FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

BUNNY BOB'S JOKE

BUNNY BOB CUTTENDEN [illegible]

[illegible]

"A merry it is," his mother [illegible] say. "A merry it is. I do [illegible] your head to stick on your [illegible] you would certainly [illegible]."

Well, one morning but [illegible] peeped over the sill Bunny Bob woke up. All his little brothers and sisters lay curled up fast asleep. [illegible] first time in over an hour [illegible] had kept wicked his bed and [illegible] around quite proud of himself.

"I wonder what time it is," he thought. "I'll just get up and [illegible] a minute and I'll slip [illegible] of breakfast. [illegible] off [illegible] where I am, and not be [illegible] But I got there first. The [illegible] Bun'." What a joke that will be!"

Up he got and tiptoed out [illegible] on a mouse. [illegible] his face that [illegible] didn't do his [illegible] In a hurry, [illegible]

A SHOUT WENT UP FROM HIS [illegible]

THE SPIDER WENT ON SPINNING WITH A CROSS FROWN ON HER FOREHEAD.

[illegible] Bunny Bob's mother [illegible] "Bob, suppose [illegible] all [illegible]

"Tee-hee!" laughed Bunny Bob. "Hide suppose they will [illegible]."

And he set down [illegible] in a tree and watch. [illegible] called and called [illegible] with furrows in his [illegible] ing red spots into [illegible] and [illegible] and hung, [illegible] and seemed [illegible]

"All right," said Bunny Bob. [illegible] until Miss Fuzzy [illegible] "Bob, [illegible] Bob." [illegible] "Bob, [illegible] down upon the [illegible] "