HELL OR RUIN.

It is idle of course now to cry wolf with the Journal-Democrat. That paper is determined to launch a community earned not candidate for office on the Republican party who will not pledge to its slightest demand, obey its word and stand at bay at its command.

This has been the history of the Journal-Democrat for years and it will continue to be its policy until the end of the present campaign, at which time that paper will have proven that it has been defeated, defeated and discredited to such an extent that it will have no standing in any party but as an independent paper.

It is an interesting history, the Journal-Democrat presents. It fought W. H. Andrews, the present delegate in congress, bitterly. Then, one memorable night, it made Mr. Andrews delegate in congress by suddenly throwing down D. S. Rodey, a man it had supported shamefully, and the only reason it defeated him for nomination was that he refused to obey it.

Mr. Andrews, like his predecessor, finally refused to obey the commands of the Journal-Democrat and no man ever underwent a more scathing arraignment than the Journal-Democrat gave Mr. Andrews for years.

The Journal-Democrat fought, abused and villified Miguel A. Otero. It attacked him in every possible way, reflected upon his administration and fought him from every angle. A few days ago it named him on a so-called "Republican ticket" and held him up to ridicule. Within forty-eight hours thereafter the same paper came out unqualifiedly for him on the first page as its choice for governor.

There are but instances of the flops the Journal-Democrat has made. There are countless more. Likewise it has abused, ridiculed and attacked H. B. Ferguson, A. A. Jones, Judge McGill and other prominent Democratic leaders and candidates. Now at this very day it is seeking to gain the consent of those same men to permit it to support them under the banner of Democracy. The Journal-Democrat has always been a paper open to a trade. It has gone hither and thither, wherever it thought it could benefit itself, without regard to the interests of the people, of any party or of any man. It has not hesitated to besmirch characters, question motives, ruin business or break hope or ambition. It has thrown its friends who trusted to it at critical times, and taken up its enemies to gain its own selfish ends. Its friends have learned to fear it because they do not know at what minute it will turn upon them. Its policy has been rule or ruin and if has stopped at nothing when its interests were concerned.

The paper now stands as it has always stood at the critical time—waiting to see wherein it will be most benefited. Its friends can not count upon it, for they do not know where it will leave them. It will go wherever it can see the greatest advantage to itself and without regard to how many of its friends and supporters are trampled under foot when it makes the bolt. The men with whom it affiliates will stand in dread of it for they know not at what moment it may desert the standard in a critical situation and leave them alone and defenseless.

It is the wolf in sheep's clothing, and woe unto the fold within which it takes shelter.

TAFT'S WESTERN TRIP.

Presidential missions into the states for extended speech-making tours are of comparatively recent origin. Until Roosevelt, this method of campaigning was almost unknown. To be sure, McKinley occasionally left Washington to make a speech in remote states, but his trips were more in the nature of visits than campaign tours. It was Roosevelt who popularized the "swing around the circle" as a presidential "stunt," and President Taft is simply following the precedent.

Mr. Taft has embarked upon a remarkable tour of speech-making, and it is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that this trip will be a most arduous physical strain which few men, even when unencumbered by official demands, would care to undergo. For six weeks President Taft will be "on the road," and every day and almost every hour of that period will be beset with peculiar difficulties and obligations that would weary the most robust constitutions. The undertaking was entered into deliberately. The tour was carefully planned and in all the schedule there was scarcely an engagement for recreation. Not to the mere thousands of people, but literally tens of thousands, are the representatives of the republican party, including the candidate himself, the speaking word, inspiring with patriotism the hearts of citizens here, there and everywhere to be touched, not by idle attempts of theatrical rhetoric and clarion to arouse and enthuse, but President Taft will pass through western territory in California states in which will have not free from the trouble of Democracy. He will meet in the capital of Democratic newspapers whose editors—Editor Tribune in footing to our one or three years are not who never called upon enjoy benefit of Democratic personal admirations. He will go to the country of Democratic senators and senators who are running for 1912 and who could not be but such an opportunity to make personal capital at home.

Yet President Taft is finding that the people of the west are not hostile to him. He is being greeted everywhere with warm enthusiasm and cheerfulness. The west does Taft no harm. It knows he is honest and sincere. Even those who do not approve of his political respect had no more than. Popular confidence in him is growing in spite of the efforts of battle of Democratic politicians to discredit it. Wherever politicians and men of standing may be met with at the hands of political enemies, it may President Taft will be sustained by the knowledge that the people themselves are his friends and offer him their wholehearted hospitality.

PAY IN ADVANCE.

Not the least among the blessings of statehood, and one of its first fruits, is the boon that it is proving to our brethren of the Democratic weekly press in providing an increased revenue from the publication of the campaign announcements of the various patriots who aspire to serve the new state in an official capacity.

For be it known that there is no scarcity of Democratic candidates for office in any county in New Mexico, nor is there apparent on the face of the returns any shrinking timidity on their part in letting it be known to the people of their various communities just how worthy and deserving of public confidence they are. In any Democratic paper in New Mexico at present the principal news of the day is the news of the candidacy of some eminent Democratic gentleman for some important office, just for as so much per inch, and the matter that usually constitutes the event of leading importance and occupies the most conspicuous position in the paper is crowded into obscurity or omitted entirely.

It is painful to observe, however, in one of our contemporaries, an editorial pronouncement that all announcements of candidates must, in order to be published, be accompanied by cash in advance. It indicates a degree of suspicion and a lack of faith in human nature which is inconsistent with the high editorial character, and gives rise to the fear that sordid commercialism will eventually invade this, the noblest of the professions, which so far has kept itself unsullied from any such taint. Also, it gives rise to the suspicion that this particular Democratic editor has at some time in his career been stung.

Yes, there be those days for the Democratic editor. But let me mail hereafter him his prospects. If, instead of lasting a scant sixty days, it extended over as many months, with everything cash in advance, it would not recompense him for the lean years when his nerve, his devotion to principle and his faith in human nature were about all he had to run the race on, and when pardon-size and promises were about all he got in return for his services to the Democratic candidates.

Whether it be H. O. Bursum, Nathan Jaffa, Miguel A. Otero, Secundino Romero, Solomon Luna or any other Republican nominated for governor at the convention in Las Vegas, all Republicans will support the state ticket and it will be elected by the biggest majority ever rolled up in New Mexico.

And the "special" are still waiting for the Journal-Democrat to explain why it is that the taxes are higher than ever before, despite its economical administration of county affairs. It should also be remembered that the assessed valuation is higher than it used to be.

Creased trousers and window panes are the only issues the Journal-Democrat has advanced thus far that appear to be greatly influencing the voters.

Champ Clark's return home was celebrated in Pike county with a great basket dinner. The full basket was on hand—under the Republican tariff, which still remains.

And we fear that all is not as harmonious in the Democratic ranks as it might be if the Journal-Democrat had not come on that excursion.

When time from now begins to pass in view the Democrats will find themselves the Journal-Democrats most chief, if a little.

Mr. Rodey having a well merited rest, the Journal-Democrat is trying to make a great issue of the Journal-Democrat not bringing it should be that office.

The Canadians are contemplating annexation. They will find, however, when it gets down to the show, that here never been asked.

Governor and Mrs. Aiken will at least be certainly received by "society" at Seattle. The pet dogs in care Queen Mary of England.

The Progressive leaders is not for the only party opening party for consideration of other.

The crop of Democratic candidates is so large at the peach crop at Carlsbad.

"MOTHER'S LITTLE BOY"

Mother's little boy has gone,
Far and far away;
Left behind his childhood's dawn,
He's a man today.
He has put behind the joys
Of the brown years,
Left his pleasure mains and toys,
And his childish tears.

Mother's little boy has left
Oh, but he was fair!
And her heart is sore bereft,
Thinking of him there.
In a treasured chest there lies
Curls of sunny gold,
And in them her tear-stained eyes
See him as of old.

Mother's little boy—ah, me!
I can see her now,
Gently, sweetly, tenderly
Kissing his smooth brow,
I can see him on her breast,
Sobbing out his grief,
To her bosom tightly pressed,
Comfortless, for relief.

Mother's little boy is
Just as in the years
When she soothed that grief of his
And consoled his tears.
None but mother knew the way
To bring peace and joy;
As of old, he is today
"Mother's little boy."

Though he's grown to man's estate,
And has left at last
Childhood's dawn and through the gate
On life's road has passed,
Still to her who breathes his name,
Through grief or through joy,
He's forever just the same—
"Mother's little boy."

Santa Rosa Banker Pleased With Settlement of His Claim Under Pacific Mutual Policy.

General Agent F. H. Schweitzer of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company recently received a letter which was not only very gratifying to him, but will also be of the greatest interest to the host of Pacific Mutual policy holders in New Mexico. The writer of the letter is H. R. Robertson, cashier of the First National bank of Santa Rosa, N. M., and he pays a most remarkable tribute to the methods of the Pacific Mutual company in dealing with the last claims of its policyholders. The letter is as follows:

Santa Rosa, N. M., Aug. 23, 1911.

Mr. F. H. Schweitzer, General Agent, Pacific Mutual Life Ins. Co., Albuquerque, N. M.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your favor of the 21st inst., enclosing check to cover my recent claim under illness clause of my policy. Please accept my thanks for your very prompt and altogether satisfactory disposition of same.

Very truly,
(Signed) H. R. ROBERTSON.

GRADES OF STOCK TO BE IMPROVED AT MESILLA

Agricultural College to Do Considerable Work to Discover Most Valuable Breeds for New Mexico Conditions.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.)

Agricultural College, N. M., Sept. 20.—Prof. H. H. Stockbridge, who is in charge of the animal husbandry department, with a gang from college farm, is now in Lincoln county to buy and purchase some new breed stock to add to and improve the college herd as well as the herds of the valley.

The breeds which he intends getting are mainly new representatives of those which are now here, such as Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein, Shorthorn and Hereford cattle, Duroc Jersey and Tamworth hogs, Shropshire and Hampshire sheep. The following breeds will be added: Aberdeen Angus cattle, Berkshire swine and Lincoln and southdown sheep. It is the purpose of the department to keep the herds of stock that not only represent the various breeds but also to keep those that are best adapted to New Mexico conditions. The college stock is used for feeding, breeding, class judging and experimental work. Already the work which has been done here along some of these lines has been of very valuable aid to stock farmers, especially in this valley. Some years ago the college bought to this ranch some of Angus stock neither was favorably received by the farmers, but one of them, the Farnsworth, has proven its worth in extensive experiments at the college and by farmers who it is very popular now. The other has proven itself as undesirable, first, as it is white it is subject to sunburn and boils, and second, because it is not of a type which the market demands.

Further experiments are to be made along this line from time to time, in order to ascertain what breeds of animals are best adapted under the varying conditions of New Mexico.

A large crowd of farmers enthusiasts gathered at Hadley hall Saturday night to arrange for the organization of some active social literary society. An old members of the K. G. G. and Current Topics club were present, the main topic being the organization of a society with most of the contention hanging on as to whether the girls should be allowed to join. It seemed to be the general belief with some that the most effectual work could not be done with girls as there might be a tendency toward the social side. Debating and oratory and parliamentary practice will be some of the most important features of the new society's work, and it is contended that the girls are not interested enough in these things; girls are not eligible for membership in the territorial debate between the college and the university. Notwithstanding the contentions of the antagonistic side, it may be said that girls did splendid work in the Current Topics club last year and one of them won the college oratorical contest and represented the college in the territorial contest last year.

The Christian Endeavor society elected the following officers at their business meeting the other night: Darton Fite, president; Earl Wilson, vice president; Miss Grace Snell, secretary, and Egbert Merrill, treasurer. The following chairmen of committees were also elected: Prayer meeting, Grace Buell; lookout, Earl Wilson; missionary, Mrs. Oliver Shumaker; flower and relief, Miss Dora Hembree; music, John Longmuirton, and social, Mrs. Horwell. A social is announced for Saturday night, to which all are invited.

The young folks of the college enjoyed a few hours dancing and playing games at the girls' dormitory, McFie hall, Friday night. A grand ball is to be given in the new gymnasium Friday night, if nothing prevents materially. The building will be completed by then, it is hoped.

Professors Miller, Boxler, Lain and Mitchell spent a day or two in El Paso the end of the week. They attended the Masonic banquet given there Friday night.

Oscar Wilson, an old student, came down on the Friday train from Cutter and went to El Paso, where he underwent a successful operation for appendicitis.

JAFFA IS CHOICE OF THE PECOS

Visit of Miguel A. Otero Demonstrates That Popular Secretary Is First in the Hearts of His Countrymen.

Roswell, N. M., Sept. 20.—Ex-Governor M. A. Otero left Monday morning for Santa Fe after spending several days in the city, furthering his interests as a possible candidate for the office of governor for the new state.

He found everything unanimous for the Hon. Nathan Jaffa, eastern New Mexico's favorite son, present secretary of the territory.

Asked just what his political mission in the valley meant coming on the afternoon of the Republican precinct primaries, the former governor would not state. It is understood, however, that he endeavored to have the primaries instruct their delegates to the county conventions for him as second choice for governor, the first being Mr. Jaffa.

Quoting one prominent Republican, Mr. Otero has some friends in this section who would be glad to further the candidacy of Mr. Otero, but the county is rather divided after the first choice. The first choice of course is for Jaffa.

JUST LIKE THE NOVEL.

London, Sept. 20.—One of the favorite themes of the writer of old fashioned melodrama is the poor girl who is adopted by the rich and childless couple and inherits all their wealth. Such a case is that of Nancy McIntosh who, under the will of Sir William Gilbert, eventually will become possessor of his fortune of something over $500,000—most of it made out of "Pinafore" and "The Mikado."

Nancy McIntosh was "discovered" by Sir William twenty years ago. She was extremely beautiful, had a good voice and a pleasing manner, and impressed him with the idea that she had just the qualities required for a comic opera star, but the public didn't almost rise with the composer among either her voice or her ability as an actress, and after several attempts on the stage she lived quietly with Sir William and Lady Gilbert at their beautiful home at Grim's Dike, Harrow. Although she was known as Lady Gilbert's secretary, she was treated exactly like their daughter, and since Sir William's death she has continued to live with Lady Gilbert.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet this afternoon in the church parlors at 3 o'clock. All interested are cordially invited to be present.
