Chris Johnson was arrested yesterday for being drunk and suspected of being a suspicious character. Johnson had in his possession a jug of gin, a coat, some tobacco and a small sack filled with pieces of finger and earring settings. It is supposed that the stuff has been stolen, but no report has been made to the police of the missing property.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

SOUTH OMAHA.

Typographical Union Ball.

The first annual ball by Typographical union No. 269, of South Omaha, in Rowley's hall, Monday evening, May 18, was a sucess and was as pleasant to the large assemblage of friends as it was creditable to the union and the zealous committeemen whose good judgment made it all that friends expected or members of the union could desire.

Mr. Z. Cuddington and Miss Ella Hudson lead the grand march.

William M. Maupin, who has charge of the World-Herald bureau at Lincoln, added luster to the party by his presence.

William Maxwell, who will represent Omaha union at the Boston session of the international, was present.

W. A. Pangburn, a popular Omaha printer, was present and was as happy as a Missouri girl at a hoedown.

The Peanut Social.

The peanut and ice cream social to be given by the C. S. P.S. of the First Christian church, in the Swedish Baptist church Twenty-second and K streets, Friday evening, promises to be as well attended as it will be pleasant. A literary and musical entertainment will add to the enjoyment of the evening.

Afternoon Tea.

The Home Missionary society of the First Baptist church will give an afternoon tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac R. Brayton, Thirtieth and L streets, Wednesday, May 20. Refreshments will be served from 2:30 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Kensington Tea.

Judge Fooled 'Em.

Judge Dundy surprised the attendants upon the United States court out of a year's growth yesterday afternoon. He called the law docket for the third or fourth time and only five of the cases were represented by attorneys who were in court. The judge thereupon continued every case, with the exception of five, until next term. This prevents a hearing of the cases until next term unless the order of the court is set aside. The judge has repeated his admonition to the attorneys year after year to the effect that cases not ready for trial or not represented when the docket was called would be continued, but his warning had lost its force and only raised a smile on the face of those who heard it. His action yesterday, therefore, was a complete surprise to everybody.

Since it is now a well established fact that catarrh is a blood disease, medical men are quite generally prescribing Ayer's Sarsaparilla for that most loathsome complaint, and the result, in nearly every instance, proves the wisdom of their advice.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"Zanie," the operetta to be given at Creighton college hall Wednesday evening, May 20, by St. John's collegiate church choir, is attracting a good deal of attention and promises to prove very interesting. The costumes have been received and some, especially those in the wedding scene, are rich and costly. Mr. Jules Lumbard in one of the scenes will introduce his famous song, "Hail to the Queen." The sale of tickets has nearly reached the limit of the seating capacity of the hall. The operetta is under the management of Mr. J. Shenk, who has spared neither work nor expense to produce it artistically.

The principal ballets presented in the second edition of Gilmore's spectacle, "The Twelve Temptations," which opens a four nights' engagement at the Boyd on Sunday next, are "The Little Lord Fauntleroys," "The Parisian Belles," "Riding on Grandpa's Shoulders," "The Ballet of All Nations," and the dance of Terra Cotta with live cockatoos.

NOMINATED BY HIS DAUGHTER.

How John Young Brown Became Kentucky's Candidate for Governor.

PRETTY GIRL'S POLITICAL INTRIGUE.

She Forced Her Father Into the Arena and Conducted His Campaign—She Captivated Henry Watterson with Ease.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A pretty story goes with the nomination of John Young Brown to be the democratic candidate for governor of Kentucky in the coming campaign. The nomination was made last week, and according to a Kentucky man who was at the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday the beginning of the boom for Mr. Brown was made by his pretty daughter, aged eighteen or twenty years. This is the story:

Mr. Brown was in politics in his early life and only represented a district of Kentucky in congress. After serving with credit he declined to accept another nomination and settled down to the practice of law. He said at that time that he was done with politics, for he could not afford to devote the best years of his life to office holding. For years he kept to his determination, and though personally popular all over the state and standing high in the councils of his party, he would neither ask nor accept any position within the gift of the people.

But he has a daughter who was a little girl when he was in congress, but she has grown to be a woman and has fallen desperately in love with her father. She is devoted to him and is very attractive, with all the spirit and beauty that go with the traditional Kentucky girl. She is ambitious not alone for herself, but she wanted her father to shine among the public men of the state once more. She begged him to become a candidate for a state office or for congress, and brought all her persuasive powers to bear on him in that direction. She waged an incessant campaign, but he put her off, joking her upon her ambitions and declaring at the same time that he had had his day in politics when she was a little girl and he must stay at home now and practice his profession. But she gave him no peace, and each morning at breakfast she bewitched him with her arguments. At last he could not resist her appeals, but he had not the time to work up a boom, so he would leave that to her. He told her to outline an initial campaign and start him on the road for such office as to her seemed best. Then he laughed at her and went to his law office for the day.

Next morning at breakfast the fair campaigner handed him a sheet of delicate note paper on which she had written a note ready for his signature. It was his announcement that the undersigned was willing to become a candidate for governor. He laughed at her and signed the document. He did not know how serious the matter was getting, but he had promised his daughter and he kept his word like a true Kentucky man. That day the young lady took the note to Louisville and went to the editorial rooms of the Courier-Journal and to Mr. Watterson's own office. She showed him the note and explained to him that her father had promised to become a candidate partially because she had asked him. The letter she presented was documentary evidence.

Editor Watterson was charmed. He was a personal friend of Mr. Brown, and if anything had been wanted to insure his support of her candidate the young lady captured him. "If John Young Brown says he will be a candidate and you are his daughter, he will get the support of my paper," said Mr. Watterson, and the young lady went away happy.

She told her father that she had his campaign well started, and insisted with laughing eyes that he must not recede a bit from the pledge he had made. A few days later, when Mr. Watterson announced that Mr. Young Brown had consented to become a candidate for governor and that his nomination would be a wise one, all Kentucky democrats took it as a declaration. Mr. Watterson kept his promise and supported Mr. Brown. There is no evidence that the latter showed any disposition to withdraw from his position. At any rate he did not do so. He accepted the situation. His daughter was as happy as the day is long. The democrats of the convention did their part of the story and secured a good candidate for governor and probably made one little lady happier than she was ever in her life before when she nominated John Young Brown last Friday afternoon.

A Popular Remedy.

Mr. John Keown, the worthy postmaster at Keown, Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, says: "Chambelain's Cough Remedy sells better than any other." The reason of this is because it can always be depended upon. Let anyone troubled with a severe cold give it a trial and they will find that the first dose will relieve the lungs and make breathing easier, and that its continued use will free the system of all symptons of the cold. The promptness and certainty of this remedy in the relief and cure of colds, has won for it many sincere friends and made it very popular. For sale by druggists.

The Paxton Hotel Fire

Did not effect the hotel proper in any way so as to interfere with the operation of the house. Only the annex was damaged and guests have been cared for without the interruption of a single day.

Decision in Favor of the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry.

The new Palace sleeping cars of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry., with electric lights in every berth, will continue to leave the Union depot, Omaha, at 6:20 p. m., daily. Passengers taking this train avoid transfer at Council Bluffs, and arrive in Chicago at 9:30 a. m., in ample time to make all eastern connections. Ticket office, 1501 Farnam street.

F. A. NASH, General Agent.
J. E. PRESTON, City Passenger Agent.

Locating Fire Traps.

Chris Hartman of the fire and police commission and Chief Galligan resolved themselves into a committee yesterday and started out to hunt fire traps. Up to noon they had located thirty piles of papers and rubbish in the basements and back rooms of buildings in the vicinity of Fifteenth and Farnam streets.

The investigation will be continued and all parties who fail or refuse to clean up will be prosecuted.

PRESIDENT DILLON COMING.

He Will Make a Tour of the Union Pacific System.

President Sidney Dillon of the Union Pacific, accompanied by his family, will arrive in Omaha sometime today.

Mr. Dillon will make a trip over the road on a tour of inspection, accompanied by Vice President Clark and Assistant General Manager Dickinson. The party will visit all the principal points on the road.

Oliver W. Mink of Boston, comptroller of the road, arrived in the city this morning and will accompany Mr. Dillon over the road.

How Railroad Maps Are Made.

They tell this story of General Passenger Agent George H. Heafford of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. The maps of that great system are remarkable for the straightness of the lines of road. Nearly every part is a bee line between the terminal points. That part of the road between Chicago and Omaha has, however, a slight curve in it. Some one remarked one day: "You nearly got a straight line that time, Heafford." "Well," answered the genial shifter of latitudes and longitudes, "the line is straight, but the ruler slipped."

A Ball Crank Special.

The B. & M. will run a special train on Sunday next from Schuyler to Omaha in order to accommodate the base ball cranks along the line who wish to see the game between the Omaha and Denver teams. The train will leave Schuyler in the morning and will return in the evening. A reduced rate has been made for the trip.

New Cheyenne Shops.

The new passenger shops of the Union Pacific at Cheyenne have been completed and the machinery is nearly all in place. Mr. McConnell, superintendent of motive power, will go to that point in a few days in order to put the shops in running order.

How It Came About.

Now, doctor, it's no use. I've taken your stuff over six month and I don't get well worth a cent—my liver and stomach are out of order, so you say, but all your medicine goes for naught. Now, I am going to quit your remedies and take Haller's Sarsaparilla and Burdock—it cured me once before when I was all run down, and I have faith to believe it will do so again.
