A DANIEL COMES TO JUDGMENT

A Chapter in That University Scandal Likely to Jar the Slats of Bro'r Forbes.

The relations existing between the De Land Record and the De Land News are somewhat strained, to say the least, and recent developments in this connection present some interesting side-lights on the Stetson University Scandal.

Two weeks ago the De Land News, in a burst of RIGHTEOUS indignation and UNSELFISH zeal for the cause of JUSTICE and TRUTH, published, unsigned and unauthenticated a long article entitled: "The Trustees Side," and purporting to be the facts in the Forbes-Mathes investigation by the Board of Truestees of the Stetson University. Incident to this was a healthy roast for Mr. and Mrs. Stetson and a warm commendation of Dr. Forbes.

In the editorial columns of the same issue the editor of the News climed to the sublimest pinicle of journalistic virtue, and thus delivered his surcharged sense of the iniquity of selling the influence of a newspaper for filthy lucre:

"How any man, and especially the editor of a newspaper, can sell his opinion—can sell the words of his mouth and the opinion of his pen—how such a man can face the men with whom he has lived a quarter of a century—is beyond the comprehension of The News. An editor is generally supposed to know everything, but this is one thing that the editor of this paper cannot explain, nor will he attempt to do so."

Not content with the above covert thrust at the editorof The Record, who champions the side of Mr. Stetson, the indignant editor of The News became a trifle personal, so to speak, and proceeded to roast the editor of the Record in the following unequivocal language:

"While not of any special significance, it would be interesting to know just exactly how much 'Ben the flopper,' or Ben Bolt, as he is now called, received for his Judas Iscariot act to the man who has been his friend for twelve or fourteen years. Ben's honest opinion—given before he sold out for dollars and cents—will be found in his expressions of three or four weeks ago. It must be gratifying to the purchasers to reflect that the only method by which they could secure the dissemination of their 'literature' through a De Land publication was by the purchase of one who is always supposed to be standing with his open palm behind him."

The editor of The Record has answered these uncalled-for thrusts in the best and most effective way. He published a letter from Dr. H. D. Bracey, a prominent and highly esteemed citizen of De Land, which explains itself, and from which the editor of The News may absorb a small glimmer of light as to "how any man, and especially the editor of a newspaper, can sell his opinion," etc.

Following is Dr. Bracey's letter:

"B. E. PREVATT, Esq. Sir: In reply to your inquiry concerning a proposition made to me by Mr. Codrington relative to the sale of his paper to me, I would state that I was making some investigations to obtain space to present to the public a fair exposition of the side of the minority of the Board of Trustees in the Forbes-Mathes controversy. I went to see what you would do. You declined peremtorially to open the columns of your paper for said controversy or to sell space in your paper. I did not mention the matter to either of the editors of the other city papers.

"A few days afterwards Mr. Codrington directed my attention to a notice in the Metropolis of an offer to sell a paper. As the name of the paper and the place of publication were not given, I did not understand his motive for calling my attention to the advertisement.

"He then informed me that The News was the paper alluded to, and that he had heard I wished to purchase a paper. After further talk he asked me to call the attention of Judge Stewart to the advertisement and explain the matter to him, telling me that The News could be bought out right, or that he would sell space in it to be used by the friends of Mr. Stetson for any purpose they might desire. He had also drawn up a rough draft of a contract, making several alternative propositions.

"I showed the advertisement to Judge Stewart and informed him of the various propositions of Mr. Codrington, but he said he would decline to avail himself of any of the offers made by Mr. Codrington. He did not give any reasons for declining them. Yours truly,

"H. D. BRACEY.

GOOD ROADS LEAGUE

Is Organized at St. Augustine. D. D. Rogers and Others Make Practical Talks.

An initiatory meeting of the advocates and friends of a better system of country roads in Florida, and especially a great East Coast highway from Jacksonville to Miami, was held in the Operahouse at St. Augustine last Tuesday. Over fifty delegates were present.

The meeting was called to order by State Senator MacWilliams, president of the St. Augustine Board of Trade, and the call for the meeting was then read by E. J. Seymour. A temporary organization was first effected with J. R. Walker, of Brevard county, as chairman, and E. J. Seymour as secretary, after which the delegates devoted considerable time to a general discussion of the good roads problem and an exchange of views as to the best methods of constructing them.

D. D. Rogers, the eminent civil engineer of this city, was the first speaker. Some years ago Mr. Rogers surveyed and mapped out the plans of a hard surface road from New Smyrna to St. Augustine, a distance of 52 miles, but so far only fiffteen miles of the road has been constructed. He described to the delegates the plans of that project as being amply suitable as a basis from which to calculate the cost of the proposed East Coast highwny. The plan contemplated a roadbed 12 feet wide, properly graded and composed of an admixture of marsh muck and oyster shells. Such a road, he thought, could be constructed for about $2,000 per mile. Mr. Rogers is a man of wide experience in such matters, and his opinion is of much value.

Albert Lewis, of St. Augustine, told of a road he is now building from St. Augustine to Moultrie Point after the methods described by Mr. Rogers, which he was sure would prove durable and satisfactory. He said that the East Coast possessed every desirable attraction except good roads, and urged that these be provided as speedily as possible.

E. J. Seymour said that he was sure, from personal observation, that there is an abundance of every kind of material necessary to build the proposed road to Miami easily accessible right along the route, such as rock, iron ore, coquina, oyster shells, marsh muck, etc.

C. H. Racy, of Brevard county, told of the great benefits derived by his county from a few good roads which have been constructed therein, and pledged hearty co-operation in the purposes of the good roads movement.

The financial end of the movement was discussed by John T. Dismukes, president of the First National Bank of St. Augustine, and Senator Mann, of Jacksonville.

Mr. Dismukes was in favor of issuing bonds to build good roads. Posterity, he said, recieving the greater benefits of such an outlay, would be able and no doubt willing to shoulder the burden of the debt. Florida should not allow her winter visitors to do this work.

Senator Mann favored the use of the State's entire Indian war claims fund, amounting to over $600,000. Also the fund of $500,000 accumulated from the sale of swamp and overflow lands. Also the money abtained from the hire of the State convicts until the present lease expires. Then, he thinks, the convicts should be used in building and maintaining good roads.

Mr. Mann thinks it a bad policy to invite or even encourage immigration to Florida until good roads are an accomplished condition. The friends of the movement confidently expect of Senator Mann good and fruitful work for their cause in the next Legislature.

After the discussion, the organization of the East Coast Good Roads League was perfected by the adoption of a Constitution and By-laws and the election of the following officers:

President—Albert Lewis.
Vice President—J. T. Dismukes.
Secretary—E. J. Seymour.
Treasurer—G. B. Lamar, Jr.
County Vice Presidents—D. D. Rogers, Volusia; W. A. Conchman, Duval; J. E. Ingraham, St. Johns; C. H. Racey, Brevard; E. N. Dimick, Dade.

The Oaks has been a scene of much gaiety this week. Monday was the occasion of a dancing party, Tuesday a progressive euchre party, and Wednesday evening Mrs. J. K. Martin, of Atlanta, and Miss Jessie Stewart, of Cincinnati, gave a lawn fete in honor of Miss Minnie Smith, of Norwich, Conn., and Miss Virginia Thorp, of Covington, Ky. The lawn was decorated with beautiful Japanese lantern, under which the party sat down to tables laden with toothsome refreshments. The Oaks has been filled to overflowing this season, there not being a vacant room in the house for the past six weeks.

FOR SALE—An Automobile Runabout in perfect order. Apply to—DR. ROBINSON, Colonnades Hotel, Seabreeze.
