COUNTY CONVENTION TO BE IN CONTROL OF HUBBELL BURSUM

According to Local Leader, Andrews Has Been Eliminated and May Not Even Return Here to Live.

That the Republican county convention tomorrow will be absolutely controlled by supporters of Frank Hubbell and H. O. Bursum, candidates for the United States senatorial and the congressional nominations respectively, was asserted by a local Republican leader today. The man who made the statement is high in the councils of the party, and should know exactly what is going on and what is likely to go on.

Delegates favorable to Hubbell for United States senator and to Bursum for governor, he asserted, would be elected. There might be some sort of a fight on the floor of the convention, he said, but there is no doubt about the outcome and it wasn't even certain that there would be a fight.

It was said that the nation has dropped completely out of the campaign of former Delegate W. H. Andrews for the senatorial nomination. He was said to be less than a negligible factor. It was asserted that he was still in the east, would not be on hand for the convention, and probably wouldn't return to this part of the country at all; at the rate Mr. Andrews wouldn't come back here to make his home or to mix further in New Mexico politics, it was asserted.

The convention will be held at the county courthouse, beginning at 10 o'clock. Its sole business will be the selection of delegates to the state nominating convention and the adoption of a platform lambasting Governor McDonald and President Wilson and lauding everything Republican.

CITY AUTHORITIES ALARMED AT CASES OF TYPHOID FEVER

Only Five Reported in Town, But Indications That One Local Source Is Spreading Infection Disturbs Officials.

Concern over typhoid fever is felt by city health authorities. There are not at the present time an alarming number of cases, but information received by Health Officer Twitchell indicates that most if not all of the cases have spring from one source, which may have carried the infection to many more persons than have yet fallen ill and may continue to spread infection before it is definitely established that the disease is spreading from the focus suspected.

The health authorities have a record of five cases in the city at the present time. How many cases, if any, are outside the city in the immediate vicinity of town is not known.

Action has been taken by the health authorities to ascertain the source of infection and steps will be taken immediately to check the disease at its fount, upon the latter as discovered. Dr. John D. Clark, the city chemist, is at work on the investigation.

There is a time every year, at the end or directly after the vacation season, when a number of typhoid cases are looked for in cities of this size. They are contracted by vacationists from contaminated water, milk or food at vacation resorts and brought back home. It is not only too early for the usual appearance of such cases here at this time, but, as stated, there is scarcely room for doubt that the cases are spreading from a local focus.

GEN. VON LINSINGEN

His Army on Lipa River Hard Beset by Russians

RUSSIAN FORCE OF GENERAL KALEDINES GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

Military Correspondent of London Times Declares This Corps Has Done More Than Any Other Since War Commenced.

(By Evening Herald Leased Wire.)

London, July 31, 12:15 a. m.—The military correspondent of the Daily News, in summing up the work of the Russian general, Kaledines, during the past two weeks, the Times-Dispatch correspondent declares that the achievements of this division of the Russian force "are the most striking yet performed by a single army since the beginning of the war."

"There is no single man," the correspondent continues, "whom the most should contribute more responsible for the success of the general staff than General Kaledines, who, under the supreme direction, has crushed the German effort to regain the lost ground and restore their winning position."

"The correspondent, communicating with his German staff and superior troops, made possible the whole Russian offensive and its sweeping consequences."

"The same correspondent, writing from Russian headquarters, says: 'Never the new idea on the Russian side is sound, steady, far-sighted and thoroughly the whole German defensive plan.'"

"The course the writer considers is now concentrating from all sides and the battle is developing into one of the fiercest of the war. The Russian losses thus far have been comparatively small."

FORMER LOCAL MAN PROBABLY FATALLY INJURED IN WRECK

W. A. Havens May Die as Result of Smash on Grand Canyon Line; Two Trains of Same Number in Ditch Same Day.

Flagstaff, Ariz., July 31.—Two trains, each number 15, were wrecked on the Grand Canyon line of the Santa Fe in Arizona yesterday. W. A. Havens, a former Albuquerquean, is probably fatally injured in one of them, in which also one man, Fireman Fred Terry of Grand Canyon, was killed and Engineer John Oswald of Winslow was injured seriously.

The wreck was on the Grand Canyon line and it was in this that all the injuries occurred. The train ran into a washed out section of track, which basked all right from the top. Havens has been living at Grand Canyon.

The other was caused when a train ran into a washed out trestle, which collapsed. Pullman cars, all wood, were crushed into splinters but no one was injured. The passengers were brought here in automobiles. Not a truck from engine to last car stayed on the cars or on the track.

of the El Paso military district, indicated they had been killed.

Private John Thomas, troop F, Eighth United States cavalry, and Robert Woods, a United States customs inspector, were killed. Sergeant Lewis Thompson, troop F, Eighth cavalry, was wounded seriously.

American patrols had reported that a small detachment of Mexicans had crossed the Rio Grande and apparently were making its way toward an isolated section about fifteen miles down the river. It was believed they were either smugglers or stock thieves.

A small detachment of troop F, Eighth cavalry, was sent in pursuit. The Mexicans were surprised, and it is believed that none escaped.

Captain H. D. Cushing, commanding F company, Eighth Massachusetts, at Fort Hancock, reported such details as he was able to obtain to General Bell, but said he was hampered in obtaining information by reason of meagre wire communication.

General Francisco Gonzales, demanding the de facto government troops in northern Chihuahua, said today he had received dispatches declaring that a small band of cattle thieves were engaged by Mexican customs riders Saturday night on the ranches of San Ygnacio on the Mexican side a few miles south of Fort Hancock.

Mexican reports said also that three of the bandits were captured in the fight with the customs officers and that for several weeks the outlaws have been raiding ranches and mining properties just south of the border.

General Bell said later that military advices indicated that the clash took place a mile an da half from the Sanchez ranch about five miles below Fort Hancock.

Private Francis E. Shean of Baltimore, Md., of the hospital corps, who brought Private Thompson to the Fort Bliss hospital, made a personal report to General Bell.

"We left Hancock at 4 o'clock this morning," said Shean, "with a detachment of six enlisted men, including myself, Lieutenant Seifried and the two cavalry inspectors, Wood and Davis.

"After riding southeast about six miles we approached a few shots, a rough house occurred with wagon and mesquite and near the river. Here two of the cattlemen showed we had as some bandits and six men of us went on them. Sergeant Wood, Sergeant Thompson and Private Vaughn were sent off to the right side. Inspector Davis and Private Andrus and myself went to the left.

"We lay under mesquite bushes for a while watching the house but couldn't see a man at it. Then we all moved up in close twenty-five yards. A dog came out the back door and pretty soon a man came back.

"Davis then moved across the house and the rest of us followed. He called out something in Spanish and we all went there and we all yelled 'Throw up your hands!'

"At this moment I found myself alone and some ripped into a gap. I jumped around the corner of the house. A big Mexican was running across the yard with a rifle. I emptied my magazine at him and he went down. I fired at him six times and he did Wood. Then he got up a second time and fired at me. The Mexican fell at my feet and I finished him with a revolver.

"I then changed my magazine and began to the house and the two men shots were a south Thompson on Thompson on the left.

"I found Thompson shot in the groin and unconscious and carried him to the house where we laid him down. Davis was looking for Davis, the cattle inspector, and I went around the house and found Davis. Davis said he was shot through the lungs and was bleeding from the mouth. I said, 'Davis, are you hurt?' He said, 'Yes, I'm shot through the lungs.' I said, 'Can you walk?' He said, 'Yes, I can walk.' I said, 'Come on, we'll get you to the house.' We went to the house and I said, 'Davis, are you all right?' He said, 'Yes, I'm all right.' So I called out 'Davis, Davis!' and they answered back, signaling with their arms, just as friendly as if we were inviting in the street.

"The Mexicans took up a position opposite us in the mesquite and firing and yelling for some time. Every one, I believe, fired his piece from the hip instead of the shoulder.

"When it seemed clear that no help was coming from the other we advanced and searched, finding three dead bodies of Mexicans.

"Then we crossed the river with the Carranza troops but our men stayed on this side. On his return Bean said the Carranza men, under Captain Marullo took up a broad trail and followed it.

"I later found the body of Tarvey. He had bled to death from a shot in the lung. Wood received two shots, one above the heart and one in the breast. He must have died instantly.

"We then sent a horse holder back for a wagon, which brought in the dead."

Carranza soldiers crossed into the United States to aid the Americans in the fighting, according to later reports received from Fort Hancock to General Bell.

After the Americans surrounded the house and wounded about fifteen bandits for signs of movement, Inspector Bean called out in Spanish. An old Mexican came to the door. Bean asked him whether there were any bandits there. The old man said there was one. At this an armed Mexican came out of the house and neared the mounted Inspector Wood. The Mexican was killed a moment later by a mounted corps man.

A brisk fire then opened from the small adobe outhouses at the side of the house and Tarvey fell with a bullet through the heart and lungs. The Americans dismounted and returned the fire.

Inspector Bean, seeing that the bandits owing to the rugged nature of the ground might escape, went to the rear and hallooed to the de facto government commander stationed on the Mexican side. He responded with his men, crossed to the American side and took up a position to cut off the retreat. The bandits ceased firing. The men of the surrounding party found and traced to the house where the Carranzistas who had joined in pursuit the fleeing outlaws picked it up on the other side and fired close and an unknown American accompanied the Mexican troops across the river.

The report to General Bell stated that three bodies of Mexicans had been found.
