A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." "I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this case, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Hunley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

A VISIT TO DIXIE LAND.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND ATTENDS THE FAIR AT RICHMOND, VA.

He Is Accompanied by Some Members of the Cabinet, but the Ladies Are Conspicuously Absent—Cleveland's Speech to the Southern Farmers—An Enthusiastic Reception.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 22.—The special train bearing the president, accompanied by Secretaries Bayard, Endicott, Postmaster General Vilas and Private Secretary Lamont left Washington Thursday morning for this city to attend the fair of the Virginia Agricultural association. The journey was a continued ovation throughout, the party being vociferously cheered at every station. The special reached here at 11:32 a. m. The reception was a roaring ovation of voices. The sun shone brightly on the chief executive and his party as they emerged from the car and were met by the local committee of citizens. The Horse guards came to a "present," lifted their helmets and, as soon as the visitors were seated in the carriages, wheeled about and preceded the cavalcade to the fair ground, three-quarters of a mile distant. Upon reaching the fair ground the presidential party were driven to the building occupied by the general officers, and shortly afterward the executive emerged from the balcony overlooking the fair ground, where he was presented to the multitude by Governor Fitz Hugh Lee in a neat address.

At the conclusion of Governor Lee's speech the president was introduced and in a clear voice spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS OF VIRGINIA: While I thank you most sincerely for your kind reception, and recognizing in its heartiness the hospitality for which the people of Virginia have always been distinguished, I am fully aware that your demonstration of welcome is tendered not to an individual but to an incumbent of the office which crowns the government of the United States. The state of Virginia, the mother of presidents, seven of whose sons have filled that high office, to-day greets a president who for the first time meets Virginians upon Virginian soil. I congratulate myself that my first introduction to the people of Virginia occurs at a time when they are surrounded by the exhibits of the productiveness and prosperity of their state. Whatever there may be of honor in her history, and however much pride there may be in her traditions, her true greatness is here exemplified. In our sisterhood of states the leading and most commanding place must be gained and kept by that commonwealth which, by the labor and intelligence of her citizens can produce the most of those things which meet the necessities and desires of mankind. But the full advantage of that which may be yielded to a state by the toil and ingenuity of her people, is not measured alone by the money value of the product. The efforts and the struggles of her farmers and her artisans, not only create new values in the field of agriculture and in the arts and manufactures but they at the same time produce rugged, self-reliant, and independent men, and cultivate that product which more than all others ennobles a state—a patriotic, earnest, American citizenship. This will flourish in every part of the American domain; neither drouth or rain can injure it, for it takes root in true hearts, enriched by love of country. There are no new varieties in this production. It must be the same wherever seen, and its quality is neither sound nor genuine unless it grows to deck and beautify an entire and united nation; nor unless it supports and sustains the institutions and the government founded to protect American liberty and happiness. The present administration of the government is pledged to return for such husbandry, not only promises, but actual tenders of fairness and justice, with equal protection and a full participation in national achievements. If in the past we have been estranged, and the cultivation of American citizenship has been interrupted, your enthusiastic welcome of to-day demonstrates that there is an end to such estrangement, and that the time of suspicion and fear is succeeded by an era of faith and confidence. In such a kindly atmosphere and beneath such cheering skies, I greet the people of Virginia as co-laborers in the field where grows the love of our united country. God grant that in the years to come, Virginia—the old dominion—the mother of presidents—she looked on the nation at its birth—may not only increase her trophies of growth in agriculture and manufactures, but that she may be among the first of the states in the cultivation of true American citizenship.

It was some minutes after the president had finished before the cheering, salutes from the cannon and other demonstrations subsided. When there was quiet, Governor Lee stepped forward and presented Secretaries Bayard and Endicott and Postmaster General Vilas who simply bowed a recognition to the audience.

Immediately the distinguished visitors repaired to the office of the president of the Virginia Agricultural society, where an informal reception was held. For about an hour the people streamed through the building and shook hands with the president and his cabinet officers. At the conclusion of the reception a lunch was partaken of, and the party saw the races and the exhibits.

Governor Lee received a telegram Wednesday night from the president saying that Mrs. Cleveland and ladies of the cabinet would not accompany him, and that his engagements would necessitate an early return to Washington. Great surprise was expressed at this sudden change. A number of citizens interviewed expressed the belief that the action of the president was in consequence of Miss Winnie Davis, daughter of ex-President Davis, being a guest of the gubernatorial mansion, and that she would in all probability be one of the reception party.

George Tilden Will Bring Suit.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The ink used to complete the probate of the Tilden will was hardly dry when notice was served upon the executors' attorneys that George Tilden intended to bring suit in the supreme court of this county against "the executors, trustees, and the legatees under the will." Although the summons did not state the nature of the suit further than to allege that relief was wanted, enough could be ascertained at the proceedings to confirm what has already been intimated. The suit will not be known as a contest, but as an effort to have the court put upon the clause of the will vesting residuary powers in the executors and trustees a construction to knock that clause sky high and parcel the immense estate among the heirs-at-law. There seems to be no doubt that all the heirs and the creditors of the New Lebanon nephews have come to a friendly understanding in this movement.

Given Up as Lost.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 22.—George Clark & Co.'s schooner, George L. Smith, which sailed hence Aug. 14 on a halibut voyage, has been given up for lost, together with her crew of fourteen men. Most of the men were married and leave families. The loss of this vessel makes the total loss at this port this year of twenty-seven vessels, valued at $175,000, and 116 men, leaving 28 widows and 56 children.

More Sufferers from Johnson's Bayou.

ORANGE, Tex., Oct. 22.—The steamer Lamar arrived here Wednesday evening with forty additional sufferers from Johnson's bayou. They report that no more bodies have been found. Many other sufferers are awaiting the opportunity to leave the devastated district.

THE EPISCOPALIANS.

A Good Deal of Work Being Done in the Convention at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—There were three propositions looking to a movement for christian unity presented in the Episcopal convention Wednesday. The committee having the matter in charge proposed a committee of five from each order to communicate with other Christian bodies and ascertain the views as to organic union on the basis of the Apostles' doctrine of fellowship, the breaking of bread and prayers. Rev. Mr. Hopkin's proposition was reported inexpedient. The basis of this proposition was the acceptance of the definitions of the undisputed general councils, the apostolic succession, and the sacraments of baptism and the eucharist.

The bishop sent in a message which said that this church does not seek to absorb other Christian bodies, but to co-operate on the basis of a common faith and order. The basis proposed is as follows: Acceptance of the Scriptures as the revealed word of God, the Nicene creed as a statement of faith; two sacraments—baptism and the supper; the historic episcopate.

A good deal of work was done on the revision of that prayer book, and a number of changes made in the order of the services. The "Gloria in Excelsis" was ordered printed in the service after the psalms for the day.

In the matter of work among the colored people it was resolved to advise the board of missions to appoint a commission of five from each order to have headquarters at Washington City to conduct the work among the negroes.

Bradley was captured in Cleveland a few days ago. His peculations amounted to $75,000.
