Numerous Visitors Occasion Diversity Of Social Affairs; Week Is Featured With Informal Bridge Parties And Luncheons

By ESTHER JORDAN

Society has taken a new lease on life the past week and many activities are the result. Numerous attractive visitors have given occasion for a diversity of pleasure, ranging from informal bridge parties or amusements of that one table to parties with guest lists of over fifty. So many lovely affairs are being given in the mornings now, and El Mirasonte is proving a most popular place to entertain.

With the national holiday, Independence day, this week many will leave for a three days' vacation in the mountains, either in the Sandias or further, say at Jemez or on the Pecos. Picnics are the feature for those who can only be away from the cares of business one day, and many good things are being planned for the lunch basket.

MRS. RANKIN HOSTESS AT BRIDGE LUNCHEONS

Mrs. Don Rankin entertained most charmingly at her home, 509 North Second street last week, when she was hostess on Friday and Saturday at white luncheons in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Lemon of Kansas City, Missouri and Mrs. Howard Parker of Tulsa Oklahoma, who are spending the summer with their parents. The nearness of the national holiday was the happy occasion for introducing patriotic decorations throughout the rooms and in the delicious three course luncheons.

Those who assisted in serving were Misses Hazel Hawkins, Evelyn Trotter, Jessie Venable, Louise Hall, Georgia Devenport, Mary Skyrmther, Zella Rankin and Mrs. Harold Davis.

The guests invited by Mrs. Rankin were Misses Alback, J. L. Bell, Harry Benjamin, H. L. Bickford, R. H. Bridges, F. C. Chadwick, G. H. Clark, C. H. Conner, Homer Keenan, Willard Hopewell, B. F. TO SPEND SEVERAL MONTHS IN EAST

Mrs. Henry Roll Brown left on Tuesday for an extended stay in the east. She plans to visit Lynn Albuquerque for several months and will visit points in New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and will also visit the Dennison schools in the S. Lawrence.

FIRST ANNUAL PICNIC OF ELKS LODGE TO BE IN MAY

The first annual picnic given by the Elks for the membership and families is scheduled for June. Though the exact date and place are not finally settled. Many elaborate plans are going forward for this entertainment, and a most enjoyable time is anticipated. It is hoped the new uniforms for the Elks band will arrive in time for this outing. They have been delayed through the government of several of the members who donated toward the fund.

A motion has been made that the Elks lodge appoint a committee to raise a fund of $1,000 to assist in the funding of the Salvation army home now under contemplation.

A special memorial service was held on Wednesday evening in honor of Dr. A. O. Shortle and D. J. Cook.

One of the most delightful processes of the multitude of affairs featured by the Elks was the flag day service held on that day. The address of the occasion was delivered by Felix Grunsky and his assistants, and also Mrs. Leslie Briggs, Miss Grace Sierk, and Maurice Klein. At this time Maurice Klein presented the lodge with a beautiful silk flag.

A radio outfit has been purchased by the lodge and will be installed shortly, when it is hoped to entertain many with concerts and sermons from nearby cities.

All past married fakers will be presented with tokens of appreciation in the next thirty days. These gifts are watch fobs.

Judge John Stansberry, member number 38, who left here 17 years ago, visited the local lodge last week. His home is now at Douglas, Ariz., where he practices law. At the time of his residence here Judge Stansberry was connected with the U. S. Indian service.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER PARTY

Mrs. Katherine Farrell was hostess at a pretty appointed bridge luncheon at her home, 1402 West Lomas avenue on Friday morning, when she entertained in honor of several mothers who are visiting their daughters and daughters who are visiting their mothers. A game of bridge in the endless in the evening was followed by a delicious three course luncheon. The invited guests were Mrs. Trotter, and daughter, Mrs. Hy. Brunson and A. Walker, mother of Kansas City, Texas, and Mrs. Vanderslice, Duke of Alabama, who are visiting Mrs. Tom Keith, Mrs. F. B. Dodell and Mrs. Elizabeth Hendricks of New York, Mrs. G. H. Parker and Mrs. Robert C. Powell Jr. of Roswell, N. M., Mrs. George Valliant and Miss Vera Kinsch.

EL ANGELUS TO BE PRESENTED TONIGHT

The Phoenix Boy, El Angelus, will be presented this evening at the Opera house in an Operatic club production for which Robert Rosenwald has been in progress for several weeks. Between the acts Miss Betty Beagle will sing in the Blue Danube.

The play which will of course be in the Spanish tongue is said about the following facts:

Don Aquilino, a wealthy manufacturer expects a visit from his old friend Colonel Medina, whom he has not seen for 23 years. Upon arrival the Colonel is presented to Maria, ward of Don Aquilino and Pepita, his sister. Pepita from decoy to captivate the Colonel for her sister, informed with Maria. When the two meet are left alone the colonel tells her frankly the real object of his visit is really to make his confession of a wrong he committed 23 years ago and to make the wherewithal of the girl named Dolores. Aquilino tells him what little he knows that the girl is dead. Andres, who is engaged agent of Don Aquilino's affairs, is in love with Maria. Don Aquilino tells him he favors the combination but Andres without explaining tells him that he will never marry Maria. An argument follows and Andres decides to leave the place but the actions of the colonel make him suspicious and he decides to stay.

In the second act Maria tries to make Andres declare his love, but when he does so she decides to flirt with the colonel. Andres becomes frantic and plans to kill the colonel, but at the moment he is prepared to commit the deed the Angelus is rung and he kneels in prayer. Later he defies the colonel to a duel, intending to let the colonel kill him. With this in mind he declares his love to Maria.

In the third act the colonel is in doubt of his love for Maria or parents to otherwise and when Don Aquilino confesses Maria is really his own daughter the colonel decides to marry her. Maria begs Andres to let Aquilino to repeat his declaration in his presence. Andres thinks the time ripe to reveal her mother's to wife he does not know who his father was, but that he feels a noble son Dolores. The colonel is convinced of the boy's suffering and the boy forgives he and they.

The play ends, of course, with the marriage of Maria and Andres.

Those who will take part in the play are:

Maria	Helen Sotillo
Pepita	Silvia Vigil
A maid	Margaret Castillo
Andres	José Hurgel
Aquilino	Juan Aguilar
Colonel Medina	G. A. Contreras
A servant	Alfredo Baca

INITIAL MEETING OF THE JUVENILE MUSIC CLUB

The first meeting of the juvenile club organized by a committee in the Fortnightly music club was held at the Woman's club building Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Judging from the attendance and the interest manifested it looks fair to become one of the leading organizations of the town. The object of the club was explained by Mrs. L. B. Thompson, chairman, as among other features, the appreciation of good music by study and program, club work, confidence and poise. Mrs. Bradford, president of the Fortnightly club, also talked on the future of the club. Mrs. Frank Schock, Mrs. Louise Nichols, Miss Gertrude Thompson, Miss Valck, Mrs. Gobbel and others interested in music were present.

The organization was completed by the election of the following officers: Elsie Russell, president; Marian Eller, first vice president; Elise Davis, second vice president; Rose Oliver, secretary; Ina Evelyn Kinsbrough, treasurer. The next meeting will be held Thursday, July 27, at 4 o'clock at the Woman's club building. It was decided that all those joining the club between now and the September meeting in December will be considered charter members.

After the conclusion of the business session refreshments were served and the following program given:

Piano solo—Marion Thompson.
Violin quartette—Georgia Russell, Nellie Mabel Bodkin Bonne, Emma Lee Mangino.

The accompanists of the afternoon were Elsie Russell, Ina Rolling and Elise Davis.

CONVENTION OF BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN

The program for the fourth annual convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women Clubs, Inc., has been completed and indicates a week crammed full of mental stimulants for the delegates.

Reservations for hotel rooms would point to a large attendance at this convention which is to be held at Chicago, July 16 to 15. The convention will open on Monday, July 16, with a meeting of the executive board and a meeting of the state presidents, to be followed by a joint luncheon for both groups and a reception for delegates and dinner in the evening.

Tuesday will see the formal opening of the convention with reports of the committees on credentials, the address of welcome and response and the address of the president, Dena Lake Forrest. The delegates will be served an organ at the luncheon which will be Miss Alice Greenwalt will be elected for the nominating committee. Organized meetings for state chairmen, local secretaries and others will be held in the afternoon. Preparations for very interesting discussions are being made for the following committees: Publicity, Independent Women, Personnel Relations, Finance, Legislation, Program, Education and Membership. The speaker of the evening will be Dorothy Dickens, who will speak on "The Mastery of War."

Wednesday morning there will be an opportunity for all members to attend the drill on parliamentary law conducted by Mrs. Emma Fox, parliamentarian for the convention. Reports and business discussions will occupy the morning session. After luncheon a trip to Sugar Mountain will afford a pleasant break in the work of the convention, the afternoon and evening being spent there in getting acquainted with the delegates and sightseeing.

Thursday morning the drill on parliamentary law will be conducted by Emma Fox, followed by reports of the Independent Women committee and discussions on the federation program and legislative outlook. Club mechanics will be taken up after luncheon and the day will close with the annual banquet, which will be a most distinctive affair. Among the speakers at the evening will be Mrs. William Brown Meloney, editor of Business Women who will speak on "The Change in Attitude of the Business and Professional Man Toward Business and Professional Women." Miss Verna Harris, who is to speak on the subject of her office work, the last possible number and Mrs. Frank Melvene, who will speak on "Royal Business Women."

Friday will continue the reports, presenting the report of the committee on education, the committee on resolutions and all unfinished business. Election of officers will take place in the afternoon, together with reports from special committees on financing and membership. Dinner and the final session of all conventions thereafter the closing event will be a picnic in the evening, at which time the chairmen general committees will bring a pleasant surprise as a fitting ending to week of intensely interesting work.

All prospective delegates and visitors are requested to make their hotel reservations early, for remember that the annual convention of Chattanooga is to be celebrated at 30 degrees in the school, 32 degrees in summer, 60 degrees in the spring and 62 degrees in the autumn. The convention in July is no longer than one week, and if the disposition is agreeable. Please come prepared to have a good time and to help build conventions and returns for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Crown Prince of Turkey Interviewed by American Girl

BESSIE BEATTY

Bessie Beatty, Noted Magazine Writer and Lecturer Sees Intimate Life in Turkish Palace

The mysterious bars of Oriental harem windows these days enclose strange scenes.

Those in the palace of the crown prince at Constantinople, for instance, according to Miss Bessie Beatty, just returned from Turkey, look in upon lovely ladies in Parisian frocks, a handsome prince in faultless evening clothes and, most surprising of all, the instruments that make up an American jazz orchestra.

Writer Notes Modern Conditions

"Constantinople and the royal family are indeed ultra-modern," says Miss Beatty, who spent an evening at the palace during her stay in Constantinople, where she was gathering material for magazine articles and lectures.

"And the most amazing defiance to tradition of all are these gay home evenings, or sometimes even formal party occasions, when there float through the bars that to the old days were considered so sinister, strains of music like 'Lovely Lucerne,' favorite of exalted royalty in Switzerland following the great postwar throned coronation, now played by the royal orchestra.

"The royal orchestra is, amazingly enough, a family affair in which all the ladies in waiting and members of the royal household play some instrument. The prince himself is an accomplished violinist and his wife a cellist of no mean ability.

"Harmony in the Harem"

"The prince has immortalized his favorite home invitation to a waltzing, 'Harmony in the Harem', which shows the orchestra in the midst of a merry rehearsal.

"Perhaps there could be no more striking indication than this peaceful pastice of the change in the race we have always considered that of the 'Terrible Turk'."

Spanish American Women Learn of Home Making in Vocational School Classes

The recent closing of the evening class in home making, conducted by Mrs. M. M. Leibold at Santa Cruz, marks the end of a remarkably successful period of instruction. This work, which was commenced early in September, was continued with growing success and interest until the last of May.

In all, Mrs. Leibold has in her credit 74 lessons. Instruction was given two evenings a week, each session being at least two hours long, sometimes longer.

The instruction in home making was divided into units and courses, each unit being complete in itself. By this plan people might enroll in only those units in which they were particularly interested. It is a noteworthy fact, however, that the students did not avail themselves of this proffered option—they took all the work that could be given, and asked for more.

The following units were given: canning and food preservation; elementary sewing and textiles; elementary food study and cookery; food values, food requirements and home care; advanced cookery; advanced sewing; care and repair of clothing.

In the food preservation unit a total of 222 quarts was canned by the class. This included tomatoes, beans, apples, chili, corn and pomegranates. Much of the work was entirely new, drying being the only method of preserving hitherto used.

"They were perfectly delighted with it," said Mrs. Leibold. "From all parts of the valley came pleas to bring the class and show them how. When we arrived there would be all the women in the neighborhood gathered to watch the process.

"There would also be all the kettles, cans and utensils in the neighborhood borrowed for the occasion. Many of the homes are really lacking in equipment. One man bought a stove and utensils so that we could go and put up his tomatoes.

"Along with the canning it was essential, of course, to stress the need of absolute cleanliness. Most of the women wear the traditional black shawl. They watched, wide eyed, the operations of the white-aproned class."

The food study and cookery was necessarily adapted to the conditions and materials at hand. Even thus restricted, much was accomplished. It is a great deal that they should know the value of different foods in the diet, to know what to feed the babies and children, to know something of invalid cookery. And they were delighted with the fluffy biscuits and muffins and bread as a change from the customary tortillas.

The work in sewing must necessarily be adapted to the simple needs of the class. Two of the girls of the class who were graduating from the eighth grade made their own organdie dresses for the occasion.

This is the first work of its kind that has been given in the community. It is no longer an experiment; its success is established. The demand for its is steadily increasing. Mrs. Leibold, who is also principal of the Santa Cruz public school, has had the largest enrollment on record, and what is even more remarkable, this enrollment did not drop off before the close of school but grew larger. She attributes this to the work in home making which has awakened such splendid co-operation in the home.

The people of the community have petitioned that Mrs. Leibold return next year and continue the work. One of the large taxpayers of the valley has said, "I have never understood the value of vocational work before, but this has certainly shown its worth. It is a great thing to teach these people how to live."

Mrs. Leibold's splendid enthusiasm in her work is shown by the financial support which she personally has given it. The local school authorities have set aside no sum for supplies for maintenance of the class. Some materials have been donated by people and by public-spirited citizens. Aside from these, they have been supplied through the generosity of the enthusiastic instructor.

Innocence Keynote of Hat Modes

Innocent hats. Above is an expression of unsophistication developed in white organdie with organdie leaves. Left is of folded georgette, with a quill of self material. By MARIAN HALE

Oh, where are the vamps of yesteryear?

They are with us—never fear—but they are now sweet little ingenues with baby stares!

Their days of active vamping are over. They learned. It isn't necessary to go to all that trouble to ensnare a man. Look at the flappers!

Women have changed their personalities and their millinery to fit the new rule all femininity is playing—sweet innocence.

Do these hats look like the very latest importations from Paris?

Ad can you, by any stretch of the imagination, picture any woman looking anything but sweet and guileless under them, no matter how purplish her past?

The answer to question one is—they are.

The answer to question two is—purplish pasts are passé. They are as obsolete as bustles. No one has one any more, if she can escape it!

That's why all the actresses of the stage and screen, who really set the styles for us, are wearing these simple, innocent-looking hats and why the rest of us will be wearing them before the season is over.

Yes, yes, my child, be sweet, or look sweet, and let those who will be clever! They haven't a chance against you.

But if any one—I mean any man—thinks the natural instinct of woman keep pace with her outer transformation let him be wise or be stung!

At no time can woman do more harm to hearts than in her most harmless guises.

With the summer coming on, and with millinery and costumers in league with her, watch out for the summer girl of 1922!

You may pay more or you may pay less. But whatever you pay you will never get as much silk stocking value as you will receive from a pair of Rosenwald's Special Silk Hose at $2.50. The popularity of the Rosenwald Silk Stocking is founded upon the perfect and continuous satisfaction its use has given to hundreds of women in Albuquerque and throughout the southwest.
