A LETTER FROM THE NORTHLAND

What C. A. Ballough is Doing in the Land of Short Summers and Piercing Cold Winters.

The following letter from Rev. Hiram Vrooman, who spent the winter in Daytona two years ago, may be of interest to many readers of the GAZETTE-NEWS. Mr. Vrooman is secretary and treasurer of the Gold and Platinum Dredging Company, of which S. H. Gove, C. A. Ballough and others from this vicinity are stockholders. The following letter is written from White Horse Y. T.: Canada; under date of May 26th.

"There is not much news of importance to relate because the partielar news that everyone would like to hear would be that of the digging of gold, and we have not as yet reached our gold bearing property. But up to the present time things have moved along favorably. We are now in camp at White Horse. We have seven tents up and fourteen in our group here. Several days ago I sent two men ahead who by walking fifty miles should have reached our property today. I wanted some of our own people to be there at the very earliest day possible. They will find plenty of work to do and make connections with the three men who have been up there during the winter.

"We heard that the ice left Lake LeBarge today, in which event the river steamer 'Quick' will probably arrive tomorrow to tow our scow and carry us and our machinery and provisions to the place of our summer's operations.

"We have now a working crew of nineteen, including a whole hearted, strong and motherly lady who does the cooking. She is the older sister of C. A. Ballough, of Daytona, our 'Captain,' and a splendid cook. In addition to our working crew of nineteen we have Mr. Ballough's wife and boy with us. So we feel as though we were going to be a little civilized.

"Although our working force is about four times larger than it was last year it is composed of men equally as capable and loyal. Every one is in in dead earnest and has the interests of the company at heart; and besides we have an exceptionally rare combination of talent. There is not the slightest possibility of labor trouble among us. I do not believe there is as well organized a crew of workmen for its number in this northwest country—nor one representing as much expert talent or good personal character.

"Since reaching White Horse we have built a fine scow and a large olling boat and all of our new machinery is here and already loaded on the scow.

"The days are continuing to grow longer. It is now nine o'clock as I write and it will not be dark for an hour and a half yet. It is 1 a. m. at Boston at this minute.

"A few mornings ago we were all awakened at 4 a m. by the fire alarm and rushed up town to help fight fire and to witness the principal part of the town in flame and smoke. The railroad station was destroyed together with nearly every store and hotel. The big railroad warehouse was separated from the station only by the tracks and saved only by a hair's-breadth. Several thousand dollars worth of freight was destroyed and one corner of the warehouse caught. Some of our machinery was yet in the warhouse. Of course our crew of men worked to save the warehouse. We carried one piece of our own machinery away on trucks while it was smoking. But our loss from the fire was very small. This emphasizes the importance, however, of the reserve fund that I made such efforts to secure during the months before my departure from Boston.

"We are now in splendid condition to do effective work when we reach our destination. We are having real hot summer weather in the day time—continuously hotter than was experienced at all last summer. At nights, however, we have frequent frosts.

"All details of my plans have worked out so perfectly up to the present time that I am growing more confident as time goes by. I believe that the estimation of prospective success that I have made will prove to be very conservative. At the present writing I assure the stockholders that there is no reason whatsoever for them to feel other than sanguine of their earning large profits on the amounts of their investments."

Very Truly,
HIRAM VROOMAN.
