Giants Unable to Solve Masterly Pitching of Young Brooklyn Wizard

Ruth, Refused Chance to Hit, Steals Bases, While Bob Meusel Amazes McGraw by Stealing His Way to the Plate.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW LORK, Oct. 6.—The youngster Waite Hoyt came over from his home in Brooklyn today and besmeared the Giants with goose eggs while the Yankees walked off the field with the second game of the world series by a score of 3 to 0.

The base running of the Yankees was again a feature, Bob Meusel stealing home in the eighth before the astonished gaze of John McGraw, manager of the Giants, while Babe Ruth, who had been passed in three of his four appearances at the plate, showed he could do something besides hit home runs by stealing second and third bases in the fifth inning.

Nehf pitched a good game but his own error in the fourth inning and an error by Frisch in the eighth inning was the hole in the Giant defense through which the American league champions pushed over the winning runs.

The cold figures show the plight of the helpless Giants in the second game.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Giants primed their southpaw siege gun, little Artie Nehf, for today's world's series intra-city fray with the Yankees. The champions of the National league also held in reserve the big right hander, Fred Toney, to shell the American leaguers who toppled the Giants yesterday in the first contest for the high honors of baseball.

"Can't say whether it will be Hoyt or Shawkey," said Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees as they came on the field for batting practice. Huggins thought he might warm both of them up. Some of the Yankees believed the youthful Hoyt would be in there showing the Giants his sharp hooks and fast drops. The Yankees were the home boys today and claimed the Polo grounds as their own ball yard.

Babe Ruth is the happiest man on the Yankee ball club. He believes the Giant hurlers, following the example of Douglas, intend to pitch to him during the series.

"If they do, I'll pop one over the heads of the folks in that right field stand," observed "Babe."

"An Indian summer day" followed a chilly night. The sun blazed like a burnished disc in a clear sky and the fans in the bleachers were grateful for the light westerly breeze.

The crowd came late. The man who stayed up all night and had only himself for company would have found thousands of vacant seats ready to receive him at noon. The unreserved upper stand also filled slowly. There were prospects of a 30,000 attendance. The band, though, came early and piped some tunes for the edification of the ground keepers and bleacherites. The reserved seat sections did not fill until near game time.

The crowd howled its welcome as the Yanks marched across the field, while the band played "Over There," but what a roar went up when Ruth, in batting practice, hit a ball far up in center field bleachers and high above the batting screen. Had the drive been made in a game it would have made a record for distance on the Polo Grounds.

"Rip" Collins and Alex Ferguson, two right handers, floated the balls up to the Yanks in batting practice. Mays and McNally, Yank heroes of Wednesday's game, came in for cheers as they came on the field. Waite Hoyt and Bob Shawkey took part in the batting workout.

The Giants wearing their visiting uniforms of light gray, with caps to match, came in for cheers as they came upon the field.

Waite Hoyt, the Flatbush high school boy, warmed up for the Yankees, while Art Nehf got into condition for the Giants.

Before the game, Governor Miller of New York was escorted across the field, led by the band. He took his seat near the Yankees' bench.

Captain Peckinpaugh of the Yankees was presented with a chest of silver before the game.

The crowd was much larger than yesterday, and probably numbered something over 35,000 folks.

The band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the Yankees took the field.

Some little time was lost clearing the playing field of the photographers and bandsmen.

Then Governor Miller threw out the ball.

Mrs. Ruth to Drop Balls.

Mrs. Babe Ruth plans to fly a seaplane over the Polo Grounds this afternoon and drop a parachute containing baseballs, one of which will be a message to her husband.

One ball, addressed by Mayor Hylan, will bear the message: "May the best team win."

Another inscribed by Mrs. Ruth, will tell him she expects him to win.

WHAT THEY SAID BEFORE THE GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—"We are on our way and we won't be stopped"—Manager Huggins of the Yankees.

"We are going to win. I feel confident of that"—Manager McGraw, of the Giants.

Those predictions of the rival managers before the second game of the world's series were backed up by the players on the respective teams. There is joy in the Yankee camp, yet no gloom in the Giants' stronghold.

Speaking of the first game of the series, Manager Huggins said his club played great ball.

Manager McGraw said everything broke right for the Yanks, and admitted he was greatly disappointed at the result of the first game.

Reform Flames in Juarez; 'You Mustn't Shimmy or Peek-a-Boo,' Says Mayor

Modest Fandango Only Will Be Tolerated and Mantilla Will Be More Popular With Police Than the Low Waist Line; Police Chief Scandalized by Tour of Cabarets.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 6.—There'll be no more shimmying tolerated in Juarez.

What's more, no woman with a low waist line will be allowed to dance at all in public places.

This edict was issued today by Juarez Police Chief Pedro P. Pineda following a conference with Mayor Modesto Flores.

The new chief last night made the rounds of the cabarets in the city on the other side and admitted he was scandalized by the dances he witnessed.

"The women were almost nude," he told the mayor, "and the dances they did were—Oh, terrible—against all morals and decency. I want your permission to stop this."

"How scandalous!" exclaimed the mayor, "you have full permission to put a stop to all dancing that violates public morals."

So the chief says he is going to.

REMOVE STATE COMMISSIONER OF INSURANCE

Alleged Colorado Official Tried to 'Put Company Out of Business'

DENVER, Oct. 6.—Earl Wilson, state insurance commissioner, was removed from office today by the state civil service commission.

The commission, in its order of removal, cites several charges preferred against Mr. Wilson, but the specific finding which resulted in the order, according to information issued at the civil service commission, was based on charges filed by W. L. Vernon, an officer of the Mountain States Life Insurance company alleging that Mr. Wilson had discriminated against his company and "had used his office in an effort to put the Mountain States Life Insurance company out of business."

Governor Farrington Names Commission on Hawaiian History

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 6.—Numerous historic and prehistoric points of interest in the Hawaiian islands will be preserved, historical data will be compiled and a revised history of the territory from the time that each island was a separate little kingdom, will be planned by the Hawaiian historical commission, the personnel of which was announced by Governor Wallace R. Farrington.

Prince Jonah Kuhio Kanaianaole, Hawaiian delegate to congress for the past 20 years, will be the chairman of the commission, established by authority of the last territorial legislature, which appropriated $15,000 for preliminary expenses. Professor K. C. Leebrick of the University of Hawaii and former Governor Charles J. McCarthy are the two other members.

The commission will begin work immediately, it was announced, in order that it may submit a report to the next legislature, embodying its recommendations as to the preservation of famous spots in the island and the publication of the history.

It is believed that many of the commission's recommendations will center about the Kona region of the island of Hawaii, which is replete with places rich in historic event and tradition. Here is Honaunau, "The City of Refuge," a five acre tract surrounded by a wall of tremendous stones to which the natives fled for protection when attacked. The walls of the fort are 20 feet high and approximately 10 feet thick. Some of these stones weigh as much as five tons and are placed in the wall as high as five feet from the ground. It long has been a matter of conjecture in the territory as to where the heavy stones were obtained—as none so large as they are found on Hawaii—and how the natives were able to handle them.

The Kona region also contains Napoopoo, one of the few remaining native villages of the islands, for which it is anticipated that the commission will make some recommendations looking toward its preservation.

On Napoopoo bay, a little north of the village, is the spot where Captain Cook, the English circumnavigator of the globe who was the first Anglo-Saxon to touch the islands, was killed. A monument marks the spot where Captain Cook met death on his second visit to Hawaii. The first missionaries to the islands also landed on Napoopoo bay. Also on the island of Hawaii is the active volcano of Kilauea.

The committee also is expected to recommend that some action be taken concerning the Pali, a tall cliff approximately six miles out of the city of Honolulu on the island of Maui. The Pali is 1,800 feet high, rising sheerly from a plain that slopes to the sea. Here was fought the last battle in which Kamehameha landed, according to tradition, at Waikiki beach and drove the resisting Oahu army, numbering approximately 2,000, back across the island to the crest of the Pali and hurled the defending warriors down the steep cliff to their death.

It is anticipated that the committee will recommend that particular attention be paid in the proposed revised Hawaiian history to the ancient mythology and beliefs of the Hawaiians, such as the legend of Maka-Lei, the tree that had the power to bewitch fish, and countless others.

RADICAL TAX LAW REVISION AGREED UPON

Senate Republicans Yield to Demands of Western Group

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Radical revision of the tax bill by agreement among senate republicans was in prospect today as a result of conferences yesterday between the various factions.

With debate continuing on the measure, negotiations were proceeding among the republicans with a view to amendment of the bill as reported by the senate finance committee so as to provide for the following:

Repeal next January 1, of all transportation taxes, except possibly on Pullman accommodations.

Increase of income surtax rates on incomes over $66,000 from the committee maximum rate of 32 per cent to a maximum of around 50 per cent.

Repeal of all or a majority of the luxury and so-called "nuisance" taxes, including those on soft drinks.

Increase of the corporation tax rate to 15 per cent, as recommended by the committee.

Continuation of the corporation capital stock fee.

These principal points of the compromise under negotiation with finance committee members, were said to represent the "consensus of opinion" of the group of fourteen republican senators who conferred last night at the home of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, with Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican floor leader. Most of those at the conference were senators from western agricultural states and include many members of the so-called "progressive group."

The Smoot manufacturers' tax was discussed at the conference, but there was not unanimity as to its advisability, some of the conferees said, although a majority was represented as opposed to the Smoot plan.

19 LIVES LOST IN RAIL CRASH IN PARIS TUNNEL

Defective Signal Believed To Be Responsible for Disaster

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Nineteen persons are known to have lost their lives in the collision of two suburban trains in the tunnel leading to the St. Lazare railroad station here yesterday, three more bodies having been recovered today. Of the dead, only four have as yet been identified, the others being too badly burned in the fire which immediately followed the collision to permit of recognition.

Night-long work allowed train service to be resumed early today, except in the tunnel where the collision occurred, which is the central one of three tunnels side by side.

The accident is attributed to the failure of a signal, or a mistake in working the signal. When a train enters the tunnel a signal should drop automatically, preventing another train from entering. An investigation is being made.

Will Save $5,000,000 By Reorganization of Canal Zone Machinery

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Through reorganization of the administration machinery in the Panama canal zone, with radical changes in existing policies affecting employment of labor, physical operation of the canal and railroad, pay of employes and other important subjects is recommended in the preliminary report submitted to Secretary Weeks by the commission which recently investigated conditions in the canal zone at his request. The commission estimates that an annual saving of $5,000,000 would result from adoption of its suggestions.
