THE SPECULATIVE MARKETS

Fine Weather and Encouraging Crop Reports Caused Weakness.

TRADE WAS SLOW IN ALL THE PITS

Corn Was Weak Early—Longs Showed Considerable Discouragement—Oats Followed Corn and Closed Unchanged—Hog Products Steady.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 1.—Fine weather and encouraging crop reports and weak cables caused a weak feeling in the wheat pit today, but trade was slow not only in this pit but in all the other pits, speculators not caring to take on new lines so close to the conjunction of Sunday before the Fourth of July. The market, however, was steady at the decline, the extreme fluctuations covering a range of only ⅝c for July and ⅜c for the more deferred futures.

Domestic markets were generally easier, and the local trade sluggish and outside business almost at a standstill. Nothing in the way of news was sensational or very influential. Harvesting is going on steadily, the yield is fully up to expectations, and big deliveries of new wheat are only a question of a few days. Large stocks are noted abroad. Liverpool reporting 3,295,000 bushels of wheat in stock, against 2,972,000 a year ago. July opened ⅛c lower at 77⅞c, weakened to 77⅝c, reacted and closed steady at 78⅛c.

Corn was weak early on the fine weather; reports of good crop prospects and the weakness in other speculatives; longs showed considerable discouragement and sold freely, with the demand light. Later it rallied with wheat, July from 49c to 50c, sold down to 49⅝c, advanced to 50⅜c, closed ⅝c.

Oats followed corn and closed unchanged.

Hog products opened steady at about yesterday's closing figures, but weakened with grain and on sales by longs. The break brought in a lot of buying orders and a rally followed except in ribs.

Deliveries in July contracts were light in wheat and smaller still in corn, oats and provisions.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat, 180 cars; corn, 390 cars; oats, 250 cars; hogs, 16,000 head.

Minneapolis Grain Market.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 1.—There was quite an excited crowd of traders at the opening of the wheat market this morning who were anxious to obtain any advantage that might arise from the July delivery today. There was a good deal of long wheat put on the market, mostly from country holders who had delayed selling too long, and as the market broke under these circumstances. The elevator companies were ready purchasers at the low price. July opened at 72c and broke to 74c, the lowest point this year. On the last day of March, May wheat sold to 74½c, and opened April 1 at 74⅜c and sold to 74½c. There was some recovery toward the close.

The oats market was active; No. 1 northern brought its premium of ⅝c over July. Low grades sold quite freely. Receipts of wheat here were 331 cars and at Duluth and Superior 160. The following were the prices today: June closing yesterday, 74⅝c; July opening 74@74⅝c, lowest 74c, closing 74⅝c, yesterday 75½c; August closing 75⅝c, yesterday 76c; September opening 75½c, highest 75¾@75⅝c, closing 75⅝c, yesterday 75¼c. December closing 78c, yesterday 78⅝c.

On track, No. 1 hard, 78c; No. 1 northern, 77c; No. 2 northern, 68@73c; old August quoted at 75½c.

Traders' Talk.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 1.—Counselman & Day to Cockrell Bros: Wheat was very dull and after opening 4c lower on free selling by scalpers, recovered on evening up of trades for the approaching holiday and closed a shade lower than yesterday. There was some new investment buying on the theory that the price is a sufficient bull argument, but the trade in general are not disposed to enlarge operations until the Hatch bill is disposed of. Corn opened ½c lower, advanced 1c on renewed buying by local traders on the fact that there were no deliveries on July contracts, declined ¼c on longs realizing and closed ⅜c higher than yesterday. Oats were also withheld from delivery, and after a lower opening the market recovered and closed firm. Course grains have many friends who are buying heavily on all weak spots, and talk much higher prices, based on the belief in serious crop shortage. Provisions broke badly around on selling by outside holders, but recovered on expected lighter receipts of hogs and closed without material change except lard, which was 2½@5c lower. On the whole the market is rather firm.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 1.—Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to S. A. McWhorter: The trade in wheat has been quiet and dull for an evening up character. Some discouraged longs sold out and shorts covered. Primary markets are shipping more freely and the flour exports are good, but foreign advices show no strength, and reports from the harvest fields are so flattering that it will be hard to sustain prices. No material change is expected tomorrow. Corn and oats opened weak and it seemed probable that prices would go down, but an unexpected demand developed which rallied corn sharply. Receipts of corn were moderately above the estimates and the weather in the corn states all that could be desired. Provisions have been rather nervous and weak, with no especial features during the day.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 1.—Lozan & Co. to Duncan, Hollinger & Co.: We had another dull day in wheat. July opened at 78c, sold as low as 77⅞c, and closed at 78⅛c. September commanded a premium of a quarter of a cent over July. For the immediate future we do not look for higher prices. The export demand is light, in fact there is none of the old-fashioned buying for future shipment, and without the usual speculative buying prices cannot advance. The business in corn continues good, September opened at 48¾ and closed at 48⅞@49c. All our reports from the corn belt point to higher prices. The oat market is more active with a very firm tone. Crop reports continue bad. September opened at 31⅜c and closed at 31⅞c. Provisions were steady. We believe in taking profits on all hog product.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

Dullness of the Week Was, if Anything, Intensified Yesterday.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Any change in the temper of the stock market was hardly to be expected today and the dullness which has been so marked during the week was, if anything, intensified, while the interest in the trading was reduced to nothing except in the few stocks under manipulation by the Chicago speculators. Then rumors of litigation against Chicago Gas in all cases are impossible to confirm and while the stock continued to be pressed for sale today, making it the only feature of the market. There was no reason to doubt that the decline was the result of the raiding, pure and simple, and that when the price had reached such a point as meets the approval of the speculative managers who have its market interests in hand, there will be a full and free recovery. Another loss of 2 per cent marked the trading in it today, but the substantial rally of over 1 per cent from the lowest point would seem to indicate that such a price had now been touched.

There is still great interest manifested in Richmond & West Point affairs, and the hope was expressed that the position of Drexel, Morgan & Co. might be modified, but the steady decline in the securities of the road in the face of the extraordinary dullness into which they have fallen would go to show that there is little hope of such a thing among the holders of its securities. The troubles of the Texas Pacific are also reflected in the steady decline of the prices of its securities on the smallest transactions. But all of these have lost their influence over the rest of the market and dullness and stagnation remained undisturbed in the general list, with a drooping tendency as the natural result of the dullness. The disbursements for dividends and interest will be very large and are reckoned by some authorities as high as $100,000,000 and the reinvestment of this money will tend to keep a good investment demand in the market and the sales of the investment stocks in the last few days would seem to indicate that some one had been anticipating the receipt of cash. The market closed dull and stagnant at about the opening figures. The transactions were 96,604 listed and 31,124 unlisted.

Government bonds steady. State bonds firm.

The Post says: The rather heavy orders presented for export of gold today had been foreshadowed since the middle of the week and were therefore not in the nature of a surprise. The best opinion last week was to the effect that last Saturday's shipments would bring the movement to an end, but the exporters were mistaken, as they have already been more than once this season. A positive conclusion may be drawn from the recurrent puzzle: that under no circumstances can our finances win a vantage from European distress. An enormous harvest here, accompanied by crop failure in other countries, seems on its face to be clear profit to our own people. But the experience of the last year in the security and sterling markets shows that there is an adjustment of such inequalities even in the movement of interest in that trade. The abnormally heavy purchases of food products under such conditions are paid for by the withdrawal of European capital from this country and the withdrawal comes at a time when European capital is needed here almost as greatly as it ever was.
