Congressmen Are "Keeping Fit"

Congressmen Fred A. Britten of Illinois (left) and Sydney Anderson of Minnesota, taking boxing lessons in the gymnasium which the members of the lower house have in the house office building. A hundred representatives have joined the classes.

Homes Given Free to Tenants

State officials in Chicago are encouraging the children to make houses for the insect-destroying birds instead of killing them. A lot of these houses and their makers are here shown, together with a view of one of the houses being placed in a tree.

Blouses Ready for Summer

THERE are so many delightfully pretty and chic blouses, made ready for summer time, that it is not easy to choose among them. About the most noticeable thing in many of the new ones is their front fastening, an occasional back fastening, negligible with very obvious buttons and buttonholes. After following various ways, leading to elaborate buttons or snaps and having at it seem how only eyes get into, they have come back to a number of full round and simply tailored up to the days of old. But these are still plenty of slip-over and other styles with concealed fastenings.

Beginning at the beginning of blouse styles we have the plain tailored one-piece in linen, mesh silk or satin, crepe de chine, and other suitable fabrics followed by many blouses of these cotton silks and better of the print of the safety campaign. Made up with bodices lined and then set on sweaters, they and their cousins the graphic blouse—the fewer of the first—are apparently the greatest favorites.

A blouse and a short skirt, both of deep-colored gingham among the pretty for summer, are strongly in the times a young of narrow belts to lend to fitted the edges. The skirt is provided with bib bottom, set in-pleated, and joined by a small strip seam. Two collars in silk are used for the embroidery that enlightens it and it is made with the narrow shoulder yoke which is generally becoming.

Shades have grown shorter and shorter until the model pictured may be classed among those that are positively long. Except for being short this is a true smock, hanging straight from the shoulders and with long sleeves that turn. Its belt of grosgrain is carried to the back of the smock at intervals to insure a neat adjustment at the back and sides. Embroidery done in French knots, outline and other stitches employs several colors. The selection of color for blouse or smock and in the embroidery silk, is a matter of individual taste and gives the regular mediumness a chance to save something exclusively her own.

Julia Bottomly

Hat That Needs Plume.

In some long, everyone may wear the modified of colored velvet and felts but that turns upward at side, back or front, with diverse colored on the opposite under brim.

Long Black Silk Gloves.

Long black silk gloves are shown to be worn with tan-tinted black gown.

Fashion Advises Blouses

ONE can go a long way on the cult of good dressing with the help of two or three separate skirts and an assortment of blouses and sweaters, tailored and otherwise, both which to achieve variety. In style they range all the way from the elegantly tailored morning affairs, through sweater and elegant afternoon types to brilliant and even splendid evening models. A lady, who stitch, makes itself very useful for wear with dressier blouses and every wardrobe, aside a white skirt of heavy cotton and a tailored skirt of wool. For separate skirts make another story.

The shopper for blouses is now so grow enthusiastic over the display of tailored models for summer time and the very handsome lingerie blouses for formal wear. The first employs batiste, dotted, with silks, voile, dotted Swiss and handkerchief linen, all old favorites in fabrics. As there is much latitude in cuts, so there is in blouses to be worn with them. Some are severely tailored and others have an air of security about them. The strictly tailored blouse has long sleeves and lasts in tucks, drawn work and very narrow edgings for decorating. Fancier blouses for wear with suits are made of net and lace, or batiste and lace, with embroidery conceivably and embroidery in their composition. The other place finds favor with them.

A handsome smock for afternoon appears in the illustration, made of dark blue crepe georgette, embroidered in colors. The very original management of the embroidery in this smock gives it quite outlaunces and the person of real with amount designing. An example of one of the most successful of late blouses is shown made of two colored tricolette in a striped weave. Noteworthy features in this model are found in the square neck, the three quarter length sleeves and its length. It is planned to blouse over the waistline, contributing to the straight-line effect which most women aspire to. Blouses and smocks are made to keep fresh and clean than dresses and the summer months can carry them much more conveniently.

Julia Bottomly

Beauty's Color Scheme.

Now it is the separate coat, instead of the separate skirt. You can wear a black or tinted coat with a complete suit of contrasting shade, or with a skirt and shirtwaist, or for those two seem quite economical as one's coats always outlast one's skirts and one has tastes of that black coat white coat hanging up in the closet that will be just the thing. But don't fool yourself that fashion will allow anyone anything that will prove economical, for the new short coats have a days all their own, and it is pretty hard to get the required lines in any old coat. It seems that it is going to be a colorful year with such combinations as a black silk coat, a blue skirt and a forest orange hat described as a fashionable one.

Concerning Graduation Frocks

NET and organdie remain to be the favorite fabrics for graduation dresses, and manufacturers of misses' clothing continue to turn out very pretty frocks made of them. At the same time they are making remarkably attractive dresses of checked gingham and organdie combined, so delightfully crisp and so lovely in color, that they constitute a good entry of the designs that call for silk. Some smartest class of young girl graduates might make a good proportion that other dress model frocks, using the plain white, brocaded voile and organdie combined with white, to small checks. Making this white organdie in colors, Swiss ruffs, pockets, sleeve properties, frills and in other combinations, they would seem a refreshing and charming change through adding a sort of living bouquet of combined flowers.

The frocks of white organdie and net are very pretty. Both materials are fancy and will give quite a variety. A dress of net appears at the left of the picture having bands of lace adding bird as an insertion. The full skirt has three bands of lace about it, with a frill at the bottom of each one, and the lace is put in with the embroidery stitch appearance. The blouse waist has a square neck outlined with the lace, sleeve sleeves finished with lace and a frill, and a small sash.

In the organdie the skirt is banded with tucks in groups of three. The bodice is finished with a narrow frill on each side of the lace, and the skirt joins the waist with an exceedingly full pleat the underface. Where the bodice opens at the front a little vestee of flowered organdie is introduced dotted with tiny ribbon bows. It is a good idea to shrink net before making it up so as to be able to launder when needed.

Julia Bottomly

ONYX SUNDAY

Alice Lake

IN

"Should Women Tell"

A METRO PICTURE

GRANDCHILD OF PEARY

When Marie Peary matured, he, grown up, he will be very proud to remember his grandfather, Rear Admiral Robert Edwin Peary, the discoverer of the North pole. Edward is the small son of Admiral Peary's daughter, Marie Ahnighito Peary, the "snow baby" born farther north than any other white baby in the world, and Edward Stafford, son of Justice Stafford of the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

EVERYBODY down country seems too high now. Before dry prohibition we go to work steady job could sometime drink beer bit for fresh good. But now when we this dry up only thing can do we eat too much.

I think we few year all dis venture we United State we gets pale we do hole and dunno wot's matter. Everything go like devil too fast and we seem time every day people note something.

One day we do restaurant other day asks for stack of wheat. But maybe he thinks he was thrashing machine, I dunno. I forgave anybody not get stack of wheat no leave we long.

And we do cafe we not place where eats for dogs for ten cents. Not we not risk for anyone eats hot dog, huh? Ess no wonder name dime de no feels good.

We gotta hard time really propriate we do restaurant. Ess means place we made meant leetle French, leetle Italie, leetle United State language joss for make you dink gotta square meal.

I was see we remember where was

Bar—Soft Drinks
Regular Meals
Commercial Cafe
W. M. White, Prop.

Clean - Up Week
THIS WEEK
Vacation next week. Painting time every week. In order to enjoy your vacation you will make the paints with you and you can do our part of on all House Paint and Varnish.
COLUMBUS PAINT COMPANY

as months would we could leave anyone say. And lot of place serve dinner week do meal, dis. Pienic people did leetle bit, dance leetle bit and dis come back and eats some more. Dat some people say would we very hard. But other side you say we hard, how same. I that you, four yard of whole spaghetti every day would make feel better.

Wot you think?

CROSBY'S KIDS

LEARNS ALL ABOUT MEAT

The high cost of living division of the department of justice is starting no pains to teach the housewives of Washington how to buy and use all cuts of meat, particularly the cheaper cuts. The demonstration shown here is being managed by the chief of one of Washington's greatest hotels, and the setting is in the city market.

One time in a modern newest Ladies' Bachelor, the well-known dollie-dresser, combined the colors and distinctness idea of growing the glow-worm and the skunk.

The result was an off spot.

The hybrid inherited its hind from the glow-worm and its aroma from the skunk.

When one retires to a darkened dishcloth, expecting, from every Paint Room, they sometimes get one of their harmless, inoffensive entrances to with the air company.

Any time he wishes to be with his kinsfolk he knows the place to find them, because he can smell it.

He is glad to display, very, very bold, but usually shall prefer to a warm dress coat or a cool overcoat.

They are little on to shake and never take. But we have no skin silk.

One time in a modern newest Ladies' Bachelor, the well-known dollie-dresser, combined the colors and distinctness idea of growing the glow-worm and the skunk.

The result was an off spot.

The hybrid inherited its hind from the glow-worm and its aroma from the skunk.

When one retires to a darkened dishcloth, expecting, from every Paint Room, they sometimes get one of their harmless, inoffensive entrances to with the air company.

Any time he wishes to be with his kinsfolk he knows the place to find them, because he can smell it.

He is glad to display, very, very bold, but usually shall prefer to a warm dress coat or a cool overcoat.

They are little on to shake and never take. But we have no skin silk.