and we have not failed to observe the look of permanency in the work that has been done under our new road law. There is a cheerful future for those who have to travel to the county seat, and a hope that every neighborhood will be blessed with good roads before the lapse of many years a consummation devoutly to be wished. The jail has been visited by us and we found it well kept, and have nothing to recommend in regard to it, but would say that some small buildings near it, are in a very dilapidated condition and must fall to pieces, if they do not receive early attention.

The Court House has also been inspected by us and was discovered to be in bad condition, much of the plastering in the upper rooms having fallen, while many cracks in the walls are apparent, occasioned, as we think, from the settling of the walls. We would especially call the attention of the County Commissioners to the dangerous aspect of the plastering over the seats occupied by your Honorable body, and think it should be removed before the meeting of the March term of court and replaced by wooden ceiling, so as to ensure the safety of our judges and to be in keeping with the rest of the court room. There is a closet connecting with the Grand Jury room, which could, for a very small amount, be utilized for the accommodation and convenience of the jurors and we call attention of the Commissioners' Court to it. It would supply a long and much needed convenience, and prevent much passing through the court room and interruption to the proceedings thereof. There is a subject to which we wish to call the attention of your Honorable Court and it is only from an imperative sense of duty, that we venture to do so, fearing that many might construe an honest desire to prevent a possible calamity, as to give it a partisan nature, which is most foreign to our intention. It is a fact, well known to most of our people, that ever since the adoption of our present system of voting, there has been much dissatisfaction in the minority party of the State, because of the refusal of the Board of Election Supervisors to allow them to name their own judges and clerks, whereby, as is alleged, they are defrauded and cheated out of many votes they ought to have. While we scrupulously refrain from making any such charge, or even imputation, we think it but common fairness, that the minority should be accorded their demand, and, as a prudential measure, to prevent possible disorder, we pray that your Honorable Body will exercise what-ever authority is vested in you to secure the end we think so desirable. When men think, with or without just cause, that they have been unjustly dealt with, forbearance, sooner or later, ceases to be a virtue in their eyes and they are prone to resort to violent measures, to right their real or fancied wrongs.

Before closing this report, while not in its proper connection, we have to insist once again, that there should be placed upon the floor of the Grand Jury room, matting, or something else to deaden the unavoidable sound occasioned by foot steps or moving of chairs to the disturbance of the Grand Jurors themselves and your Honorable Body below stairs.

With many sincere thanks for the uniform kindness of your Body, and all the officers connected with the Court, we beg to be discharged, and we will, as in duty bound ever, pray, &c.

J. EDWIN COAD, Foreman. Resolved, that the Grand Jury for the September Court appreciating as we do, the valuable services of our Clerk, P. H. G. Readmond, hereby vote unanimously, to return him our thanks.

all prone on the ground. Then the brave, about twenty in number, fantastic in war paint and feathers, stood in the centre of the circle and performed their wonderful "Fire Dance." The leader gave the signal, the women started a chant, and the dancers, all immense middle aged men, kept time with a grunt, and the awe inspiring figures of this now almost obsolete performance, proceeded. I was accompanied by a party from the hotel, some of whom I met that day, and others whom I had known before, and all seemed equally pleased and interested. The regular dance hall and the other attractions of the place had no charms for me. I sat until almost twelve, watching the strange spectacle. It was so novel, because these Indians have been civilized since the days of the old Spanish padres, and this relic of barbarism is all that is left to remind them of their original condition. It is a singular fact that some of the young ones know how to execute this dance, nor do they understand the words of the songs, but those old men went about it as solemnly as though they really invoked the fire as a deity, and the scene at night by the siffling gleam of a camp fire, caused a strange but not unpleasant sensation of awe to creep over me. Had I heard a war-whoop and seen a brave with his scalping knife over my head, I think I would not have been surprised. I tried to get some photos of the group, but the photographer had forgotten his flash light, and could not take them then, but we made arrangements with the Captain of the tribe that he should have them perform the same thing by daylight on Saturday, so that some could be taken for us. I returned next morning and brought with me twelve pupils for the school. It was considered a successful trip, as I went around and talked to all of the Captains and made arrangements for other children to come this week. The Fiesta at Inceula was the largest held in this place for years. I suppose about ten acres of ground was covered with built made of rushes, or tule as they call it, for the Indians. Then there were many Mexicans and half breeds in attendance, who enjoyed themselves in the dance hall, and at the various gambling tables. The Indians played a queer gambling game called "Pion." They were divided in two parties and each side put up a stake of forty dollars. They sat on the ground with a blanket over their knees and passed a bone around under the blanket. The object is to guess where the bone is. Both their gestures and language make the thing very amusing to an onlooker. In our party was one of the Reservation day teachers Mrs. Platt; and a Washington editress Mrs. Emerson; and we were very ably taken care of by the Custom House Collector from San Diego; the lawyer appointed to look after Indian rights, and a couple of newspaper men, one of them from far off Baltimore. I find my time is up and the mail awaits. Truly Yours, FANNY S. COMBS.

Localities and Otherwise. Mrs. James Bullock, of Newtown, died very suddenly Monday night last.

Misses Mary and Bettie Gough have returned from their trip to Philadelphia.

Saturday next, Sheriff Wathen will take away the prisoners sentenced at the recent term of court.

Mr. Charles A. Buch has been appointed postmaster at Milestown, vice William K. Herbert, resigned.

Mr. William P. Forrest has resigned the postmastership at Sandgates and is to be succeeded by S. M. Jones.

Read Mr. Knabel's letter published in this issue and give a tie or a day's work to push forward our railroad.

We are in receipt of several mortuary tributes for which we will endeavor to make space in our next paper.

Mrs. R. O. Melton and daughter, of Washington, are visiting the family of Mr. T. Lee Mattingly, near Leonardtown.

County Treasurer Mattingly has paid out over $1800 for allowances to jurors and witnesses at the recent September term of court.

If you do not register you cannot vote. Remember this and avail yourselves of the last chance to secure a freeman's right. Thursday (to day) ends the registration for this year.

A meeting is to be called in the near future looking to the organization of a Brass Band for Leonardtown. There is no lack of material in the village and we hope the project will succeed.

There was a meeting of the St. Mary's R. R. and Debating Society last Tuesday night and it was determined to advertise their Hall for sale. The Society is to meet again Thursday evening, October 11, 1894.

"Baugh's old and reliable Raw Bone Super-phosphate for Wheat and Grass is now being sold at a reduced price to meet the low price of Wheat. Secure your supply at once. See Baugh's advertisement in this issue."

On Saturday, the 6th inst., the personal property on the farm of the late John Hurry is to be sold at public auction, and on Thursday, the 11th instant, there will be a sale at the residence of the Messrs. Aim. See advertisements.

Leonardtown will be represented at the coming contest for the Temple Cup to be played between the Champion Baltimoreans and the New York Base Ball Club. We hope our representatives will give the Orioles luck.

Tuesday night last, Priscilla, wife of Alonzo Campbell, colored, of this town, died after a lingering illness. She was raised by a family of the late John Simms and was a model servant and an excellent woman. She was about 65 years of age. May she rest in peace!

Morgan Raley, the accomplished son of J. T. M. Raley, of St. Mary's county, Md., who for 30 years was register of wills of that county, is stopping at the Malby House. Mr. Raley has accepted a position with the James Young Company, who will start South in a few days on a professional tour. He is down for comedy parts. This is his specialty, and a brilliant future is predicted for this rising artist.—Baltimore Herald.

Lewisova Leads. (From our Regular Correspondent.) Recent rains have been very beneficial to turnips, potatoes, and grass is looking beautifully green.

Every body praises the roads, that is, the sections which have been worked by Supervisor Pembroke. No person with the slightest grain of intelligence can for a moment seriously believe that the present system is not a good one. No doubt that capable men have been appointed Supervisors—men who know their duty, and have the courage to perform it.

Heavy crops of corn are in store for harvest. Tobacco exceeds the most sanguine expectations of those who planted crops of the "weed." Now, for fair prices, and those who have a little "short" peculiarly will meet their liabilities and have no easy mind. We advance this supposition and we think it tenable.

Does the raising of tomatoes sufficiently remunerate the raiser of them to ensure the future cultivation of the fruit? is the substance of the question asked and given. Well, judging from what we have been told by those who have raised them this season we should think it does at $6 per ton. Jas. D. Dunbar planted not quite an acre and he has realized $40. Mr. D. fed several hogs with them for weeks besides using them for domestic purposes and giving frequent messes to neighbors. This is one instance, and one we presume is sufficient.

Thanks that the bark of the Jackal or the howl of the hyena is not heard hereabout. Stop a moment. Don't be too hasty. Listen. Pshaw! why is the chorus of voices—of what incessant and simultaneous bursts of foxes chasing old and young hares up Wiles' and Langley's lanes—that all say John Gray, Dominic, Walter, Philip, et al. why do you lie like? Why do you not "put up a 'Brindle,' '80," "Grover," "Gorman" and the young dogs and go down to the lower section of Lewontown and assist Notley, George Lewis Sidney and Blair to catch the "varnants." Presently, perhaps, sooner, they'll be playing the mischief with the old ladies' turks and geese. Do not tarry. Do not mind the burning sunbeams. Start! Go! and may you have good luck. The "tonguing" of the dogs will sound as sweetly as they did when the Swallows first greeted us in early May, and the flute like notes of the oriole made us happy—causing our heart to beat in unison with the measured notes of same.

The dust does not blow over everything now. A few weeks ago it reminded us of the dust of Sahara as it blows over Italy, and whirled high in the air flies in clouds over the Red Sea—a greeting from Nubia to Arabia.

Few flowers, and the humming bird, which partly rivals in beauty the flowers it sips, has taken its flight to the home of possidors (?) and bigonias which animate the banks of limped streams far away.

"Pete" has climbed his last tree, scared his last horse, and slapped the jaws of the last Yankee who attempted to be too familiar. He took passage on the steamer Sea a few mornings ago, and now he's enjoying city life. "Pete" came from the region of the Amazon—He is one of the many species of monkeys inhabiting the Valley of the great river. The animals of St. Inigo's are not as numerous as those of Amazonia, but we have a few that can climb a tree, grunt, bark, bleat and bellow. Incredible, did you say? Well, here's the proof, and it is not very romantic either: The possum can climb, the pin, grunt, the poodle, bark, the old sheep, bleat, and the bull—well, he can make the welkin ring with his peculiar voice. The comparative paucity of animal life here, should be excused as we are not enjoying (?) semi-civilization.

"COLD COFFEE." A colored man of St. Inigo's section bought a horse from another colored man some months ago, and now the horse has gone the way of all flesh of the horse kind—the buzzards have had a feast. Colored man No. 1 met colored man No. 2 recently and told him of his heavy loss, expecting to receive a gust of sympathy. Well, he didn't get much, for No. 2 replied in a low guttural voice: "Dat's funny. He never did 'dat when I had him!"

J. T. Gant, it is said, has the finest tobacco in the district. The average height is 8 feet 2 inches, leaves 2 feet 9 inches by 1 foot 11 inches.

J. Frank Smith, Esq., told us a few days since that your Park Hall correspondent was a "little off." He, Mr. S. did run an anti-Gorman ticket at the late primary. Mr. Smith's zeal and diligence has won the approbation of even his opponents. It takes a due amount of brain-labor to run a primary in St. Inigo's. It is not an easy baseball contest, per contra, to "go ahead" and "win" requires a strong will and a never tiring energy.

Dr. Miles is successful with his patients, some of whom have been ill. He is a typical doctor. Query. Is not the true physician, as differentiated from the quack, a man with an inborn aptitude for that profession and no other? We never turned a somersault, but we think we could do it more easily than turn a tune—we'll just say good bye, September—welcome, October—Exit chills. The fly-white face will now assume its former rosy-lue hue. Thanks.

How cheap! Just right, readers of the BEACON, that excellent sweet potatoes are selling at $1.00 per bushel, down to St. Inigo's, and yet the people live and are happy.

Miss Maggie Smith, of Washington, D. D., after a pleasant trip to the district, has returned per steamer Sea to the City, and Mr. John P. Tracy has returned to his home in McKeesport, Pa.

The calm has come. Yes, the storm is over and boats are to be seen high and dry upon the sides of roads. The tides were very high, and fish could be seen sporting in the water which submerged certain sections of roads, and crabs, large and small, have finished crawling from fields contiguous to the creeks. They were left in the grass and bushes by the ebbing tides. No damage of consequence that we are aware of.

Miss Annie Williams has returned to her home in the far North. She has left many friends in the Old First to remember her.

Look! See how they fly! Bang! What a splendid well man never is satisfied. Now he's killing and maiming the poor innocent birds, "Flippers"—yellow hamsters. The squirrels, too, come in for a share of the wrong greeting. Bang! bang! O my! Our sympathies.
