Yankees Tear Off Opener In World Series Today Kalsomining the Giants

May's Submarine Ball Proves Impossible Problem for All McGraw's Men But Frisch Who Took Four Hits; Thirty-five Thousand Fans See First Contest.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Yankees tore off the opener of the world's series this afternoon by kalsomining the New York Giants by a score of three to nothing.

May's submarine ball tied the Giants into knots, though Frank Frisch, the National leaguer's third baseman helped himself to four hits.

Babe Ruth accounted for one of the Yankees' runs with a blazing single but could not oblige the 35,000 spectators with a home run.

McNally's steal of home in the fifth inning was the base running feature of the game.

See the official box score and learn how the Yankees applied the whitewash.

His Submarine Ball Tied Giants Into Knots

Thousands Stand Shivering in Rain and Wind; Waiting Opening Of First World Series Battle

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—New York gloried today in an exclusive baseball family feud—a world's series between the Giants and Yankees fought out in its own back yard. Easily 34,000 folks came out here to the old Polo grounds to see the New York Giants, pennant winners of the National league and the New York Yankees, champions of the American league in the quarrel, for the baseball championship of the universe.

Noon time found the upper unreserved stand only a quarter filled and all comers were easily accommodated while there was still yawning gaps in the open stands behind the outfield. Down town speculators were reported selling reserved seats at prices that would have shocked a profiteering landlord.

Some were there who stood all night in a shivering line to get the best seats in the open stands. On the craggy knobs of Coogan's Bluff that looms behind the big concrete stands it looked as if New York's army of unemployed had taken early positions to view the game through the interstices of the stands.

A smart shower fell early today with a rapid clearing, followed by a cold wind that swept the field. The early comers shivered and shook and padded their coats with newspapers to keep out the searching breezes.

The playing field glowed brightly in the sun and the damp spots on the outfield soon baked out. A fast playing field was thus assured.

"I hear the Giant pitchers intend to walk me in all the pinches," said Babe Ruth as he popped his head out of the doorway to peek at the early birds that perched in the outfield seats. "That's one way to stop me hitting but they better do some figuring on Meusel. That kid can soak 'em too." The Giants' defense, they agreed in a club house talk today, centered around Babe Ruth's bat.

"If the Giants can stop the Babe from hitting," said Johnny Evers, former manager of the Chicago Cubs, who has been looking the Yankees over to aid the Giants in their plans, "the series shouldn be won by the National leaguers. Ruth won't hit in the pinches. The Giants will let him walk."

The opening day had all the frills that have gone in the series of yesteryears. The usual brass band near the Giants' bench piped its merriest melodies, some times blowing sour notes while dodging foul balls during the batting practice. Moving picture operators darted here and there filming every bit of interesting movement—"Babe" Ruth hitting imaginary home runs, the two Meusel brothers "Home Run" Kelly of the Giants swinging at a fast one, and Carl Mays throwing up his submarine ball.

The first real cheer of the day came in the Giants' batting practice when Frank Frisch popped one into the upper right field stands. Coach Cozey Dolan served up the slants during the batting practice in which Pitchers Toney, Douglas and Nehf, all blanketed in sweaters, took part. "Rosie" Ryan later relieved Dolan in the box.

While the Giants indulged in a batting workout, the Yankees remained in their club house discussing the day's campaign.

The Yankees got a big hand when they finally emerged from under the centerfield stand. Elmer Miller led the way followed closely by Babe Ruth carrying two bats. Miller Huggins, their manager, was the last to appear.

The Yankees were their traveling uniforms of grey with blue caps and stockings.

Bob Shawkey tossed them up for the Yankees in batting practice and a big cheer went up when Ruth sent a lofty fly over the right field stand. Later Harry Harper offered up some southpaw slants.

The Yankees apparently expected to face one of McGraw's right handers. Carl Mays and Waite Hoyt took part in getting the park's ranges.

The Giants took their field practice which was sharp and snappy.

The Yankees also had a stiff fielding workout.

While the Yankees were taking their practice the band marched across the field as an escort to Governor Miller of New York, and Mayor Hylan of New York City, who took seats in boxes near the Giants' bench.

The band played the Star Spangled Banner while a group of players from both clubs placed a wreath on the commemorative stone in deep center field erected to the memory of the late Eddie Grant, a former Giant player who fell in the Argonne.

WHAT MANAGERS SAID BEFORE THE GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—"I am confident but not cockey" declared Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, today.

"I am relying on the courage of my players and their general ability" said John J. McGraw, the Giants' leader.

Thus did the rival managers sum up their last predictions as they prepared to match their own wits and resourcefulness in the opening game of the world series at the Polo grounds today.

"Confidence in a team like mine, is justified," said Manager Huggins. "No matter what opposition it is to meet; but supreme assurance, the feeling that it is all over but the shouting would be foolish with a club like the Giants looming up right ahead.

"The Giants enter the series prepared to take advantage of any opportunity that presents itself, but minus any definite plan of action" according to Manager McGraw.

"It so often happens that a plan cannot be carried out," the veteran Giant chief said. "I have found it to my advantage to wait for the game to progress and to make my plans as circumstances seem to dictate."

JOBLESS EARN WAGES WITH BASEBALL SEATS

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Resourceful men from the ranks of the unemployed who found places far in front of the lines of world series ticket seekers last night sold these advantageous positions to more fortunate brethren this morning for $5.

A police order had been issued that such conduct would not be tolerated but officers in charge of the blue coated squads were swayed by pleas of the jobless, many of whom, it was said, declared that upon this one chance lay their opportunity to appease the hunger of wives and babes.

The umpires conferred with Captains Peckinpaugh and Bancroft on rules which somewhat delayed the starting of the game. There was some delay while the photographers were being chased off the field. Mayor Hylan tossed out the first ball and the game was on.

URGE CURFEW AS CORRECTIVE FOR UNRULY BOYS

Rotary Committee Meets With Judge Hickey in Juvenile Court

A Rotary club committee met with Judge M. E. Hickey at the court house yesterday afternoon to discuss the problem of indigent boys, and three boys were given into the custody of members of the committee. William Boody was placed in care of C. M. Botts; Carlos Espinosa in care of Dennis Chavez, and Jim Evas in car of Clinton Anderson.

These men will be virtual guardians of the boys, and will be held responsible for their correction, and a thorough investigation of their living and home conditions. It is hoped in this way that the boys can be guided without it being necessary to send them to the reform school.

The boys were arrested several weeks ago in connection with petty larceny charges.

It was suggested by Carson Peck that the curfew ordinance be enforced, and that boys seen on the streets late at night be investigated, in order to determine why they are not at home and spend their time on the streets. Walter M. Connell stated that he would bring this suggestion before the city commissioners.

The negro appeared suddenly and ordered members of the party to tie each other with rugs. He then prodded, kicked, and otherwise mistreated the men and women as he compelled them to give up their valuables. Then, seizing the girl in his arms, he started to leave the building. When he reached a rear porch, he attempted to attack her. The screams of the girl's mother, however, caused the bandit to flee to the woods.
