Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Berceuse.

Sleep, my flower, my red, red rose, upon my bosom lying.
Soon the stars will blossom in the meadows of the west;
To their nests beneath the eaves the swallows home are flying—
Lay thy golden head, my sweet, upon thy mother's breast!

O'er the purple sea the sails like violets are blowing,
Now they turn to withered leaves, by twilight's fingers pressed;
Down the shining sand the ebbing tide is softly flowing—
Lay thy golden head, my sweet, upon thy mother's breast.

Through the window drifts the breath of lavender and clover,
Lily and syringa and the pinks thou lovest best;
Home the bees are swinging, glad the long, long day is over—
Lay thy golden head, my sweet, upon thy mother's breast!

From the hills, like azure veils, the evening mists are creeping,
Pale with expectation peers the moon above their crest;
Fearing lest she find some child who still may not be sleeping—
Lay thy golden head, my sweet, upon thy mother's breast!

From the hawthorn thickets now the nightingales are singing,
Softly chime the convent bells, the world at last may rest;
To the sky's warm breast the golden Evening Star is clinging—
Lay thy golden head, my sweet, upon thy mother's breast!

Now the ship o' dreams floats near to to bear thee o'er Sleep's River,
Prow and silver shrouds in chains of scarlet poppies dressed;
Sweet, my heart, above thine eyes the lids no longer quiver,
And thy head, like some closed flower, lies on thy mother's breast.

Houses of Grass.

The grass houses formerly built by the Wichita Indians of southern Oklahoma are exceedingly interesting. The grass is gathered early in the spring, when it is yet fresh. The sod cutting usually takes place immediately after a rain, the sod being removed to a thickness of about eight inches. Buffalo grass sod is the only kind that will answer the purpose of the builder. He commences to lay the foundation as does the stonemason, digging away the earth to a depth of about one foot. The grass portion of the chunks of sod is laid to the outside, and the house is built to a height of twelve to fifteen feet, in the form of a pointed dome. There is no hole in the top for smoke to pass out, the latter being carried away through a pipe outside of the hut. The door is usually in the south, and there are no windows. Through each tuft of sod is run a willow reed string, and these strings are bound clear around the structure. The grass remains green and will grow if there is plenty of rain. It is not at all uncommon to see the sides of these grass houses turn green as spring approaches, just as do the pastures near them. The houses are very warm in winter and cool in summer. They never leak.

Train and Ship Collide.

Collisions between trains are of common enough occurrence. But a collision between a train and a ship, such as is reported from Sunderland has probably never happened before. The mishap occurred early on a recent morning. A train composed of 20 cars and an engine used in connection with the dock extension works which are being carried out at the port, was proceeding along a track, the engine pushing the cars in front of it, to a swing bridge, over which the train should have travelled, but which had been opened to permit of the steamer Alpha leaving the docks for sea and the driver being unaware of the fact the cars and engine fell into the water and blocked the vessel's passage. Fortunately the engine driver and two other men who were on the engine jumped off just before the locomotive tumbled over on the top of the cars. The Alpha was struck by some of the cars, and had to be overhauled before proceeding to sea.

Needle in Her Stomach.

After an illness of two years, Miss Leonie Jodoin, twenty years old, died at her home in Jericho, R. I. A part of this time was spent as a novice in the Roman Catholic convent at Flushing, L. I., which she was forced to leave on account of ill health. The case has baffled New York and Rhode Island physicians and a post-mortem examination was required to clear up the mystery. At first hemorrhages were frequent, and Miss Jodoin had been treated for consumption. Several months ago a hard lump was detected in her stomach, and an operation disclosed a common sewing needle, one and a half inches long, which was removed. This operation gave her great relief and recovery seemed certain until recently, when the old pains returned. The examination revealed, piercing the outer envelope of the heart, a steel hat pin, four and one-fourth inches long, without a head, and in the stomach another headless hatpin, one and one-half inches long. Miss Jodoin never gave any explanation of how the needle got in her stomach, and Dr. C. E. Chagnon, the family physician, expressed the opinion that while in a fit of hysteria Miss Jodoin forced the hatpins into her body.

This Quilt Is Valuable.

The directors of the Columbia (Mo.) Fair have secured for exhibition purposes a quilt which is valued at $3,000 and contains 200 pieces of goods cut from dresses and neckties worn by famous men and women. Each piece is accompanied by an autograph letter. Among the contributors to the quilt are Alice and Phoebe Cary, John G. Whittier, Ouida, Louisa M. Alcott, Jean Ingelow, Mark Twain, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Charles Egbert Craddock, Oliver Wendell Holmes, William Black, Henry Ward Beecher, W. D. Howells, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Gen. Lew Wallace, Paderewski, Patti, Mary Curtis Lee, Mrs. Tom Thumb, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Gen. Grant, Gen. John A. Logan, Gen. Fremont, Gen. Rosecrans, Gen. Sterling Price, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Grover Cleveland, John G. Carlisle, Senator Vest, Mrs. James K. Polk, Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Gen. Joe Wheeler, Joseph Jefferson, Thomas W. Keene, Sol Smith Russell, Fannie Davenport and Julia Marlowe.

Terrorized by a Bullfrog's Roar.

Recently the residents of the 26 ward, of Dunkirk, N. Y., have been terrorized by the reports that an alligator of mammoth size had been seen in the lagoon near Point Gratiot Park and the noise made by the supposed saurian could be plainly heard on a still night nearly a mile away. Many people who have been in the habit of going in bathing off the breakwater have discontinued the practice for fear they would be seized in the jaws of the monster.

Late this afternoon a party of fishermen who have been scouring the lagoon for the lair of the reptile discovered a huge frog, which measured nearly a foot in length. The creature was killed. Local naturalists say the frog is the largest ever seen in Western New York and the species is entirely unknown in Chautauqua county.—Buffalo News.

Corpse Borne on a Steer's Horns.

A special from Tulsa, I. T., gives the particulars of the horrible death of a Creek Indian boy. Charles Mingo who was found dead one morning securely fixed on the horns of a wild Texas steer, evidently there all night. When found the steer was trying to dislodge the boy by rubbing against the banks of a small ravine in which the animal was standing, completely tired out from an all-night's run. The other cattle were about him, greatly excited. The steer was immediately shot and the body was taken from its horns. The boy was badly mangled and bruised by the horns, one of which ran clean through the body. The boy was seen last night playing in the Forsyth pasture and it is supposed he was lost and wandered among the cattle during the night.

Alphabet on a Pinhead.

William L. McLean of Gloversville, N. Y., has engraved on the head of an ordinary brass pin the entire alphabet in script capital letters. The work was done with an ordinary engraving tool, with the aid of a powerful magnifying glass.

The alphabet is arranged in two circles around the pin, four letters which it was impossible to include in them being placed in the center. No part of one letter touches another.

In the first circle are all the letters up to and including M. A smaller circle contains the letters which follow up to Y, while in the center are the remaining four letters.

A few years ago Mr. McLean engraved the Lord's prayer on a silver five-cent piece.

Mosquito Held Up Launch.

Jersey mosquitoes are credited with a great many wrongdoings, but the latest is the stopping of a pleasure party on Cedar Creek. A Sunday school party were taken down on Henry Garrison's naphtha launch, and after starting the engine refused to work.

When they were in mid-stream, not knowing what to do, one of the party volunteered to take the engine apart to ascertain the trouble. He did so, and discovered a big mosquito, which prevented the gasoline from flowing through the small opening into the tank. The mosquito removed, the party proceeded on their trip.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Novel Method of Suicide.

A young lady of Pacy, France, lost a year ago her sister, who on her deathbed had made her swear to marry her husband after the period of mourning was over. The surviving sister, who disliked her brother-in-law, to avoid keeping her promise, recently committed suicide. She went to the cemetery and dug a shallow grave next to that of her sister. Then getting into the grave, she covered herself with earth, save her hands and face. She then pulled at a rope which she had tied round her sister's tombstone. The tombstone fell over her face, completely imprisoning her. A few hours later she was discovered dead by a grave-digger.

An Eight-Legged Horse.

In a consignment of Western range horses from Colorado received at the stockyards at Sioux City there was a curiosity in the shape of a sorrel gelding with eight legs. The horse is owned by John Huey and John Wenzo of White Pine, Col., and they had raised him. They refused $1,000 for him. The animal is 6 years old and weighs 900 pounds.

Remarkable Crabs.

There are two remarkable species of crabs on the Pacific coast, more plentiful there than any other kinds, which are called respectively the yellow and purple "shore crabs." Their bodies are nearly square and their claws very large for the size of the animals.

The Naval "War."

The naval maneuvers on the New England coast were terminated at 5:30 Sunday morning. The attacking squadron under Commander Pillsbury surrendering unconditionally to Rear Admiral Higginson of the defending squadron, after trying unsuccessfully for four days to make a safe harbor. Everything was on a war footing and the results will be of benefit to the navy.
