Mr. P. Maynard returned from Los Melonies, Calif., Sunday, having spent the past few months visiting his daughter, Mrs. Eugene McDonald, at that place.

CARLSBAD.

The citizens of Carlsbad gave a banquet to Captain W. H. Merchant Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Legal Tender restaurant. Captain Merchant is an old Confederate soldier and is extremely popular in Carlsbad. The occasion of the banquet was the departure of himself to his home in Dallas, Texas. Among the guests were:

C. R. Brice, who represented Eddy county in the legislature and Carlsbad city commissioner, also in the constitutional convention; W. C. Stewart, sheriff; Will Merchant, treasurer; John Price, assessor; J. D. Walker, justice of the peace; Arthur R. O. Quinn, clerk; C. H. McClanahan, mayor; G. W. Armstrong, probate judge; R. M. Thorne, councilman; George Cook, councilman; Doctors Pate, Dreyer and Cocran; W. A. Finlay, W. W. Mulkins, Mate Crow, Roy Burnett, J. R. Lina, Robert Fenenders, John T. Kelly, representing the Eddy Herald; George Pendleton, Captain Burns, toastmaster.

The menu of the banquet consisted of the following:

Roast pig and apple sauce, combination salad, chicken tomatoes, dill pickles, Saratoga chips.

Many toasts were proposed to the toastmaster and good humor prevailed throughout the banquet.

While this banquet was going on another one was held in the large banquet hall on Canon street given by James Harp in honor of some of his friends. This was equal to its fullest extent. Johnny Stewart was toastmaster, and the hard witty utterances of the toastmaster and the guests were hugely enjoyed by all. Those present were:

Ed Worner, John Worner, W. G. Brown, A. Brown, Johnny Stewart, Harry Brainard, John Cantrel, James Simpson, Robert Toothmeier, A. Poole, J. R. Roberts, James Harp, William McKinley, Brigham Allen, J. S. Crozier, A. Lange, G. Lange, and some others that the reporter overlooked. The menu was as follows:

Fresh garden radishes, fresh lettuce, fresh onions, lobster salad, limberger cheese (small quantities), Swiss cheese, pineapple cheese, new peaches, fresh strawberries and cream, Blue Ribbon beer, black coffee.

MILNE SUCCEEDS STERLING AS SUPERINTENDENT OF CITY SCHOOLS

Principal of High School Is Named by Board of Education to Take Position Vacated by Retiring Head of System Who Goes to Wider Field in Washington State.

John Milne is the man selected to succeed W. D. Sterling as superintendent of the Albuquerque city schools, according to a unanimous vote of the board of education at a special meeting of the board on Saturday night last.

Mr. Sterling, as we have stated in The Herald recently, resigned his position as head of the city schools in North Yakima, Wash., and has accepted a position with the department of schools of the state of Washington, and will begin his duties there on September 1.

The appointment of Mr. Milne as Mr. Sterling's successor will meet with general approbation in Albuquerque. Although a young man to occupy a responsible position, Mr. Milne has demonstrated the ability that has set south during his nine years service in the city schools. Thoroughly in touch with local conditions and a man of broad experience in western schools, Mr. Milne's appointment is an ideal one and the board is to be congratulated on their selection. Mr. Milne's place as principal will be taken by Miss Nimmo.

W. D. STERLING,

For Five Years Superintendent of Albuquerque City Schools, Who Goes as Superintendent of North Yakima, Wash., Schools.

JOHN MILNE

Who Has Been Appointed Superintendent of Albuquerque Schools, Succeeding W. D. Sterling, Resigned.

Hewitt, assistant principal, and Mr. Hewitt will be succeeded by Miss Ella Lathe.

Mr. Milne came to the Albuquerque schools in 1906 from Wisconsin. In Milwaukee, Wis., Mr. Milne was superintendent of schools, and for four years in the preparatory department of the Milwaukee Normal school.

It was with much regret that the board of education accepted Mr. Sterling's resignation, as they had all along, because of the fine work of Mr. Sterling's schools, attainments and successful [illegible] could not be retained in the finished field for advancement which Albuquerque affords. What Mr. Sterling has accomplished as head of the Albuquerque schools is well known. The personal in his new field is a foregone conclusion. A splendid scholar, with many years of experience as a teacher and superintendent, there is no doubt but that he is the man that North Yakima needs if they wish to improve their present school system and have it mentioned as the highest state of efficiency. Mr. Sterling's numerous friends in Albuquerque will sincerely regret his departure and wish that he will enjoy unmistakable success in a new field.

At the meeting of the board of education last evening several members of the board, including Mr. Schiffle, Mr. Grunsfeld, Mr. Hodel and Dr. Wolf, made long speeches of regret because of Mr. Sterling's resignation. The following resolutions of regret were unanimously adopted and ordered spread on the records of the board:

"It is with deep and heartfelt regret that we accept the resignation of Superintendent W. D. Sterling. When we lose Mr. Sterling we lose a splendid superintendent of our public schools and a man of worth from our community. Because of our esteem for him we do tender the following resolutions:

"Whereas, Superintendent W. D. Sterling, during his labors of five years in our city schools, has proved a most efficient superintendent, has ever given us his earnest support and cooperation, and has been instrumental in bringing the schools to their present excellent standard, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that we express to him our hearty appreciation of his untiring efforts which have brought about such successful results, and that we do extend to him our sincere wishes for his continued success in his new field of labor."

AMERICAN BUYERS OF WOOL LOOK TO AUSTRALIA

Sydney Is Becoming Great Market for This Staple Threatening London's Supremacy.

"That the American wool market will compete with the American wool growers to a great extent as soon as the tariff on this staple is lowered is indicated in a report from Vice Consul General Henry D. Baker now residing at Auckland, N. Z. It says in part:

The rapidly growing importance of Sydney, Australia, as a wool market is shown in the figures of sales for the past three wool years. In the 1907-8 season 599,003 bales were sold; in 1908-9 745,863 bales were sold; in 1909-10 the sales were 919,330 bales.

The wool sold at the 1909-10 Sydney sales represented a value of approximately $55,000,000. The Sydney sales are bigger than the other Australian sales put together, and are gaining at such a rate as to threaten the supremacy of London as the world's greatest wool market. Sydney already dominates the market for merino wools, and in the sales of Australian wools generally it now comes within several million bales a year of the London market. The greater part of the Sydney wool, including chiefly merino, goes to the continent of Europe, especially to Germany and France, where it is mostly spun into fine fabrics for women's dresses.

English manufacturers, who specialize more in long coarse wools for men's clothing, are buyers of crossbreds rather than merinos and buy at other Australian markets rather than Sydney. Fine merino wool that will wind out long than 64 hanks to the pound is bought for French and German houses, who will usually not take it below 64, while English houses will seldom take it above 64. The American buyers take the cleanest, brightest and finest wools they can get, including both merinos and the best grades of crossbreds, as the tariff at home renders it impossible to import other than the best and cleanest wool.

The rapid growth of Sydney as a wool market seems to be due not merely to the increase of sheep flocks in New South Wales (present number about 17,000,000), but also to the constant improvements in the local facilities for buying and selling, storing and handling wool, which have caused the local market to gain steadily in popularity with both buyers and sellers who now consummate large transactions which formerly were carried out in London.

Competition for the handling of wool at Sydney is here extremely keen, and has led to erection of enormous stores, fitted with the most up-to-date appliances. There are 12 firms engaged in this business here, most of them with very large capital. They show considerable enterprise in their efforts to gain the trade of Australian wool growers and of the wool buyers who come here every year from England, Scotland, Germany, France, Belgium, Austria, Italy, Japan, the United States and other countries to attend the wool sales, and who naturally prefer to buy through whatever firm they think can offer the best assortments and provide the most convenient facilities for inspection of wool and for preparing it for shipment to the countries for which it may be bought. Some of the wool warehouses in Sydney are 6 to 8 acres in area, with 5 to 6 floors, and with capacity up to 50,000 bales of wool. One floor will be used for display of samples and other floors will be equipped with powerful machinery for "dumping" the wool (technical expression for compressing the bales and holding them tightly with steel hoops) and for weighing, conveying the wool etc.

The wood is sold at auction by catalogue, the preparation of the catalogues involving an enormous amount of labor and attention to detail. The catalogue of the sale under way at the time of my visit covered nearly 16,000 bales of greasy wool, which, I was told, would yield for manufacture about 7,000,000 pounds of clean scoured wool, which when combed, spun and woven into cloth, would in the "tailors" hands give 500,000 suits of clothes. In the sample bales about 15 to 20 per cent of the bulk of a particular lot of wool is shown, but the bulk lots are also available for inspection to show whether they correspond properly with the wool in the sample bales. During the period of the sales, elaborate luncheons are served in the [illegible] pavilions to all the buyers and visitors present at the sales, and every claim also that is possible is made to make the environment pleasing of the ship as any article also sold in the ring is possible.

ANOTHER SUIT FILED AGAINST BALDWIN ESTATE

Another Claimant Contends for Portion of "Lucky" Baldwin's Estate.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 3.—Evidence for the purpose of showing that the pictures painted by H. H. Cross at the alleged request of the late E. J. Baldwin were damaged by the fire which destroyed the Baldwin hotel in San Francisco and had to be repainted and refitted by Cross was introduced today before Judge Craig in the action in which Cross is trying to recover $22,750 from the $11,000,000 Baldwin estate for executing the paintings.

The defense contends that none of the pictures were in the Baldwin hotel at the time of the fire.

WORMS

"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape-worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape-worm 45 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Peck, of Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa. I am quite a booster for Cascarets. I use them myself and find them beneficial for most any disease caused by impure blood. Chas. E. Condon, Lewistown, Pa." (Mifflin Co.)
