The funeral of Sister Clarita, whose death was exclusively announced in THE CITIZEN, took place at Bernalillo this morning, and was one of the largest funerals that has occurred in central New Mexico for years. Several prominent and well known Catholic priests and a number of Sisters from adjacent towns were in attendance, while the schools of Bernalillo were closed and the scholars turned out to show their love and respect for the beloved and dead sister.

Julius Lesser, the senior member of the general merchandise firm of Lesser & Sawyer, of Winslow, is in the city and he is interviewing our wholesale merchants. Mr. Lesser called at THE CITIZEN office this morning, and stated that Winslow is all right, merchants looking for a prosperous spring and summer. He also stated that the revival of mining interests in the San Juan district will have a tendency to make matters somewhat livelier in and around Winslow.

His Scheme Worked

A tramp worked a new wrinkle in El Paso last week. He confidentially told one of the goody goody citizens of the town that he was a female in disguise. The citizen, believing that he had struck a snap, yielded up his dough. An investigation gave the lie to the bum and he was chased out of town.

At the Front

THE ARIZONA CITIZEN comes to us enlarged and otherwise improved. Tom Hughes seems determined to keep THE CITIZEN the best paper in the southwest. Just as the Herald has caught up with him he takes a fresh start and leaves us behind again. Never mind, Tom, some day we will take a spurt and catch up again.—El Paso Herald.

Vice President J. B. Robinson, of the Santa Fe, is in Topeka.
