Saloon Men Settle it Among Themselves

The dove of peace has spread its wings over the three-cornered saloon fight, staged at Twenty-first and Cuming streets. Hostilities have been declared off.

For a long time F. M. Walker and Hans Neilson have conducted saloons in the vicinity of the street intersection named. They applied for licenses for next year. This being regarded as a choice location for the dispensing of liquid refreshments, Louis Peterson concluded to "butt in." He did so and applied for a license. Then it was that Walker and Neilson filed protests against granting a license to Peterson. In turn, he filed a protest against them having licenses. The other day the fire and police board took the matter up and set the hearing for yesterday. Yesterday afternoon when the cases were called, all of the protests were withdrawn, which leaves the board free handed to issue all three of the licenses.

Christmas Rush Over and Postmaster Bitter Has Only One Package Too Blindly Addressed to Be Delivered.

What appears to be one of the boldest horse thefts committed in this section of the country during late years occurred Wednesday night at Eggers' grocery store, Twenty-fourth and Q streets, when some unidentified party appropriated the horse and buggy of Herman Hansen, bookkeeper for Swift and Company.
