SOCIETY

"The joy bells are ringing in glad Maybride,
The Maidens are twining gay wreaths for the bride."

And mingling with the echoes of wedding bells are the prayers for the felicity of newly weds who choose the month of June, when "summer with her gaudy shows" of blossoms is at hand to deck the bridal and ceremonial places.

The bridegroom, is of course sufficiently happy to be indifferent to the inconsequential notice accorded him in society stories. In the mind of the small boy, however, the bride groom is not happy, for one young Indianian at the age when girls are nuisances wrote an essay on Patrick Henry thus:

"Patrick Henry was not a bright boy. He had blue eyes and light hair. He got married and then said, 'Give me liberty or give me death'."

This some young gentleman, however, in later years, was one of the proudest bridegrooms in the west, going to Scotland to claim a bride he had loved and cruelly kissed in an Indiana school before she had gone to live across the water.

The honeymoon of this bride and groom was perpetuated to old age and, in the wealth of three score and ten years, of a successful life, on the eve of their golden wedding day, the white-haired lover said: "All that is good in me here or hereafter I owe to my wife."

With such depth of affection and appreciation of the treasure he has found in the love and life of a noble woman, it is little wonder that man is willing to be considered by the multitude as an indifferent factor at his own wedding.

It is pleasant to contemplate the associations that cluster about the wedding hour in which is crystalized the happiest emotions of life that break upon the young heart like spring upon the flowers of earth, and exhale sweet incense on all the after years. And, crowned with the benedictions of old and young alike bridal couples plight their troth and pass on to establish new altars of domesticity.

"Oh fortunate, oh, happy day
When a new household find its place
Among the myriad homes of earth
Like a new star just sprung to birth
And rolled on its harmonious way
And the soundless realms of space."

Wedding Bells.

The wedding of the season was solemnized in the Presbyterian church Thursday evening week, in the presence of more than 200 friends. Miss Anna Howell and Dr. Julius O. Schwentker plighted their vows in the sacred rites of matrimony.

A wealth of greenery, palms and ferns and white peonies brought the fragrant springtime atmosphere into the church and formed a fit setting for the memorable scene.

Above the platform, banked with ferns, sat the singers in the choir loft, whose sentiment expressed in tender harmonies made all present feel the kinship to youth and love. After an organ solo by Miss Beryl Kenworthy, which was rendered with the fine technique of this skilled performer, Mr. Charles Andrews sang "For You" by Cadman. Mrs. McDonald, next sang in sweet voice "I Love You" by Grieg, after which the choir sang the splendid bridal chorus from "The Rose Maiden." To the stately measures of the Lohengrin Wedding March the bridal party entered the church and advanced to the altar, where the bridegroom and Mr. Sarloth with Rev. S. E. Allison, waited.

Like fairies of old, wreathed in floral witchcraft, four were those who preceded the bridal procession, scattering sweet peas in the pathway of the bride. These little ladies were Ruth Bacon, Delta Phillips, Fannie Phillips and Ida Bambrock. Miss Powell, a charming bridesmaid gowned in pink, next followed with Mr. Andrews. Miss Adele Howell, maid of honor, attired becomingly in blue, came next. Both attendants of the bride wore picture hats and carried bouquets of pink rose buds purpling through drooping maidenhair ferns, and tied with broad pink ribbons. Little Clifton Howell came next, bearing the ring for the ceremony, and last came the bride and her father, Mr. R. C. Howell.

The bride was lovely in her rich gown of clinging crepe meteor, over messaline, made empire style, en train, fringed at the tunic and collar with pearls. From a maze of filmy veil fitting the coiffure like a bonnet, and falling to the floor, the bride's face shone fair and sweet, beneath the crown of orange blossoms that had also decked her mother's hair on her wedding day. The bride's shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweet peas was "a thing of beauty." The beautiful ring service was read by Rev. S. E. Allison of the Methodist church, south, and the bride was given into the keeping of the groom by her father. The post ceremonial prayer was offered by Dr. Hugh Cooper and touched all souls by its tender spirit. To the strains of Grieg's "To Spring," played by Miss Kenworthy, the party and guests retired.

During her comparatively brief residence in this city Miss Howell has endeared herself to a wide circle of friends, who admire her for musical accomplishments and charming personality and love her for gentle womanliness and qualities of character.

Dr. Schwentker, a prominent physician of the city and a social favorite, is also widely esteemed.

On account of a recent bereavement in her family, Miss Elizabeth Powell, the bridesmaid at the ceremony, was an absentee at the festivities enjoyed by the other members of the bridal party the past week.

Following the church ritual the friends of Dr. and Mrs. Schwentker were guests at a reception at the home of the bride.

Wedding Reception.

The Howell home was resplendent in floral adornment Thursday evening in honor of the post-nuptial reception to the friends of Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Schwentker.

Mrs. R. C. Howell, mother of the bride, was assisted in the reception of the 250 guests by her mother, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Messer and Mrs. Scully.

Vases of pink roses and white peonies decked the reception hall, and in the parlor, where the bride and groom received the felicitations of their friends, white peonies and greenery were used in decoration. An effective background of delicate asparagus ferns formed a bower where the bridal couple stood.

In the dining room the long table was garlanded with smilax that, after being carried in pretty festoons to the chandelier, fell in a drooping cluster above the huge floral centerpiece. In an adjoining room were displayed numerous wedding gifts, magnificent and dainty, attesting to the good wishes of friends in New Mexico and in Dixieland, from whence the bride came to Albuquerque. Accompanied to the midnight train by a contingent of well wishers, Dr. and Mrs. Schwentker left for California, whence they will return June 16, and after July 1 will be at home in their new bungalow on Fourteenth street.

Lewis-Hilton Nuptials.

A matrimonial ceremony of notable interest from New Hampshire to the gulf of Mexico, occurred Thursday evening at the home of the bride in Socorro, when Miss Eva Caroline Hilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hilton, became the bride of Arthur L. Lewis. After the solemnization of the ceremony by Rev. Father Pelizer of San Antonio parish, an elaborate reception was tendered to the guests in the Knights of Pythias hall. Music by the Gem City orchestra and a sumptuous repast were features of the brilliant reception, whereat were gathered throngs of childhood friends of the bride and representatives of New Mexico's best society. The prominence of the bride's father, Mr. A. H. Hilton, a pioneer captain of industry in New Mexico, renders the wedding of special interest to New Mexicans. The groom is the only son of the well known Orrin Lewis, owner of the famous hostelry on Bear Island at Lake Winnepesaukee, New Hampshire. Though less than 30 years old, Mr. Lewis is an influential representative of Hayden, Stone and Co., financiers of Boston, one of the most stable and extensive banking houses of the nation.

While attending the New England Conservatory of Music completing a splendid musical education, Miss Hilton and Mr. Lewis became acquainted and the wedding Thursday evening was the natural outcome of the friendship of two young people so admirably suited.

The bride was attended in the wedding service by Miss Fitzgerald of Pekin, Ill., and Mr. Connie Hilton, brother of the bride, acted as groomsman. Three pretty little flower girls strewed blossoms in the path of the bridal couple. These were little Misses Helen Hilton, Annie Hilton and Petice Hilton.

After the post-nuptial reception in the Knights of Pythias hall, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left for Galveston, Texas, where they will be the guests of Mr. Galen Stone, vice president of the Mallory Steamship lines, and a friend of Mr. Lewis. In his private yacht, Mr. Stone will convey the bridal couple to New York, whence they will leave for Bear Island in the Hampshire hills to spend the honeymoon.

Hunting-Ferguson Function.

The society event of the week was the reception yesterday at the suburban home of Mrs. H. B. Ferguson, when Mrs. Frank Hunting and her daughter, Mrs. Ferguson, were hostesses to almost a hundred guests.

Passing in and out the spacious flower-decked rooms of the beautiful Ferguson home, greeting congenial friends, partaking of delicious refreshments, the ladies who enjoyed the hospitality of these gracious hostesses themselves present a charming vision in their summer raiment.

The hall, parlors and library were exquisitely adorned with red roses and the feature of the occasion "ramblers." These ran in riotous beauty over the huge boats and vases that seemed inadequate to confine them. In the front parlor Mrs. Hunting and Mrs. Ferguson received, assisted by Mrs. Louis Hfeld, Mrs. R. W. D. Bryan and Mrs. Walter Connell. In the library, cool and inviting with its decorations of roses and gladioli blossoms embellishing the furnishings, Miss Dolores Hunting and Grace Borradaile presided at the punch bowl.

The dining room was beautiful with its long central table dressed in pink sweet peas, about which were grouped smaller tables holding pink rosebuds and clusters of sweet peas. Pink-shaded candles diffusing a rosecte glow over the table, added much to the ensemble of pink effect in this room. The candies and other dainties of the menu were also in keeping with the color time. At opposite ends of the table Mrs. Louis Hunting and Mrs. Spitz poured, being relieved by Mrs. Childers and Mrs. Chavez. Assisting in the dining room were Miss Ferguson, Miss Fox, Misses Lina Ferguson, Katherine Chaves, Rebecca Borradaile.

The guests during the afternoon were: Mesdames N. B. Field, Warren, Macpherson, B. Spitz, B. Hfeld, N. Hfeld, McGaffey, Frost, A. Frost, Stevens, Burke, Dunbar, Himoe, Gray, Tanzel, McMillen, Stroub, A. B. McMillen, Cornish, Marron, F. H. Strong, McDonald, Matson, Clarke, Woolsey, Pickett, McLandress, Lester, Lindsey, Merritt, Kent, Margaret Medler, Brown, Barney, Pearce, Hook, Hopewell, Metcalf, Rosenwald, Sydney Rosenwald, A. Grunsfeld, I. Grunsfeld, Wisner, Kim, Coddington, Rodey, McClellan, Kempenich, Jarrett, Klock, Dieckmann, D. Weinman, S. Stern, Strickler, Borradaile, Johnson, Brooks, Neustadt, Miss Lou Lee, Miss Julia Lee, Miss Josie Parsons, Mrs. Burkhart, Mrs. Jaffa, Miss Rosenwald, Mrs. Edgar, Miss Brent, Mrs. Hope, Mrs. Ralph Dunbar, Mrs. Arno Hunting, Mrs. D. Rosenwald, Mrs. Bittner, Mrs. Smithers, Mrs. White, Mrs. O'Reilly, S. Luna.

Mrs. Danahy Entertains.

As the presiding genius in the dispensation of gracious hospitality, Mrs. Thomas Danahy is a hostess of rare charm and her sewing party this afternoon was one of the successful informalities of the season. Though needlework was in the hands of the guests, social converse held sway, and a merry contest in guessing the contents of a model work basket, listed in letters disarranged, as the contents of a model work basket never are.

As the sun dropped low in the west, the hostess treated the guests to a pleasant surprise by inviting them for a walk, over to the home of her mother, Mrs. Otto Dieckmann's, a block distant. The company adjourned to the Dieckmann home to find they had been expected and every arrangement made for their entertainment. The dining room into which they were ushered was beautifully decked in the rose buds and foliage of "crimson ramblers." From a central cluster of these fragrant buds the rose germed branches radiated to borders of the table where twenty-five guests feasted till the "edge of the day trembled into twilight."

Those who enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Danahy and Mrs. Dieckmann were Mesdames E. J. Alger, Roy Stamm, E. R. Edgar, H. B. Hening, Theodore Woolsey, Charles White, Hubbard, Thomas Kelcher, Jr., Harry Weiller, Roy McDonald, Ralph Hunt, Misses Reine Grunsfeld, Brent, Jettie Rosenwald, Hannah Nausbaum, Mildred Fox, Margaret Keleher, Erna Fergusson, Eugenia Keleher, Lolita Huning, Eunice McClellan, Sue Dobson, Ethel Saint, Lillian Hesselden.

Farewell to Bride-Elect

The last in the series of pre-nuptial functions complimentary to Miss Elizabeth Telfer, was the "kitchen shower" this afternoon when Miss Madonna Rankin was hostess at one of the happiest and most unique of the season.

The hostess, and many of the guests have been life long friends of the honoree, who was enclasped in a circle of sincerest regard as their nimble fingers fashioned dish towels, dust cloths, pot holders and other accessories to the furnishing of her new kitchen when she returns from Detroit as Mrs. James Gladding. When the needlework had been finished, the hostess invited the company to repair to the lawn where a tent—the inevitable of a city engineer's tent—had been set up and completely furnished with every imaginable utensil for kitchen use. The bride-elect who is to be the helpmate of the city engineer was invited to enter and take possession of the tent and its furnishings contributed with loving thought by her girlhood friends.

In this pleasant place, the guests were seated and enjoyed a delectable repast served by the hostess. Those present were: Mesdames I. F. Petts, J. E. Hanauan, J. M. Dennis of Phoenix, George Powers, Guy Rogers, Thomas Hughes, Ward Anderson, D. J. Rankin, Misses Carrie McClurken, Adele Gass, Ruth Gass, Grace and Josephine Murdy, Blanche Perkins, Beatrice Sleight, Elizabeth Telfer, Madonna Rankin.

Miss Telfer will leave for the home of her parents in Detroit, Michigan Monday evening and will return as Mrs. James Gladding in September.

Off for London.

This evening Professor Hodgin, dean of the university, Mrs. Hodgin and Miss Nancy Hewitt will start on a fourteen months' tour abroad. Miss Belle Stanley, librarian of the university left yesterday for New York, where she will join the Hodgins' party and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Strong.

These Albuquerqueans will make up a party to sail at once to England where some time will be spent in London and plans for further travel decided. The itinerary will include most of the European countries and all places of historic interest that attracts the fancy of the travelers who will loiter where the attraction is strongest and hasten on new expeditions when caprice or impatience dictates. Jerusalem and other cities in Palestine will be visited before the return to Albuquerque in the autumn of 1912.

Varsity Commencement.

Seldom if ever have Albuquerqueans been privileged to hear an intellectual giant who will measure up to the standard of Dr. David Starr Jordan, who addressed the graduates of the University Thursday evening. The impression made on the minds of the people who crowded the theater to the doors will last through a life time, and the appeal to the graduates to work for the abolition of war and the uplutiding rather than the blood shed of nations will likely result in definite shaping of their characters.

Very impressive was the investing of the graduates from the College of Letters and Arts with their bachelor's hoods, bestowed by Dr. Gray, after which they were presented to Mr. F. W. Clancy, president of the board of regents, for the conferring of the diplomas.

The announcement of prize winners was made by Dr. Gray and elicited the plaudits of the audience as the winners were awarded.

Following is the list:

The chief prize, "The Rhodes Scholarship," to Oxford University, England, was awarded to Karl Gustav Karsten.

The first essay prize was awarded to Harold Marsh.

The second essay prize was divided between W. B. Arens and Frank Spitz.

The prizes for drawings in biology work were announced. First, Jay Allen; second, W. B. Arens; third, I. W. Miller.

Affair for Dr. Jordan.

One of the most distinguished personages of the times was honor guest at an elegantly appointed luncheon Thursday at the Alvarado hotel, when the Board of Regents of the U. N. M. were hosts to Dr. David Starr Jordan. On behalf of the regents, F. H. Wroth expressed the appreciation of the board for the honor of entertaining Dr. Jordan and the privilege of hearing him in the commencement address.

Dr. Jordan replied in a humorous happy vein, complimenting the progressiveness of the University and forecasting a brilliant future for the institution of the new south in which it will play a prominent part in development.

An automobile drive around the city was the conclusion of this informal luncheon. The gentlemen present were Dr. Jordan, Dr. E. McQueen Gray, president of the university, Frank W. Clancy, James H. Wroth, E. Wroth, E. S. Stover, C. E. Dodge, D. A. Macpherson, F. P. Squier, Neill B. Field, Mayor John W. Elder, Judge Ira A. Abbott, John Lee Clarke and Superintendent W. D. Sterling.

Dinner for Dr. Jordan

Dr. and Mrs. E. McQueen Gray entertained Dr. David Starr Jordan at dinner Thursday evening at their home on East Central avenue. Covers were laid for six on the table beautiful in the dressing of pink sweet peas and glistening service of old silver. Present at this enjoyable informal dinner were Dr. Jordan, Mr. Jordan, General Frank Clancy and Mrs. Clancy, Miss Tonzell, Dr. and Mrs. Gray.

Annual Reception.

Following the graduating exercises in the theater Thursday evening the annual reception tendered by Dr. and Mrs. E. McQueen Gray occurred in the Elks' hall room. Receiving with the host and hostess were Dr. David Starr Jordan and Miss Tonzell, sister of Mrs. Gray. More than three hundred guests availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy Dr. Gray's hospitality and meet the eminent scholar who was honor guest of the evening.

Music by the DiMauro orchestra was specially fine, several selections from Italian operas being rendered during the hour of reception. Later, the younger contingent enjoyed a season of a dancing till a late hour.

Tri Alphas Picnic.

In the early hours while less energetic Albuquerqueans were taking their beauty naps this morning, a contingent of the Tri Alpha fraternity—ten in number—crowded into a roomy automobile and sped to the southward to a rendezvous in "Canyon del Trigo" in the Manzanos forty miles away. In this ideal camping place, the young men will court the ruddy glow that has forsaken their complexions during the strenuous season of festivities attending the commencement week, and incidentally to start things going in the realm of game in that vicinity. A wagon loaded with provisions and bedding left yesterday morning for "Canyon del Trigo," which the motorists expect to overtake about the time it reaches the destination.

High School Graduation.

The last chapter of preparatory school work ended for nineteen young people last evening when they received their diplomas from Mr. A. J. Mabry, president of the city school board. The opera house was well filled with friends of these young men and women on the threshold of life's school.

Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, president of the Las Vegas Normal college, addressed the class and audience in the forceful style of a trained thinker and experienced platform orator.

He pleaded eloquently for the graduates to chose a practical trade wherewith they may be assured of independence and contribute materially to the needs of society. A plea for manual training in the public schools that will equip the boys for industrial service and the girls to home-makers, was the burden of a discourse, masterly in conception and delivered with the force of earnest conviction.

Illustrating his talk with the apt illustrations, and inimitable wit for which this speaker is famed, Dr. Roberts' truths went home to the hearts of his hearers.

Professor Milne, principal of the high school, also addressed the graduates in happy vein, after which they were presented to President Mabry to receive their diplomas.

The music by the high school and the vocal solo by Misses Cartwright and Blucher, were highly pleasing and added much to the pleasure of the memorable evening.

Musical at Theater.

Another attraction presented under the auspices of the Santa Fe reading room department will be the entertainment this evening in Elks' theater by the Men's Glee club of the University of Southern California hailing from Los Angeles. In the club are musicians, vocalists, clever talkers, monologists, fancy dancers and a character specialist of superlative ability.

Piano Recital

May, the month of graduation and recitals was not big enough or long enough to hold all the entertainments, and several have run over into June. A notable culmination of the recitals will be the program next Tuesday evening in the Elks' lodge room when a veritable music feast is promised by the piano pupils of Miss Marian Moriarty. Many of the young musicians whose names appear on the appended program have already attained the fame of musical prodigies the past year and demonstrate the rare ability of Miss Moriarty, their cultural instructor, who came from St. Louis less than a year ago to reside in this city.

Parents of the pupils and invitees will hear the program that begins at eight o'clock in the lodge room of the Elks' building. This is in no sense a closing recital, however, as Miss Moriarty will continue her piano classes during the summer months. The program follows:

students and those in search of entertainment, realizing as well as pleasing are all anticipating with positive interest the drama to be presented in the Elks' theater by the young ladies June 14.

Modern spectacular in book, music and production of dramatic art commencement goes this year is the strongest of theatrical undertakings by graduates. The tempestuous period in Nero's reign is the time of the story. The scene of the Roman emperor's court and the high priests and by scenes of the eternal city of Rome are portrayed reproduced in stage setting and embodying in the opulence of the time where the graceful attire of the period and customs, the architecture of their buildings and accessories of their buildings and much intrigue is just apparent in the first part of the drama. The tragic denouement of the time will be exemplified by exquisite dances before the imperial throne by Miss Elizabeth Tomlin in the role of Roman dancer, Miss Helen Turner, entitled "Dance of the Spirits," a prize for an elegant and delicate interpretation as well as a memorable ability will impersonate Mesdames, and her interpretation of her character will win acclaim.

Miss Helen Akers as Charlotte Brixner as the Empress and Emperor of Rome is a striking wonderful tableau in the rehearsing of these young ladies, as which its drama is staged. Miss Nellie Phillips and Loretto McNally as spies whose impersonation is a vivid contrast to the tragic of character seen in Fairies and Time, demonstrate the power of impersonators.

Miss Mary Kelly as Diana, Superious, prefect of the Vestals is stern and commanding as Diana is dignified, and "Tiberius" was a perfect impersonated by Miss Jane Kelly, is a splendid representation of the soldierlam and austere dignity of the times. Miss Keleher has acquired an impression of heavy, masculine roles in former theatrics by St. Vincent's talent and is specially fitted to carry the difficult role of "Tiberius."

Miss Laureen Smith as the Mercia the heroine, is most versatile in the emotional scenes and pleasing grace with which she invests the character.

Each one who is privileged to see this drama will be engrossed by the perfect, pleasing in the beauty and art and be unanimous in voicing a higher plane in the estimation of "truth crushed to the earth" and the "Christian Triumph."

A feature of the play comment does not lack from a unique but man performance of a in the Revel of Fairies. In each the role. Forty were dancers in the primary grades with summer wind and flower, and moving in graceful rhythm through the intricacies of terpsichorean drill to the appropriate music will delight all spectators. The participants in this fairy grace will be: Alexandria Vanderbeek, Josephine O'Reilly, Margaret Marrinan, Dorthy Butler, Irene Pinney, Irene Lee, Antoinette Wolfe, Adele Lyons, Myrtle Beaver, Gladys Kelly, Mary el Hopkins, Mary Chapelle, Bessie McGrady, Lily Yrisarri, Anita Garcia, Antonette Chavez, Lily Abeyantman, Rose Abeyantman, Alice Hopkins, Griselda Garcia, Josephine Schreiner, Maude Beaver, Edna Lavelle, Margaret Smithers, Helen Gilbert, Josephine Espinosa, Irene Barrington, Louise Sherman, Helene Candelario, Margaret Sperger, Lillie Bettinger, Frances Marron, Alexia Digiulio, Queen Stover, Josephine Schmidt, Teve Sandoval, Pesal Hilling, Lena Schmidt, Rita Rittenhouse, Irene Cooley, Elizabeth Stone, Antonia Hernandez, Agnes Linn.

Woman's Club.

The business of the ante-vacation school was closed yesterday afternoon by the members of the Woman's club, and during a happy social hour goodbyes were said till September. The committee on the program for the new year looks have almost completed their task and when the club reassembles in the autumn, the new calender will forecast a most interesting series of art, domestic science, musical and literary programs for the year. Mrs. J. A. Miller chairman of the program committee is assisted by Mrs. Cannon, Mrs. P. Ray, Mrs. Albright.

The resignation of Mrs. W. L. Sterling was read and accepted as the writer expected to leave soon for her new home in the state of Washington.

Refreshments were served by the social committee before the final adjournment.

Mrs. Overton Entertains.

Mrs. Thomas Overton's pleasant home near the University was the meeting place of the members of the Good Cheer club Thursday afternoon, when the ladies assembled for the customary pastime of needle work.

A special meeting of the club has been called for next Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Reihl to make arrangements for the forthcoming bazaar of the club in the Odd Fellows' hall.

Royal Neighbors to Entertain

That provision is made for entertainment during the summer dull summer months, will be a welcome announcement to the stay-at-homes who find Albuquerque attractive the year around.

The Royal Neighbors of America announce that a series of entertainments by this enterprising order will occur at regular intervals throughout the summer months.

At the last meeting in A. O. U. W. hall, the Royal Neighbors voted to change the place of meeting to the Odd Fellows' temple across the street and to meet the second Thursday afternoon and the fourth Thursday evening of each month. The numbers in attendance and the enthusiasm of the members seems to increase rather than to decrease with the advent of summer.

Presbyterian Ladies to Meet

The ladies of the Presbyterian Aid society will meet Thursday afternoon in the church parlors for business and pleasure.

C. L. Picnic

What can be more enjoyable than a crowd of forty-eight congenial young people on a picnic? Such was the number and nature of the picnic last Tuesday when the Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church enjoyed an outing in Bear canyon. Armed with lunch baskets loaded with the luxuries and necessities of life, wherewith to keep the "wolf from the door," the young people boarded the two carryalls at 8:30 in the morning, and returned in the gloaming of the same day. Mr. and Mrs. Metzger and Mr. and Mrs. Hopping were the chaperones and enjoyed the day with greater zest if possible than the chaperoned. Lunches were spread at 11:30 under the green pines near the arroyo. During the afternoon a good percentage of the crowd explored the fastness of the upper canyon, wriggled through "Fat Man's Misery," scaled down the "Devil's slide" and in so far as possible emulated mineral explorers. Many started to climb to Rim Rock, but grew faint hearted and turned back.

Aid Society to Meet

Next Thursday afternoon the ladies of the Aid society will hold a business meeting in the Gold and Broadway Church of Christ.

C. W. B. M. Rally.

Being specially favored by the weather man, and the large number of conveyances tendered for the trip, the ladies of the Christian Woman's board of missions enjoyed a delightful drive Thursday afternoon in automobiles and carriages out to the mesa home of Mrs. J. W. Van Cleave. The purpose of the assembly was a rally that proved inspiring as the echoes of the recent state convention roused the enthusiasm of the company. The topic of the day, "Prayer" was discussed by many of the ladies and the reports of the convention gone over again. At the close of the program the hostess proved herself a royal entertainer. The guests looked over the new home and young orchard, that under the generous feeding from the new well spouting its crystal waters from a depth of four hundred and fifty feet is developing into a model grove of thrifty fruit trees. While the gasoline motor wrested the waters from the deeps and threw it into the troughs the ladies essayed to drink from the pipe in the style of farm hands and plumbers. Some found the feat too strenuous and merely cheered the others. A luncheon was the closing feature of the happy afternoon. Those present were: Mesdames Williams, Gentry, Seivert, Moore, James, Leech, Lankin, Campbell, Erret Van Cleave, Dennis, Hardenson, Wear, Zearing, Hooper, MacSpaden, Archer, Smith, Miss Wood of Nashville, Tenn., and little Ilona Barth, Baby Hardenson, and Mrs. James Grandchild.

Bazaar by Good Cheer.

The industrious ladies banded into the Good Cheer club are planning to hold a bazaar June 17 in the Odd Fellows' hall when their handiwork will be on display, and a sumptuous supper served, followed by an entertainment, all of which will be for the benefit of the orphans in the Odd Fellows' home at Roswell, for whose welfare the club exists.

Study Club Meets.

A coterie of students, who have enrolled in the home study class of the American University, gathered Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. de la Vergne on North Twelfth street to agree on preliminary plans concerning the study course next winter. No formal organization was effected as the sentiment of the class favored a method of informal study and social. Naming the date of the autumn assembly to be September 27 at the home of Mrs. de la Vergne, the company dispersed.

Birthday Celebration

Not soon to be forgotten by the twenty-five guests who enjoyed her hospitality, is the gay party Tuesday evening when Miss Nettie Clarke entertained in celebration of her sixteenth birthday anniversary. A musician herself, the feature of the evening naturally centered in musical numbers by the guests. Misses Lizzie Jones, Wilma Kilenworth and Gertrude Cockran contributed to the enjoyment of the company by piano numbers. Mr. Orlando Jones rendered a violin solo pleasingly. Interspersing the informal program were games that merged the individual guests into a delightful, homogeneous whole. The rooms were tastefully decorated in purple and white, that in the dining room was specially pleasing. The young hostess was showered with the good wishes and many gifts of the company, that after partaking of a dainty repast departed at a late hour. Those present were: Misses Martha Stripe, Frieda Stripe, Marie Medler, Pa. Gamble, Alberta Hawthorne, Grace Gibson, Lizzie Jones, Gertrude Cockran, Daisy Schnelle, Leo Laesie, Hetty Mischke, Wilma Kilenworth, Messrs. Elmer Riehl, Alfred Riehl, James Harwood, Aaron Garcia, Roy McGregor, Wesley Thompson, Walter Patten, Orlando Jones, Robert Casson, Harry Hudson, George Clarke, Henry Clarke.
