GRADUATES WITH EYESIGHT

Rev. J. W. Wilson Urges Them to Make Use of Their Vision.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Preacher Urges the Students to Keep Their Eyes and Hearts Open to See the Needs of Fellow Men.

Rev. J. W. Wilson of the First Congregational church took as his subject for the baccalaureate sermon preached before the graduating class of the High school yesterday morning "Eyes that See" and his text from Luke x. 23-24. He said:

It is a blessed thing that we have eyes that see and that there are so many beautiful and wonderful things to be seen by those who go through the world with their eyes open. We should thank the Creator every day we live for eyes that can observe, minds that can understand and hearts that can sympathize with all that makes the world beautiful and the whole universe glorious, and our lives interesting and sublime. Thrice blessed are we if we perceive what we see and if we are certain of that which we know. It behooves us to use the knowledge which we possess and to make good returns in true and righteous lives for the splendid opportunities God has given us for seeing and knowing.

No part of the human body is more wonderful in its perfection, more beneficent in its designs than the eye. Next to the powers of thought and reason the sense of sight seems most nearly indispensable to happiness and well-being. Through the eye the soul shines forth. The eye may become the gateway through which evil enters the soul. Three-fourths of the temptations assail us through the eyes to make their raid upon the soul. Through the eye an evil character shines forth, corrupting every one it reaches with its subtle influence. Our safety and our happiness hereafter may depend upon the intelligent use of our eyes. God has given us eyes that we may see things as they are. Many do not see with their eyes and more do not see things as they are. Most of us do not see half the things we would see if we kept our eyes open. Multitudes seem to spend their days and years in blindness instead to what is going on about them and to what may be seen on every hand if they will only use their eyes. Occasionally we find one whose eyes are always open and nothing of any consequence ever escapes his lynx-eyed vigilance.

Eyes that See Things.

Two intelligent, brainy fellow travelers travel with equally good eyes, yet one may see and perceive a hundred things where the other sees but one; one comes with the mind filled with information and fresh stores of practical knowledge, the other but little wiser than when he set out.

The speaker extended this idea to a variety of illustrations and said:

The habit of close observation and intelligent perception will make us recognize the goodness of God in everything we see. No one who knows how to use his eyes and his brain can long imagine that the Almighty is far away or fails to perceive the evidences of His loving kindness. Atheism comes from want of observation and when men will turn their eyes upon God and His world with an observation as minute and detailed, patient and long-continued as a scientist will bestow upon the habits of an ant or a spider, their can be no more atheism. We need eyes to see and perceive every solitary gleam of light that comes to us from the Creator. Then we shall recognize His goodness in everything that we behold. What we need in order that we may see and perceive as we look out upon God's beautiful world is the vision of faith; we need to see with inner sight with the eyes of the soul; then we shall recognize His goodness.

Understand Fellow Men.

This habit of carefully observing and perceiving will enable us to understand ourselves and our fellow men. Our vision is seldom so defective as when we undertake to look at ourselves. Some profess too exalted an opinion; others too base an opinion of self. The right kind of perceptive insight will not lead one to take a morbid view of self. What a blessing it is also to be able to see others as they are and to recognize their needs. This is perhaps the greatest defect in Christian people today. They see their fellow man without perceiving their real condition. Our eyes are blurred by the sight of misery and poverty and distress. We naturally shrink from that which is unsightly and which pitifully appeals to us for help. Nothing but the grace of God can open our eyes and make us look upon our fellows with real sympathy. What a contrast between the average Christian and Jesus of Nazareth as He passed through the world. He was always finding the poor, the weary, the hungry, the broken-hearted and those who needed help.

Keep the Vision Clear.

This, then, is the message that I bring to you, my young friends. As you stand at this interesting place in your life experience, having been instructed in all the wisdom and knowledge afforded by the schools of our city, you are coming now to enter upon the unknown and untrodden pathways of the future. Go through life with your eyes open to see the beauties and glories of God's marvelous universe. Open your minds and hearts to all that is true and honorable and just and pure and lovely and of good report. Keep your eyes open to see yourselves as you are in all the glory and strength of young manhood and womanhood and think of the splendid possibilities and immense issues of life that will open up before you if you keep yourselves pure as God made you. Look for the god in your fellow men; keep your eyes and hearts open to see the needs of those less fortunate than yourselves.

STOLEN CATTLE ARE FOUND.

Thief Had Sold Them to Dealer, Claiming to Be Owner.

The cattle stolen from Henry Grobe of James township were found yesterday to be in possession of Kennedy & Co., cattle buyers at Logan, Ia., who had bought them Friday evening. Information leading to the finding of the cattle was given by a cattle buyer of Macedonia, who had seen them on the road between Minden and Logan.

The thief, who claimed to be the owner of the cattle, offered to sell them to the Macedonia man, but he did not want them.

Reading in the papers yesterday morning the account of the theft of Grobe's cattle, he at once notified the sheriff's office here by telephone of having met a bunch on the road leading to Logan. Word was sent to the sheriff at Logan and in a short time he notified the authorities here that the cattle were in possession of Kennedy & Co.

It developed that the thief secured thirty-five head of Grobe's fat cattle instead of thirty-three, as the latter had counted.

The route selected is the Rock Island and its Colorado connections with the Central Pacific. The special train will start July 8, Davenport being the initial point, and on that day will cross Iowa and be ready for the start from Omaha in the evening.

Finds Runaway Husband.

Yesterday morning a pale-faced woman arrived in the city in search of a truant husband. She came from Cabery, Ford county, Ill., and her husband's name is Sam J. Kelley. She stated that they lived on a small farm and that last February he drove to town, put up his team, drew $600 from the bank and disappeared. He made no statement to anyone and his conduct was mysterious. She was unable to learn anything of him or what he was doing until Wednesday, when she received word from him in a letter asking her to send his clothing to Des Moines.

Instead of packing up his belongings she took the train herself and came to Des Moines. She planted herself in the postoffice and after a day of waiting had the pleasure of seeing her husband walk into the postoffice to call for mail. She hailed him at once and the reception was not such as is usual in the case of an absent husband not seen for four months. She took him in hand and announced her intention of compelling him to return with her to Illinois or at least give up the cash he had taken away.

State Rifle Practice.

The state rifle shoot and competition of the Guard companies of Iowa begins tomorrow at the state range in Linn county, midway between Marion and Cedar Rapids. The state has a large tract of land leased for a range and the companies of the National guard have been directed to send their teams there this week. The practice lasts five days. Companies will send teams of two or three persons, those standing highest last year being privileged to send the larger number.

The competition is under the direction of Colonel Thomas F. Cooke, inspector of small arms practice for the Guard. Lieutenant Albert Sauer has been detailed to come from Rock Island, on request of the adjutant general, to give instruction in the use and care of the Krag-Jorgensen rifles. The government has loaned to the state for the use of the teams at the range forty of the rifles, and the men will be permitted to use them.

Ward Has Been Seen.

Thomas F. Ward, defaulting cashier of the Lemars National bank, who departed suddenly three months ago, was recently seen in Jersey City, N. J., by a person who was well acquainted with him. The two met in a cigar store and talked for an hour about affairs in connection with the broken bank, as both persons had been residents of Cherokee at the time.

So far as known no effort is being made to secure Ward. Some time ago there was found among the assets of the bank a forged note for a large amount, but there is nothing to indicate that it was done by Ward. The bank is in the hands of a receiver and its affairs are being wound up as rapidly as possible.

Good Apple Year in Iowa.

Information received by the State Horticultural society indicates that the apple crop in Iowa will be better than in several years. A few of the varieties have failed to show well at the beginning, but the standard varieties are all well filled with young apples, not only in the southwestern part of the state, but also in the northeastern and eastern apple regions. The cool weather has had the effect of keeping back the large number of insects and bugs which sometimes destroy the fruit when it is small, and the young apples have had a chance to get well started.

AMERICAN GOODS IN ITALY

Bureau of Foreign Commerce Gives Out Facts Regarding Introduction of United States Wares.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Further extracts from the volume of "Commercial Relations," about to issue from the bureau of foreign commerce, dealing with United States trade with Italy are given below.

Consul Smith of Leghorn says that Italy is making constant progress in the development of its manufacturing industries, especially in the northern section. A more extended market is offered for American machinery and tools.

Consul Cramer of Florence notes among the imports from the United States into that section bicycles, leather, tools, locks, cotton, oil, tobacco, agricultural machines, dynamos, watches, asbestos, corn, salted meat, lard, India rubber goods and books.

Consul Heingartner of Catania says that American revolvers are finding a large sale in Sicily, as well as our sewing machines, lard and lubricating oils. The Catania branch house of a sewing machine company sold 714 machines last year.

Consul Johnson of Venice notes that the Paris exposition was the means of bringing the improved American printing presses to the attention of local journals, which are now installing the new apparatus.

There is a demand in Venice for oilcloth and stoves and the consul regrets that merchants who have written to American manufacturers of these articles have received no answer.

Consul Jarvis says that Milan is developing rapidly and is in a prosperous condition. When the Simplon tunnel is opened business will be still further improved. American agricultural machinery, he adds, holds the market in that section of the country. More of it is used than ever before. Traction engines, not yet introduced, would find a market if of one cylinder, twenty-horse power and of not more than thirteen tons gross. The sale of cash registers and typewriters is increasing. Many of our canned goods are found on the shelves of the leading grocers.

There is a chance for American stoves of a cheap pattern, also for leather, both raw and made up as belting, trunks and shoes. The trade in office and house furniture could be extended and American cutlery and machine tools for iron and wood industries would find a market.

CUBANS LISTEN TO REASON

Conservative Members of Convention at Havana Confident that Platt Amendment Will Prevail.

HAVANA, June 9.—The conservative members of the constitutional convention are absolutely confident insight that the Platt amendment will be accepted and that several radicals will join with the fifteen delegates who have heretofore voted in favor of acceptance.

The last few days seem to have brought about a decided change in the attitude of delegates who had been bitterly arraigning the Washington government for rejecting the convention interpretations of the amendment. The strong pressure from the outside brought to bear upon the convention to finish its business and to place the country on a settled basis has had an excellent effect on the radicals, inducing them to accept the inevitable, and some of them now argue that it would be perhaps better to accept the amendment, hoping for some form of independence than to prolong the military occupation of the island.

The convention will meet in secret session tomorrow. It is expected that several days will elapse before a vote is taken.
