ARSENAL GROWTH POINTS OUT NEED

Future Enlargement of Government Plant Shows Hospital Addition Is Mandatory.

INDUSTRIES INCREASING TOO

Facilities for Caring for Sick and Wounded Should Be Augmented Comparatively.

Prospects of more and larger military plants being located at Rock Island arsenal makes a fully equipped hospital for Rock Island a patriotic necessity.

Part of the machinery of the modern city is performing its work is to provide an institution for the care of the sick and injured with adequate facilities for handling the victims of accidents and disease. These are inevitable in a large population and other cities have provided generously for the care of persons requiring medical or surgical attention.

But Rock Island has been slow in acting.

The rapid increase in the industries of this city, with their future growth insured, makes better hospital equipment imperative. The prospects ahead of Rock Island point out clearly that the people of the city should do something at once to provide St. Anthony's hospital with the proposed addition in order to keep apace with the growth of the municipality.

It has been recently recited in The Argus that the hospital is entirely inadequate for thepresent needs. If so for the present what of the enlarged requirements which will be made upon it in the future?

Want Sentiment Tested.

There is a general disposition on the part of a number of public spirited citizens to initiate a campaign to raise funds for the erection of the addition. They are pointing out that the time is at hand to do something to provide the city with hospital facilities sufficiently large to care for the needs and believe favorable results would be obtained. It is planned to test the sentiment of the public on the proposition.
