Foreclosed.

Dangerously Ill.

Small Morning Blaze.

A small blaze was occasioned in the New York dry goods store on Farnam between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets yesterday morning by the explosion of a quantity of gas that had escaped in an unfrequented waeroom. The department responded, but the flames were extinguished without their help. Loss is significant.

An Insane Man.

Complaint was made before the county commissioners yesterday that one Ed Kelly, who resides on South Nineteenth street, was insane. Sheriff Coburn was ordered to produce him before the board this afternoon. He was arrested last night. Contrary to reports he was not violent, but very peaceable, but it is believed of unsound mind. He will doubtless be sent to Lincoln.

Stopped a Runaway.

A team of horses, the property of Peter Hanson, residing near South Omaha, became frightened on Tenth street, near the Union Pacific crossing, at an approaching car on the cable line yesterday. Charles W. Walstron finally came to grief yesterday for a couple of crimes committed about fourteen months ago. At that time Walstron went to Austin, the shoe dealer, and bought about $7 worth of goods. He presented a check for $25 and received $18 in change. The check proved to be worthless. He played the same trick on Bennett, the coffee and tea dealer, getting $20 out of him. Walstron then skipped from the city and was not seen until about a week ago. He fought shy of the police, but Officer Ward got on his track and succeeded in capturing him yesterday.

Builders' and Traders' Exchange.

Yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock there was a successful meeting in room 438, Paxton block, of representatives of the contracting bricklayers, plasterers, brickmakers, carpenters, painters and material furnishers for the purpose of organizing a builders' and traders' exchange. The object of the association was discussed and many of its benefits were shown by people who had watched the successful working of institutions of a similar nature in Kansas City and St. Louis. After the discussion it was agreed to organize the Omaha Builders' and Traders' exchange. Rooms are to be rented which will be made the headquarters of people in either of the lines mentioned. Files of architecture and trade publications will be kept; the financial condition of each builder and furnisher will be kept, and unworthy ones debarred admission. There will also be exhibits of material, boxes for members and a place for them and others to meet to talk over business. In a word, it will be a place where all who have anything to do with building of a house from the digging of the cellar to the furnishing of the cresting will be able to meet. A secretary will be placed in charge at a salary of $1,000 per year.

Escaping Gas.

A leak was discovered in one of the gas pipes in the basement of the court house yesterday from which the gas was escaping at such a rate as to almost render the atmosphere unbearable. Plumbers are at work repairing the break.

A Miniature Compound.

One of the windows of George Clayton's Wabash office, on Fifteenth and Farnam streets, has just been ornamented with a miniature Stone engine fashioned after the style of the compound locomotives which are in use on some of the eastern lines and which have lately been put into service in the west. The exhibit attracts pretty general attention.

BELLAMY BEATS BRUCE.

A Special Watchman's Reward For Spying on Another Man.

Frank Bellamy, a colored saloon keeper, whose establishment is at the corner of Twelfth street and Capitol avenue, was arrested yesterday charged with assaulting a black watchman, George Bruce, with intent to kill. Bruce was quite seriously hurt, there being no less than five deep gashes in his head, and his eyes were completely shut. He was removed to his home on Nineteenth street near Martha in the patrol wagon. He says that Bellamy assaulted him without provocation, and beat him into insensibility with the butt end of a gun. Mr. Bellamy, who is an ex-policeman and a very reliable man, tells a different story. He says much feeling exists between him and Bruce, owing to the fact that his (Bellamy's) wife, who is now suing her husband for a divorce, has employed Bruce to shadow Bellamy and report to her at stated periods where he passes his time, with whom he associates, and what he does generally. Some five weeks ago Bellamy took his wife before the insanity board for examination, and they pronounced her of unsound mind, but at the time in nowise dangerous, and at Bellamy's request no restraint was placed upon her. It seems that Mrs. Bellamy suffers periods of irritability at stated times, and in which spells she is violently jealous of her husband, and on several occasions vicously assaulted him. The divorce suit now pending is not really a suit after all, the parties mutually agreeing that their natures and temperaments were incompatible, and it would be better for them to live apart. Since this agreement, and notwithstanding their mutual compact, Mrs. Bellamy has persisted in hounding and keeping an espionage upon her husband, and for the furtherance of these ends hired Bruce to do the work. Yesterday morning about 1 o'clock, after he had closed his saloon Bellamy caught a man peering through the slats of one of his back windows, and without recognizing him he leaped out the back door and grappled with him. He was not long in making out the identity of his antagonist, and when he did this, and realized that it was Bruce who had been dogging and spying upon his movements for weeks back, his rage knew no bounds, and he proceeded to give the special copper a beating he won't forget for many a day. He denies that he used a revolver or any other weapon, but that the cuts in Bruce's head were made by a big seal ring he wears on the little finger of his right hand. Bellamy waived examination before Judge Berka and was released until this afternoon under a bond of $1,000.

IT WAS A MISTAKE.

Interesting Condition of Florence. Politically.

There seems to be two sides to the story about E. D. Callahan's operations at Florence on election day. It is claimed that he was on the side of whisky and disorder. He say he was arrayed against the saloon men and every member of the council is today in favor of high license. The present members were all elected with this understanding. A number of the best citizens of Florence say most emphatically that Mr. Callahan was not under the influence of liquor on election day, nor was he guilty of any disorderly act other than the protection of his own men at the polls from the saloon element, who challenged every vote and made them swear them in. In fact, a strenuous attempt was made to prevent Callahan's men from voting at all. This he naturally resented as he has been a voter of this county for six years, as well has most of his men. Saloonkeeper Simpson is said to have been at the bottom of about all the discord up there, and advocated free whisky. His license was taken away from him last year for some infraction of the ordinances, and this spring he threw all his energies into the election of a whisky council, and ingloriously failed. The election was simply a strife between the law and order and the whisky and disorder elements, and a fortunate thing indeed for the town was that the former came out on top.

NO CONTRACTORS CAME.

The Bricklayers on Hand Ready to Talk to Them.

A hundred or so of the members of the bricklayers' union met at their hall, at the corner of Fourteenth and Douglas streets, last night to see what fruit their invitation to the contractors' association to meet them and argue the prevailing difficulty in reference to a scale of wages, might bear. President Lee Frost and other prominent officers of the bricklayers' organization were on hand, and after waiting patiently until nearly 9 o'clock, up to which hour no one from the contractors appeared, the men dispersed, not in the least disappointed with the outcome, as they said they anticipated it all along.

Both sides continue to present strong fronts, and the bricklayers say they have funds enough in the treasury to keep them from wanting for the necessaries of life for long time to come. They allege that raids have been attempted on their treasury by imposters, stimulated by people anxious to see their funds become depleted, but in each case the game failed to work.

SHE TURNED THEM LOOSE.

The Bohemian Wife of a Celtic Frenchman Declares Herself.

The inhabitants of that portion of Omaha known as the "bottoms," had the monotony of life varied somewhat Thursday evening by the first act in a domestic drama with the assurance that the curtain will rise on the second and last to-day, the end of which will consist of one of the most energetic tableaux ever witnessed.

About one year ago Peter McGinness, a native of the Emerald isle, became enamored of a daughter of Bohemia, who says her maiden name was Bartowiski. Peter married her and took her to his residence on the bottoms. Their marital life has been a happy one, up to a week ago. Peter faithfully attended to his duties as a trackman on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, while his spouse tidied things up around the house. On Monday the serpent which has invaded the eden of their domestic bliss, appeared in the shape of a floating barge, on which was erected a cabin, which anchored directly opposite the McGinness' mansion. The cabin was populated by three ladies of uncertain complexion and easy virtue, and Peter, becoming enamored of one of them, forgot the bonnie bride of alyear ago and confined his attentions to his newly discovered amorata. This made Mrs. McGinness madder than a sprinkled hen, and at night when Peter had finished his frugal meal, lit his pipe and strolled out for his evening promenade, she without waiting to wash the dishes as is her wont followed him. Peter entered the barge, and soon Mrs. McGinniss heard the sounds of laughter, in which Peter joined heartily. Then the iron entered her soul, and fleeing back to the house she procured the family hatchet, with which she severed the cable which held the floating palace of sin to the shore, and Peter and his new found love drifted down the stream. The occupants of the vessel soon discovered that they were adrift, and coming outside plied their oars lustily until they reached the Iowa side some two miles below the bridge. Peter is at this writing en route home—afoot. And when he gets part of the way back the music will begin, for at this writing Mrs. McGinniss (nee Bartowski) is lingering at the west end of the Union Pacific bridge with a large, juicy elm club, with which she proposes to inflict dire punishment upon the wayward partner of her joy and sorrows.

HELPING AN UNFORTUNATE.

A Commendable Undertaking of Teachers and Pupils Alike.

County Superintendent of Schools Bruner yesterday drew up the following, which will be sent out in printed form to all the schools in the state, and fruitful results are anticipated:

OMAHA, April 5.—To the Teachers: On Saturday, March 24, 1888, Mr. George W. Hill, principal of the Waterloo schools, and one of the most efficient and faithful teachers in the county, while in the discharge of work connected with the schools, was approached by a stranger, a Mr. Aylesworth, of Council Bluffs, Ia., who, without provocation or even the slightest warning, basely shot him, entirely destroying the sight of one eye and disabling him for months to come, if not for life.

In view of the foregoing facts and that Mr. Hill has a family consisting of a wife and three children dependent upon him for support, and that he is a comparatively poor man, the Nebraska State Teachers' association at its last session, at Fremont, on Wednesday evening, March 28, unanimously adopted a resolution to the effect that a collection be taken up in all the schools of the state for his benefit on Tuesday, April 24.

I therefore respectfully request the teachers of this county to comply with the action taken by the Nebraska State Teachers' association, and to forward their respective contributions to the county superintendent, who will be pleased to forward the total amount contributed by the schools of the county to the treasurer of the Nebraska State Teachers' association, who was designated as custodian of the Hill fund. Yours very respectfully,
JAMES B. BRUNER, County Superintendent.

SPLENDID SCHOOLS.

The Verdict of the Visiting Council Bluffs Educators.

The Council Bluffs educational board, accompanied by the superintendent of the schools, came over to Omaha in a body Thursday afternoon. Their errand was to inspect Omaha's thorough school system. They were met by Superintendent James and members of the local board, and the round of the schools made. At the high school the chemical laboratory was minutely inspected and favorably commented upon, while the physical system was also most highly commended. The library was likewise visited, as well as all the other auxiliary branches of the local curriculum, and the more they saw, the better were they pleased, and the louder was the praise of educators from across the river. They returned home in the evening with naught but expressions of commendation for the masterly management of the Omaha schools.
