

A Great Strike.

Last year the Pullman company made a big cut in their workmen's wages and on May 7, 1894 the workmen made a formal demand for a restoration of the old figures.

In the conference which followed Mr. Pullman claimed that his business would not justify a return to the old figures, that the reduction in orders and competition were such that the company was actually running at a loss.

The next move was the appearance on the scene of the American Railway Union which demanded that the Pullman company should submit the question of wages to arbitration.

This the company refused, offering, at the same time, to show from their books that they had been running at a loss. The Union replied that the company could doctor its books and its president Eugene V. Debs ordered that all members of the Railway union should quit work on those railroads which used Pullman cars.

The order was obeyed. Freight is piled up in the depots. Much of it being perishable every hour of its detention means thousands of dollars of loss to somebody.

The respondents of the great dailies report business as struck with a blight. In hundreds of stock yards and cars cattle are almost perishing.

From Illinois to Kansas and from Kansas to New Mexico railway business is temporarily suspended and passengers are crowded at way stations waiting wearily for transportation home.

A million people's necessities of life have been interfered with. Twenty-two railroads, west of Chicago are virtually tied up. And the men who have stopped traffic have no quarrel with the railroads.

They are fighting the battles of the Pullman workmen and their wives and children will be the greatest sufferers, for the strike will have the same old end.

The Baltimore News thus sums up the cost of the strike: Meanwhile the loss of business and destruction of goods is enormous.

The strike costs the Illinois Central $80,000 a day. The fruit shippers in California claim that the loss is incalculable. The expense to individuals who are detained in faraway places must amount to millions.

VAST LOSSES. The boycott instituted in behalf of Pullman's 3,000 employes costs the strikers a large sum of money. Their union is hardly a year old, and cannot have a large strike fund.

Monster Gathering. Within the next three weeks Cleveland, Ohio, will be the scene of the most enormous convention ever held on this continent.

Conservative estimates place the attendance of delegates and their friends at 40,000 souls, and arrangements have been made to find entertainment for this number in private families, hotels and homes of that city.

Already transportation companies are being besieged by delegations from the city, State and provincial unions for special trains to accommodate their respective delegations who intend to make the trip in a body.

The present Convention about to convene in Cleveland is of more than passing interest to citizens of our State in view of the vigorous and concerted action that has been put forth on the part of the delegates.

During the eleven months of the present fiscal year, ended May 31, 283,020 immigrants landed in the United States, as against 430,219 for a corresponding period last year.
