FIGHTING THE FLU WITH "FIRE WATER" IS NOT DESTINED TO BECOME POPULAR PASTIME HERE

No Inducement Offered to Prospective Victims to Get After the Cause of Imaginary Pains With a "Chaser"—Flu Not a New Disease Is Verdict of Local Physicians.

Fighting the flu with "fire water" is not destined to become as popular a pastime in this community as it has in a certain section of Arizona where it is reported that a physician is experimenting with this beverage as a cure for the disease.

The physicians of this city who have expressed their opinion on the subject declare that whiskey is far from being a cure for the flu.

"Why one might as well give a patient carbonic acid," said a prominent Albuquerque physician today.

Another doctor, when interviewed on the subject, stated that he used whiskey in some cases as a stimulant as he would use strychnine, but that the idea of its having a curative value was positively ridiculous.

Who knows but what this decisive stand by local physicians will have a tendency to dampen the spirits of those micro-organisms known as flu germs. At any rate it is a pretty safe guess that any prospective victim who is planning to go after the cause of an imaginary pain with a "chaser" will be interned before he gets very far.

Not a New Disease.

It is the conviction of physicians of this city that the influenza is not a new disease, invented by the Huns or some other dark power, to harass us at this particular time, but is an illness caused by that same micro-organism which was discovered by Pfeiffer in 1892.

In a "Text Book of the Practice of Medicine," the author, James M. French, A.M., M.D., states that our earliest definite knowledge of the disease dates back to the early part of the sixteenth century, when it spread all over Europe and the British Isles. It appeared in America in 1557. Thirteen pandemics occurred during the eighteenth century, the last of them being in 1889-'90. It is believed by the medical authority, to have a permanent endemic existence in eastern Asia, whence it has spread in more or less pandemic form and with the rapidity of existing modes of travel, at intervals varying from four to one hundred years for many centuries.

It was the belief of Pfeiffer that the disease becomes virulent at certain times on account of some influence not yet discovered. The occasional evidence of the disease has been fully demonstrated. The mysterious "influence" remains elusive.

ill. Mayor Blood's attention was directed to the case, and he had the three sick children taken to the Las Vegas hospital for treatment. The bodies of the others were placed in charge of an undertaker for burial.

The Phoenix ranch near this city has been purchased by H. H. Boyer from Mrs. Jennie Sawyer of Centerville, Ia. It is one of the largest cattle ranches in this section, comprising 25,670 acres. Mr. Boyer also purchased all the hay, grain and stock on the place.

The local draft board has received word from Washington to entrain 159 men on the 19th of this month for Camp Cody. The board will be especially busy during the next two weeks, as its work has been delayed by the influenza epidemic.

L. W. Ifield has been appointed by the local board chairman of the preliminary military training for San Miguel county. He will devote every evening to instructing the recruits in military tactics and drills which will aid them in their work when they reach the training camps.

Dr. George N. Fleming has been appointed physician of San Miguel county, succeeding the late Dr. Mueller.

The report of Joseph F. Neilson, leader of the boys' and girls' clubs in San Miguel county, shows that the youngsters produced food to the value of nearly $4,000 during the past season. Besides the work done in the gardens and the raising of calves and pigs, the club took an active interest in war work. They turned over 1,141 pounds of fruit pits to the Red Cross.

Business Shy in Face of Uncertain Trade Conditions

New York, Nov. 8.—Bradstreet's today says:

Trade continues to taper off, rumors of peace, effects of influenza, the election holiday and light buying resulting from warm weather having repressed operations, and also at the same time there is a strongly defined tendency to mark time while trying to sketch out the probable breadth of readjustments to follow the peace now apparently in sight. In fact, the roseate outlook in Europe, with premature reports of Germany having accepted terms submitted by the allied powers, have already taken form in the unsettlement of grain and cotton prices, in cancellations of some orders, in the holding up of contemplated plant extensions, and in higher prices for securities. Economizing and the absence of young men from the list of buyers, also have made for some increase in supplies of merchandise, and in view of the inevitable defeat of Germany, irrespective of what that country may do in quibbling over terms, the general disposition is to shy away from placing orders when the potentials suggest lower prices, at least until readjustments have been worked out.

Just Facts. —By Ripley.

The report that the United War Workers' committee would refuse to accept any money raised through boxing or accept any money derived from golf or other games played on Sunday, created a furor among sportsmen. The statement was quickly denied, and the affair straightened out, and only resulted in bringing to public attention the vast amount of good accomplished by sports.

There will never be any question about the leading part played by sports in all branches of the service in training, entertaining, and maintaining the army and navy at home and abroad. Boxing has been the greatest direct help of all, and golf, played on Sundays and holidays, has been the means of producing the biggest revenue for all war charities.

After the war sports will reap the harvest of their efforts. All branches of athletics will flourish as never before, and there is little doubt but that boxing will be reestablished on a high plane throughout the country.

Abel E. Perea Is a Victim of Influenza

Abel E. Perea, son of Pedro Perea, who was a former delegate to congress from New Mexico, died this morning at his home in Bernalillo,—a victim of the Spanish influenza.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Credit Links the East and the West Together

When Abraham Lincoln in his far seeing wisdom urged the extension to the Union Pacific railroad he performed a great service to the country.

When the leading men of the nation drove the golden spike into the ties that bound the east and the west together, a new epoch in American history was reached.

When the furniture stores of this country granted credit extension to the American public in general an epoch marked by comfortable well furnished homes was ushered in.

There is every reason why you should investigate the dignified credit system offered you here, and remember that YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD AT OUR STORE.
