Leg Hurt.

C. M. Haworth was brought to town this evening with an injured leg. He has been working for John Sykes in Polk county, five mile west of Salem. This morning he and Mr. Sykes went out to cut cord wood and dropped a tree about 14 inches through. In falling the tree caught a tree, the others got hung in the stump in some splinters.

Haworth commenced to trim off the limbs while sitting on the tree, one of the stumps and it overbalanced the swing of the tree throw it against Haworth's leg. Fortunately no bones were broken, but the leg was badly bruised, the muscles being bruised at the knee.

The two men between them got the same to place again, and on arrival in Salem there was nothing left for the doctor to do but to pronounce it a good job.

CROPS IN DANGER.

Only the Prompt Appearance of Dry Weather Can Save Them.

Reports From All Parts of Marion County and the State.

There is conflict of evidence as to how much damage the wheat crop of Marion county has sustained by the wet weather. From no section of the county do all reports agree. Specimens of wheat brought in to this office from south of town show no material damage, and are pronounced by experts to be uninjured.

Vague reports from the Waldo Hills indicate great damage there but are not definite enough to escape the suspicion of being on the sensation order. Rather, the most positive assertions of great damage seem to be to a great extent guess-work and not founded on actual examination of the grain itself.

The gist of the matter is that the coldness of the rain has, so far, prevented much sprouting.

If the weather will now clear the sun come out and a drying wind blow there can be no doubt the crop will sustain little damage; while if the rain continues and the weather turns warm the grain will sprout and the crop be lost.

Sheriff Durbin says that there is no doubt but the crop is materially damaged to what extent it is impossible yet to say.

Deputy Sheriff Elder says that the crop is all right and not yet damaged to any extent worth mentioning.

County Treasurer Downing was out to his place near Shiloh over Sunday, and reports but little sprouting there.

Ex-County Judge Hubbard, whose place is about 12 miles north of Salem, says that down there the wheat has sprouted but very little, and no material damage is yet done.

Fred Metzler of Liberty says the wheat on his place is not damaged badly yet and if the weather does improve it will be all right and farmers will not lose much.

H. H. Herbinet, the agricultural implement man, an old farmer and a shrewd buyer of large experience, who knows whereof he speaks, and has a large interest in the farmers to whom he has sold a large amount of machinery this year, and some on credit, took a trip to the country this morning to his own satisfaction. He says the wheat is not seriously damaged, and will make good flour, though some of it may grade a little off, the loss to farmers cannot be great. Grass that was well shocked has not even been wet through. If farmers are careful in threshing and do not throw the sprouted breathing, that have been lying on the ground, in with the good grain, they will not lose much.

Mr. J. J. Herbert of St. Louis says the grain in the field is not seriously injured yet and if it does not now still not be materially damaged.

Jake Hansen, the Dallas oregon maker came over the morning and says about 40 acres out and off and some of it that was cut on the green side has sprouted to considerable extent, especially where poor shocking was done.

L. G. Simson of Turnbull near Crowley gave his opinion that if it stopped raining now grain would pull through with little damage, where it was well shocked and capped.

J. A. Bennington, who has been over in portion of Polk county says wheat is generally badly soaked and in some cases sprouted a little, where poorly shocked.

A. J. Perrine, a large grower in Polk county says the wheat was cut and ripe and well shocked and it is not hurt any yet. It may come.

Glen Leeds, foreman on the Hinman hop ranch was in today and reports the yards in good condition and not hurt any by the rain and he thinks it will benefit the vine greatly.

Henry Brown, of near Dallas, says the wheat is not hurt much yet and will be all O. K. if it quits now.

Wm. Smith, a large farmer near Silverton, says the wheat is not hurt to speak of yet and thinks by diligent watching the farmers can save it if the rain stops now.

George Simmons, a grain grower near Silverton, says the grain has not sprouted yet and others say they have taken pains to shock well and have not gone into their fields to examine to see if would not help the matter.

James Forsythe of the Mount Davis Shaver Company, who has had 30 years of experience with wheat growers and grain, says the grain can still stand a little more rain if it keeps cool, but warm muggy weather will ruin it.

At Woodburn some of the wheat that has been threshed is found to be sprouted.

Wilson Putnam of Polk county brought to the JOURNAL office this morning a bunch of wheat which he says was taken from the top of a shock. It has manifestly sprouted and the sprouts are not about one fourth of an inch and are of a bright green color.

At Harrisburg, Linn Co., reports from the field indicate that the damage will not be very great where good shocking has been done, but where the shocks are open the grain is bleached and in some cases sprouted already, and in the event the rain continues the loss will be very heavy. In the neighborhood there is considerable grain threshed and under cover, and some have delivered their crops to the warehouse, but not many have been so fortunate.

The Eugene Guard of last evening says:

The farmers who came to town today were apprehensive lest they were of the opinion that if the rain should cease today or tomorrow that the greater portion of the crop would be saved. But if it should continue a few days longer that the grain in the shock would be ruined. The standing grain will stand considerable damp weather yet without harm. Only a small percentage of the wheat crop was threshed before the rains—not to exceed 15 or 20 per cent. The warehouse have received about 25,000 bushels.

A prominent wheat dealer of Portland, who had just returned from a trip through the Willamette valley said: "Upon mature reflection the farmers felt that their crop is not beyond repair. The farmers had watched the weather conditions and the crop very closely, and when the rain came out they felt safe. The rain that has fallen since then has greatly alarmed them, however, and many of them will fall on the outlook a very gloomy one. All of the fall grain is out and in the shock. The shocks are not capped as no one expects a lasting rain at this season, and there is absolutely no way of saving the fall grain if the rain continues. The spring grain is yet standing, and may not be so badly injured unless the rain will set in very good, and may suffer materially."

It rained Sunday all over Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming, and over the northern parts of Nevada and California.

Throughout Western Oregon heavy rains have fallen, even down in the fruit-growing sections. The strawberries are all gone, and the reports indicate that a continuance of this weather cannot but be serious.

From Eastern Oregon come news of general rain, and much uneasiness on the part of farmers. In the Pendleton district harvesting is at a standstill, and the farmers predict untold damage unless the sun comes out without delay. Reports from The Dalles indicate that the Wasco crop is in great danger. Snow fell in the mountains in the Northeastern Oregon last week, and the mercury stood at 40 degrees above at Baker City this morning. Pomeroy, Wash., reports rain and wheat beginning to sprout in the shocks. The telegrams from the wheat sections of Idaho say the damage will be great. Rain continues, and from several sections comes the news that the standing grain is beginning to sprout. Especially is this true in Western Oregon.

Weather Clerk Hope predicts better weather tonight and tomorrow, but he also predicted fine weather for last Sunday.

All reports indicate that the condition of the oat crop is worse than that of the wheat.

The report of the weather bureau for the week ending Monday night says of weather in Western Oregon:

Rain fell on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Sunday, and in the showers occurred today. The total rainfall for the week ranging from 0.55 of an inch to 1.55 inches. Since the rain began on the 4th, from 1 to 3 inches have fallen. Rain has fallen on nine days of the month, a greater number than in any previous August. Fair and pleasant weather prevailed on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The mean temperature for the week, 61 degrees, 1.5 degrees lower than for the preceding week and 3 degrees lower than for the corresponding week of last year. The maximum temperature ranged from 65 to 72 degrees, and the minimum from 50 to 60 degrees. Since August 1st the maximum temperature have been above 90 degrees, except from the third to 7th inclusive, when in some sections they were from 90 to 94 degrees. There has been a marked deficiency in the amount of sunshine. The records of the weather bureau cover a period of 29 years, and those records fail to show any weather even approximating that which has prevailed this month. In August, 1899, from the 1st to the 6th, rain fell for 6 days. Followed by warm, clear weather to 18th; rain fell on the 19th and 14th, and again from the 20th to the end of the month; in 1879 rain fell from the 20th to the 28th inclusive. These are the only years on record having any unusual weather issues this year is an unprecedented one.

FIXING UP FURNACES.

School Directors Will Have Temporary Repairs Made.

The work of repairing the furnace in the East Salem school building will be done by Steiner & Hosmer, and in the Lincoln and North Salem buildings by Shaw and Merriper. The committee, consisting of Directors Johnson, Thanhorton and Davidson, finding that new furnaces could not be procured and set up in time for the opening of the fall term of school, concluded to have the old furnaces patched up sufficiently to last through the winter.

Next season some new system of heating, three prevailing, will be considered, the hot-air system being costly and far from satisfactory in other ways.

The hot water system in the Parrish school building has been good service and practically no expense for repairs, but it is a costly plant to put in, and the directors hope to find something still better.

The directors have been very favorably impressed with the gasoline heating system which is being introduced on this coast, but it has seemed to still in the experimental stage, and they did not think it best to go into it this year.

No formal contracts were entered into for the repairs which will be made, but what prove to be necessary will be done, at as small an expense as possible.

Prepare for Hoppicking.

You cannot make hop man from sallow, but you can prepare for picking. Estimating that the hop crop for Oregon would be large, and that many new pickers would be required, I have bought and am now opening several bales of heavy twill sheeting, a most economical material for tents, as after you have used it as a shelter during your picking, you can use it for cotton up the other purposes for the family, as necessary to lay it away where it may nibbled and spoil before next season. Then you will need others for yourself and the girls and blankets to keep you warm; better and cheaper to pay the utilities to keep you off than to have to pay for medical treatment and drugs. All my goods I have some and qualities to suit. I buy for cash, and keep for sale for cash, a large stock of staple and fancy dry goods. Your patronage solicited.
