, are you without fault? If so, then, in accordance with a plan adopted by the trustees of pure manhood that we know of; a full account of which is recorded in the Gospel according to St. John, eighth chapter; you are the very man to accuse and cast the first stone at Mr. Washington Wilkinson, the republican candidate for the State Senate. It is not my intention to enter into a controversy with this so called republican, because the campaign is upon us and we have work of importance to do, by way of instructing and reasoning with the people in order to secure the election of the whole republican ticket on November 7th instant. But, I would like to have this personage think over his own life for a little while and possibly he may be able to detect some fault, that might be necessary to correct, that would furnish him with employment more profitable than that of sniping with his fellow man.

In conclusion, Messrs. Editors, do you know this republican? Can you truthfully say there is no fault in him? If so, will you kindly announce his name as a candidate for State Senate subject to republican nomination in 1897.

[COMMERCIALIZED.] LAUREL GROVE, Oct. 9, 1893.

Messrs. Editors.—Please grant me space to defend the old soldier. Mr. Wise, in his controversy with Mr. Moran, attacks the Government for pensioning the soldiers. Now, I should say that a storekeeper should be the last one to find fault with the soldiers being pensioned. They spend their pension money in the community in which they live, and the storekeepers get the most of it. I believe, if Mr. Wise had ever broke the Government's bread as he calls it, he would be the surest man in the world to apply for a pension. What has the soldiers' pensions got to do with his carrying the mail. The government will pay him what he seems to have been willing to take. The government got the most of its work done by contract, and if some one underbids Mr. Wise it is not the government's fault. He says we will not see his team again. No one will regret that, for it did not add any credit to the mail service. As to the matter of carrying the mail, my mail came a day later; but I did not complain, and would have nothing to say now, but for Mr. Wise's attack on the soldiers. What has Mr. Wise contributed to the support of the Government that he should be kicking against its pensioning the soldiers? My time is not as precious as Mr. Wise claims his was, but I will not trouble the readers of the BEACON with small fry poetry and third day spore cure. J. H. KNOTT.

[COMMERCIALIZED.] VALLEY LEE, MD., Oct. 9, 1893. Messrs. Editors.—As I am a constant reader of the Beacon, I frequently read Arizona's reports of his section and I am often amused with his manner of expression. One week he praises the merchants, farmers, oystermen, and blacksmiths, and the following one his denunciations are, as he seemingly delights to use the foreign phrase, Ne plus ultra. I concluded after the busy season was over to take a trip down to the Pine and see for myself whether or not I have been told by persons who know him that some allowance must be made, for his imagination is often indulged, which is apt to make a wrong impression upon the minds of readers.

Without further digression, I will say that my trip was an exceedingly pleasant one, and that Arizona's head is level if a piece of lumpy still did crack it at the first bottle of Manassas. I made the acquaintance of a number of citizens during my short trip, and I was hospitably treated. Visited the counting house of Messrs. A. B. Beville & Co., and their "Beville Brand" of sweet corn and tomatoes are really first quality. There are a number of stores along the road leading to the Pine, all of which sell intimations with the exception of the one near the mouth of St. Inigo's Creek, owned by W. F. Powell a very energetic young man formerly of Onancock, Accomac County, Virginia. On my return home, and as I passed Philip Herman's store at St. Inigo's once conducted by my departed friend Joseph S. Allston, I heard a loud talking which caused me to particularly listen, and although the wind was blowing a contrary direction, I understood that the theme was politics. King's and Wilkinson's names were being used. "We'll vote for King every time" pleasantly greeted me, and I gave my old nag a slight tap and drove on, reaching home just in time for tea which I enjoyed.

In conclusion permit me to say that my trip to St. Inigo's will be carried in my mind for an indefinite time.

"Morose, complaining, and with tedious praise. Talking the manners of their youthful days" was not heard by me; and I am of the opinion whether smiling fortune spreads her golden rays over the citizens of the Pine and its environs or not they'll be happy still.
